Possession of Two Hundred Acre Farm in West McGillivray in Dispute.

At the opening of the assize court this morning J. M. McEvoy, acting on behalf of Simon McLeod, defendant in an action brought by James McLeod, the father, to recover possession of a 200-acre farm, announced to the court that a settlement had been affected between the parties.

The case was called Thursday afternoon after a settlement had been arranged in the Nutter vs. Board of Education access.

cation case.

The plaintiff is father of no less than 15 children, 14 of whom, nine boys and five girls, are living.

The son, Simon, is now in possession of the McLeod homestead. The father contended that according to an agreement made he should not be there. ment made he should not be there.
According to the story, the aged parents made a three-year agreement with the son, Simon, to work the farm on shares, Simon and his wife to live on the homestead with the aged couple. Could Not Get On.

Could Not Get On.

As the father put it, they found on the first night that the two families could not get along, and they didn't. Tales reached other sons living in the surrounding district, and they called a rathering of the clan. Five attended, and a new agreement between the father and Simon was brought about. The father held that the son, Simon, was to leave the place last fall, He says, "No, he was to stay three years," and his agreement has two years to run. ears to run.
It seemed to be just a merry little disagreement. One or two of the brothers think that Simon has not treated their father right. Mr. McEvoy, counsel for the defendant, asked Gordon, another son, if the father had made a will, and on receiving an answer in the affirmative asked if they wanted to get the father, who just at that time had suffered a source paralytic stroke were tive asked if they wanted to get the father, who iust at that time had suffered a severe paralytic stroke, away from the brother's tutelage. He said he was not concerned about this at all.

Moved Around.

The aged coupie took the stand in turn. Since March last they said they had lived at six or seven different places with different sons. They seemed considerably cut up at not having their home in their possession. They said that had Simon left the farm in the fall, Edward, a single son, would have lived with them.

One of the complaints against Simon and his wife was that they frequently went away for week-end trips. The mother said that she had to carry in wood from the woodshed, while they were away. To this she objected. Her son and his wife were there to care for her and her husband in their old age, and ought to have done it right.

When the last number on the extensive program had been played last night another band had been added to the long list of London musical organizations that have reached the plane where they ceased to be mere musiclans and joined the ranks of the artists. And while the conscientious work of every member of the band entered into the esprit de corps, and all are worthy of the highest praise, their success was none the less a personal triumph for Bandmaster Pococke, under whose capable leadership and careful tuition the band has reached its present perfection.

Sharing the honors of the evening with him was his talented daughter, Miss Merlyn Pococke, whose pleasing contralto voice has frequently been heard. Last night she presented three groups of songs, and left the audience calling for a repetition at the end of each group. She was capably accompanied by Lieut. A. D. Jordan.

The audience was not large, but had the weather been a trifle more favorable the hall would undoubtedly have been well filled.

Year receipts totaled $1,432, and the disbursements were $1,332. The missionary collection totaled $198.

It was decided to grant the choir leader and organist, Miss Angus, an increase of $25 per annum. Hearty ovctes of thanks were passed to various organizations for the good work they had done. The pastor, Rev. J. Hosie, presided at he meeting, and the following board of managers was elected: Wm. Talbot (chairman), George Cairncross (secretary), M. J. McKenzie, Geo. Angus, W. J. Saul, Andrew Gunn, J. R. White, Isaac Saul and R. Headrick.

QUERIES REGARDING MILITARY SERVICE

Send in Your Problems and They Will Be Answered From Official Informacion by The Advertiser.

From humble beginnings, when instruments were scarce and players were few the band has made wonderful progress. A few months ago, even before official authority had actually been obtained, a few bandsmen were gradually gathered together at Carling Heights camp by Band-Sergt, Davies, to whom much credit is due for the solid foundation on which the instruction of the men was based. One by one from the city and district came musicians to join the "headquarters band," as it was then known, and when the 1st Depot Battalion, Western Ontario Regiment, was established here the band was made a part of the new unit.

Credit is also due Major C. O. Fairbank, staff officer, and Lieut, A. D. Jordan, and others, who, as members of the headquarters band committee, worked hard for its success, and assisted in procuring instruments. Through their efforts the services of Roselle Pococke were secured.
