THE CANADIAN CLUB.

The Canadian Club and the Women's Canadian Club of St. John last evening heard messages from the founder of the first Canadian Club. There is none so well qualified as Lieut. Col. Charles H. McCullough to interpret the spirit of the Canadian Club movement, and his interpretation is a challenge to what is finest in the patriotic fibre of every man and woman in Canada. He would have the people of the various provinces from coast to coast know each other better, have a better knowledge of each other's point of view, and approach every question with careful regard to its relation to the welfare of the Dominion as a whole. He sees in the work of the fathers of confederation an inspiration and an example which might well challenge the attention of the world at large; while Canadians especially should apply to all present day problems the principles of unity and concord which made confederation not only possible but a great accomplished fact. That was a very significant remark which Col. McCullough uttered when he said:—

"We want no superior race in Canada, but we do want a superior race of Canadians."

There is here no room for racial jealousies, nor should there be any misunderstandings based on ignorance. Two great races are represented in this country, and it is the duty of each to try to understand and appreciate the other, and to pay tribute to its contribution to the national life. Only through intelligent understanding and a desire for what is best for all Canada may concord be established. It is the hope of the founder of the first Canadian Club that this movement may make for harmony between provinces and peoples. So long as it moves along the lines he outlined last evening his hope will be justified. Its aim is to foster patriotism, and this it has done and is doing.

It will perhaps be regarded as a tribute to the Canadian Club that it has incurred the displeasure of Mr. Lindsay Crawford, who in the last issue of his pamphlet, "The Statesman," wants to know if "the Canadian Club organization is to be regarded as wholly given over to Imperialistic propaganda," and goes on as follows:—

"What is the secret agency that is converting our Canadian Clubs into another Round Table movement for the disruption of Canada and the fomenting of ill-will between this country and the United States? Is this part of the programme of Sir Auckland Geddes, for interpreting Imperialism to Republican America? The original purpose of the Canadian Club was wholly different. Since the war these Clubs are entirely controlled, in the choice of speakers, by English propagandists."

One of the crimes of the Toronto Canadian Club was, in the Statesman's view, that it listened to Dr. Paul Sherry of Chicago University, who, among other things, said:—

"The last hope of sanity and civilization is at least the minimum of friendship between the United States and the British Empire. We in America are united to Britain by community of law, language, literature, ambitions and high ideals. If we cannot develop with the British we cannot with any others. The British nation has ever been an instrument for good. Eventually it always has managed to do what no other nation has accomplished—educate its children up to the best principles of enlightened self-government."

Most of us will be disposed to agree that if the Canadian Club of Toronto did nothing worse than listen to the expression of these sentiments by an American professor there is no ground for censure. As to the charge addressed the Canadian Clubs are "controlled in the choice of speakers by English propagandists," this will certainly be news to all of them. It is not so very long since an eloquent French-Canadian addressed the St. John club, which has also been endeavoring for some time to induce Premier Taschereau of Quebec to visit this city. And last night's speaker declares that every drop of his blood is Irish. But he is also, like Premier Taschereau of Quebec, a Canadian, a believer in an united Canada, in the Empire, and in the most cordial relations between the Empire and the United States. So far as the Canadian Club may be a propagandist, it will never be open to the charge of a desire to disrupt Canada or the Empire, or cause strained relations with our great neighbor to the south. It is Canadian through and through, and its founder made a very notable contribution to the national life when he launched the movement on its way.

SCHOOL FINANCES.

The present is a very good time to consider the relations between the school board and the city council. The latter objects to the system by which it must assess without power to control the expenditures. As a matter of fact, there is now going on in the city of New York an agitation to make the board of education entirely free from the city council, as is the case in the cities of Pennsylvania. At a Federal Citizens' Conference on Education in New York a few days ago, the question of control of school finances was discussed at great length, and the Evening Post says if the conference had done nothing else it would have amply justified itself. In New York the board of education must depend upon the civic authorities. Regarding the discussion, the Evening Post says:—

"Judge Dimmer Beeber, a member of the Philadelphia board of education, told the Controller Craig's attack on the city school authorities with a careful statement of why Philadelphia had discarded a plan similar to that in operation here, and incidentally revealed clearly the conditions that have forced the educational authorities in New York to do as they do. Judge Beeber's story of what used to happen year after year in Philadelphia is one that sounds only too familiar to the people of New York City. The city council, which held the purse-strings for education in Philadelphia, would regularly cut the school budget below the lowest workable minimum, slashing repair estimates from $850,000 to $80,000, for example, with the result that the school buildings got into an intolerable condition. Frequently they tacked on to the school board's appropriations a provision compelling the school authorities to buy a piece of property they did not want or pay an increased salary to a particular janitor or teacher who happened to have friends in the city government. The upshot was that when the new school code went into effect in Pennsylvania the power to raise the money for school purposes was taken from the city authorities and placed in the board of education, where it remains. The school board levies and collects the tax, which under present state law must not be less than six mills and not more than eight mills, quite without reference to the needs of the city government, and spends the proceeds for the schools."

It will be observed that under the Pennsylvania law there is a limit to what the school authorities may assess for, but within that limit they are independent. The Evening Post observes:—

"Many friends of good government will regret the deliberate separation of school and city affairs here involved, but everywhere the public seems determined to 'keep the schools out of politics,' even if this means complete financial independence for the school board and the sacrifice of a certain amount of very desirable municipal initiative and control."

The plan of giving the school board full authority ought to carry with it some sort of assurance that the members of the board would be chosen from among the most progressive and enlightened citizens, and that no man or woman would be appointed for any other reason. The St. John school board has challenged public attention by the attitude of a number of its members toward vocational training and for other causes. The present is a good time to bring the whole question under review, looking to a result that would end all disagreements between the board and the city council, and between the board and the citizens who desire what is best for the cause of education in this city.

THE EVENING CLASSES.

The vocational evening classes in this city have been closed. Whether they will be opened again depends upon the city council. The vocational board says it has no choice, and that there are not funds enough to carry on to the end of the term. Some four hundred and fifty students are compelled to end their studies in the middle of the term. In other parts of the province the cause of vocational training has suffered a severe blow through the action of St. John, the chief industrial centre.

Of course this is not the end. Public opinion will not permit the city to be thus advertised as an unprogressive community. The students in the evening classes have been asked to express their views and are doing it. The replies to the questionnaire sent to them are unanimous in saying that benefit has been and is being derived and the classes should be continued. The citizens look to the city council to reverse its decision and give its support to the cause of vocational training. The evening classes must be resumed.

IN NO MAN'S LAND

Ottawa, Feb. 15.—Three of the four seats designated as "No Man's Land" were occupied when the house assembled this afternoon. Major G. Andrews, Centre Winnipeg, who last session was the sole occupant, was again sitting in his old place. W. A. Buchanan, Lethbridge, and L. G. Gauthier, St. Hyacinthe, were the other two members occupying seats between the Liberal opposition and the progressives.

New Italian Loan.

London, Feb. 15.—A loan of five billion lire in five per cent bonds was authorized by a decree issued by the Italian government yesterday, says a Rome despatch to the Central News. The proceeds will be devoted to sections devastated in the war.

"BUT WE ARE"

(Grace Angas Timmerman in New York Times.)

Americans we were, a little group Around a table in a festive room, Conversing lightly on a fruitful theme— Our country; and as little logical As patients of other lands, who boast Each of his own. (A mother on her babe.) Or lover on his sweetheart newly won. May turn more often a discerning eye.) The name of our good neighbor, Canada, Came into our discussion, and I heard A woman say, "I find Canadians Too egotistical! They think themselves The best, and bravest, and most eminent In all achievement, most intelligent, And altogether greatest of the race In all the world!" Indulgently I said:—"Can we condemn them? Do not think we ourselves, 'The best' of ourselves!" In quick surprise, Her look rebuked me. "But we are!" she said.

IN LIGHTER VEIN.

"Charles," said a sharp voiced woman to her husband in the smoking compartment, do you know that you and I once had a romance in a train?" "Never heard of it," replied Charles in a subdued tone. "I thought you hadn't, but don't you remember it was a pair of slippers I presented to you? Christmas Eve, when we were married that led to our union? You remember how nicely they fitted, don't you? Well, Charles, one day when we were going to a picnic you had your feet upon a seat, and when you weren't looking I took your measure. But for that pair of slippers I don't believe we ever been married."

A young unmarried man, sitting near school authorities to buy a piece of property they did not want or pay an increased salary to a particular janitor or teacher who happened to have friends in the city government. The upshot was that when the new school code went into effect in Pennsylvania the power to raise the money for school purposes was taken from the city authorities and placed in the board of education, where it remains. The school board levies and collects the tax, which under present state law must not be less than six mills and not more than eight mills, quite without reference to the needs of the city government, and spends the proceeds for the schools."

"Why, I thought I told you—" "Yes, I told him," he replied, "but he says it's a question of life and death." So he went down stairs and found an insurance agent.

The minister was expostulating with the landlord, who had raised the poor parishioners' rent about 318 per cent. "If I want to hear you preach," said the landlord, angrily, "I'll come to church, where you should do your preaching."

"If you were where you should be," was the reply, "you would have that opportunity next Sunday. An angel to preach at Sing Sing."

Divide the Pot.

A wager added zest at a charity drive luncheon to speculation as to what figure would be reached by the day's subscriptions. A group of committee chairmen seated at one of the tables on the platform, each had jotted down on a piece of paper his personal estimate. Also each had contributed 25 cents for the pot to go to the man making the nearest guess. Along the table, gathering up the emptied dishes, came a waiter. A black hand reached past and fingers schooled in tip-taking cleared the saucer of the assembled company. "Thank you, sir, thank you," said the owner of the pocket into whose ample folds the quarter dollar slipped. The president of the Club of Commerce rose to the occasion, but, catching the humor of the situation, he effected a compromise whereby the negro waiter and the winner divided the pot between them.

A GOOD YEAR AT ROCKWOOD IS REPORTED

May be Limited Privileges for Automobiles

Plan for Widening Some of the Roads in Park—Financial and Other Matters at the Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Horticultural Association was held this afternoon at the Rockwood Hotel.

The report of the managing committee was as follows:—

During the last twelve months the new pavilion has been found to be very successful in both summer and winter seasons, in summer in connection with boating, picnicking and other parties, and in winter by its use by skaters, occasional dancing parties and by tobogganers. The new toboggan slide erected near Lily Lake by Joseph Icho has been much patronized. By his installation, also, of an electric motor and powerful water pump he has furnished opportunities for skating far in excess of what would have ordinarily been enjoyed by motor cars. A bone crusher has been purchased with which the large green bones are made useful.

A number of young ladies living near the public gardens were very active, under the name of Rockwood Comfort Association, during the year in providing comforts for the men serving their country overseas. Seven of the men living in Wright street and its immediate vicinity gave their lives in the war and to perpetuate their memory the young ladies of the club ask permission to erect in the Public Gardens a monument to design for which they submit. It is suggested that if permission be given that it be subject to the approval of a committee appointed by the association as to design, inscription and location. The ice cutting privilege, which has been in existence for some years at $750 a year, having expired, a renewal was given for the present season only at $1,000. A request has been received from the ice company for the renewal of the ice cutting privilege and for a lease of a piece of land adjoining their present ice house for an extension thereof. It is recommended that it be referred to a committee to make a new lease at such $1,000 for a period not exceeding five years, subject to conditions somewhat similar to the lease lately in force and with power to give a lease of such additional land on such terms as may be mutually satisfactory.

A large number of angling trout were received from the Department of Marine and Fisheries and were placed in the waters of the association. The accounts of the honorary treasurer, which will be submitted, will be found most satisfactory. During the year 1919 it became necessary to ask the Bank of Nova Scotia for a considerable increase in the overdraft, which was kindly permitted on the understanding that the excess should be paid back during the then next and now past year. The overdraft was accordingly increased from $1,000 to $1,050, happily reduced this year by $1,050.02, thus nearly accomplishing the undertaking entered into.

Respectfully submitted, J. R. ARMSTRONG, H. N. STEINSON, A. D. GANDY, Managing Committee. St. John, N. B., 16th Feb., 1921. St. John Horticultural Association.
