EXPRESS MEN HURT BY PROHIBITION LAW

Higher Rates Hearing Told Provinces Going Dry Retards Business.

Ottawa, Dec. 2.—(By Can. Press.)—Altes before the railway board, d that there were certain to be decreases in business. There d be a falling off in the amount and liquor carried. Mr. Carreminded the witness that it was a the powers of the provinces to to handle liquor themselves, in case transportation would connich case transportation would con-ue. Further, there would be no adrance to shipments of liquor from ebec to British Columbia.

Carvell Matter of Fact.
McDonnell remarked that preto prohibition the express comvious to prohibition the express companies did not handle much liquor. It was moved by freight. Should there be unexpected resources, Mr. McDonnell thought these should go to the companies to offset the losses they had undergone within the last few years. Mr. Carvell said the board was concerned with present and future conditions and earnings, and not with losses in the past.

REDUCE PRICES AND INCREASE DEMAND

(Continued From Page 1). will undoubtedly depend the comwill undoubtedly depend the commerce of the province," remarked the premier, who went on to say that any student of economics realized that only defiation could follow the unwonted inflation of the past five and six years. The same factor of defiation had followed the Napoleonic wars, when hundreds in Great Britain were begrared, others had been were beggared, others had been sent period of deflation had already sent period of denation had already set in, marked by unemployment and business failures. A large portion of the world was unable to buy, its credit having been destroyed. The farmers, as everyone eise, had been struck with this factor of deflation. Neither was there any doubt that wages would come down, but not out of proportion to the decrease in the cost of living. That country which within the next three years assumed a readjustment of values by means of lowering prices would finally prevail when others which had main of lowering prices would finally prevail, when others which had maintained an impossible inflation of values faced ruin.

"Get to Rock Bottom.

"Let me assure you," said the premier, "that if you hang on to your present high-priced products now in anticipation of better values, you will finally have to sell them at any old price offering. I sincerely hope that the commercial world will not attempt to unload its losses upon other communities. I firmly believe that the salvation of the world lies in a pronounced effort of business men to lower prices and thus get down to rock bottom. We all made well during the war by very properly taking ing the war by very properly taking advantage of privileges offering to profit. I take it that well-governed enterprises have saved up considerable means. This being the situation, we can all venture safely to lower prices, thus increasing demand and making for greater employment. We are a safe and sane people. The balloon of inflation is now about to be either gradually deflated or disastrously exploded. Common sense trously exploded. Common sense tells us to gradually deflate this balloon rather than risk ruin by explo-

Mr. Blain, in proposing a vote of thanks to the premier, expressed pleasure at the size of the gathering. which was present to take instruc-tions from the premier. While one might not agree with all he had said, most of it was true in his own experience. "If we follow the advice he has given us, I do not apprehend, any financial or economic trouble," said Mr. Blain. "I may say I believe there never was a time when to perfect the desired. co-operation was more to be desired than at this moment. I feel there has been a new order of things in Ontario since the advent of things in Ontario since the advent of the new government, an order punctuated with sound advice and cautious administration."

Ask Second Large Sum . In Brantford Schools

Brantford, Ont., Dec. 2.—(Special). At a special meeting of the board of education here tonight it was decided to ask the city council to sub-mit a second school bylaw at the January elections to raise $125,000 for a new school on Terrace Hill. This will be in addition to the $185,-000 for collegiate extension, the submission of which bylaw is also requested. This makes a total of $310,-000 required for school purposes next year. It was decided to lay over for another year the rebuilding of the West Brantford School.
