much he was rd afterwards so often heard d man he is !" would find a ties or in rela-Phelan's concalled him to church on the he occasion, I med for bim, chibited whilst lpit. On his gregation that one disposing his then was indicated that py, and they conduct, that arduous labor

gregation, he w groggeries he preacher's o other could mperance are cars to come, . to glean the l Abstinence 61, remarks, e know of no hat has yet rick's Total change took St. Patrick. op of Kings-arish Pricst dignity of est those to and labors, r minds to of judging, irreparable ; y providing Previous to ved, wished y presented cy appreciated his services. As nothing could better express the feelings of the Irish Catholies, on the occasion of his departure, than the moving address which was presented to him, on the 16th October, 1842, I take the liberty of inserting it here. It expresses the sorrow, almost excessive, which they experienced in being bereaved of him—it exposes much of the good achieved through his instrumentality—in a word, it sums up the great services rendered to the Irish community of Montreal, through his zeal and labors; and at the same time it makes a public acknowledgment of their love, their esteem, and their gratitude.

"To the Rev. Patrick Phelan,- "Bev. and dear Sir,—It was only this morning we learnt of your being immediately about to be removed from among us, with whom you have dwelt in the most affectionate and unremitting intercourse for the last sixteen years; and although the brief period intervening. between the late hour when we received intimation of our intended becavement and the time fixed for your departure precluded the possibility of any appropriate or fitting manifestation of the deepmentance of respect, admiration and reverence with which we regard you, still we cannot permit you, unrecordedly and silently, to depart in the manner desired and contemplated by your own retiring humility and modest worth.

"We seek not, Rev. and dear Sir, by any expression of the feefings, saddened and subdued, which now agitate and nearly overwhelm us, to acknowledge the vast and incalculable debt of gratitude and love we owe you; we feel and confess that your services to us have been indeed inappreciable, and above any earthly compensation or human acknowledgment. In our daily supplications to the Throne of Grace, we will implore Our Father who is in Heaven to requite your manifold services to us; and, as in the exhaustlesstreasures of His Divine Grace may alone be found your adequate remaneration, we will humbly but fervently beseach Him to repay you the untiring zeal, the boundless charity, and enduring love, so havishly expended on us, not only in our spiritual, but even in our temporal advancement.

"It would be equally vain and impossible, did we endeavor to "remanerate the happy, the blessed results and achievements of your "apostolic mission and exertions in this City and Province. In the depth of our present affliction, it is consoling to know that their reputation has been long and londly proclaimed; that it has extended beyond the limits of Canada; and that it will precede and bless you—when severed from us—in the new home of your more extended duties and exalted sphere.

"Sixteen years since you found us a divided, and now you leave to a united people. Distinguished then for our wasteful profusion and brutalizing intemperance, we are now pre-eminent for those in-