e Eccentric Physician's Body Burne in His Own Furnace at Washington

The burning of the body of the modern ostle of cremation, Dr. Julius Le yne, was done in the furnace on Gal-es Hill at Washington, Pa. The event eated very little excitement, as it had en anticipated, and since the several nations in the place, the novelty has n off. The Le Moyne family, some whom are reported to be as greatly posed to cremation as the most orthoc, made every effort to have the cere ony performed without any display, in hich they to a large extent succeeded re was one departure from the usual as preceded with religious services e were held in the Le Moyne home ad, and were conducted by the Rev orge P.
