Pro. Baseball in the Colleges.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Open charges that professional baseball is still played by three of the eastern colleges forming the so-called "big six" were preferred to-day by W. N. Golden, physical director of Pennsylvania State College, at the annual meeting here of the Intercollegiate Athletic Association. Mr. Golden had applied for admission to membership for his college and his application instantly raised a protest from some of the delegates that professional summer baseball is allowed by Pennsylvania State. Mr. Golden admitted that this was true, but retorted that other colleges only wink at what is openly countenanced by Pennsylvania State. "We try to be on the level and to play in the open," he said, "that's all the difference." Pennsylvania State was admitted to membership on assurance that none of the men playing summer baseball will be allowed on the track. Officers were none of the men playing summer baseball will be allowed on the track. Officers were best muzzle on sale in Toronto, there are thousands of dogs in Gilmour of Princeton being made president.
