

do from my heart believe, that the prosecution of this war will be attended with the ruin and downfall of this country ; that, instead of recovering North America, we shall lose all of which we are at present possessed there, together with the West-Indies, and all the trade depending upon them ; and that we might, by treaty, secure what by an infatuated perseverance in the war we are upon the brink of losing.

I have the honour to be,

Dear Sir,

Your very humble servant,

AN ENGLISHMAN.
