VERY HARSH CRITICISM OF THE PEOPLE OF BERLIN

The City Described as an Overgrown Village Where the People
Are Dowdy — German Commercial Expansion in Morocco.

BERLIN, June 15.—Dr. Ernest Hanfstaengl, writing in his new weekly review, the "Berliner", declares that Berlin in spite of its position as the capital of a great empire, and notwithstanding the great number of intellectual leaders, artists, authors and merchants included among its inhabitants, is really nothing more than a large village.

The writer comes to this conclusion after a careful study of London, New York and Paris, which he undertook for the purpose of being able to compare these three cities with the German capital. He criticises the manners and customs of the Berliners with merciless severity, and cites a number of examples to illustrate their primitive simplicity in many respects.

Having occasion to confer on business with a great German manufacturer who employs several thousand hands, the writer found that this industrial leader wore no collar, tie, cuffs, but enveloped himself in a coarse woollen garment instead of a shirt. He was wearing the cheapest possible kind of boots and he was smoking a half penny cigar.

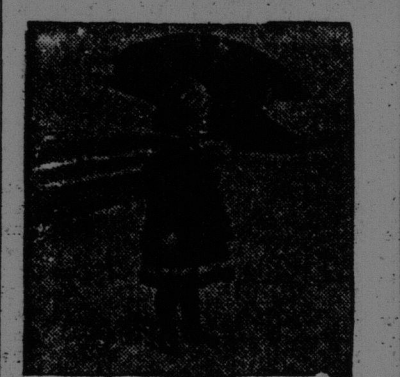

On the following day the writer paid a visit to a great German scientist and found that the celebrated scholar had an unwashed neck, unclean hands, the manners of a hooligan and a voice like the sound of the Baskervilles.

Investigating the various features of eight life in Berlin the writer found that Germans of good social standing whom he met at different pleasure resorts showed an unaccountable desire to introduce themselves to him after one or two minutes' acquaintance, never forgetting to communicate to him their names, titles and dignities in full. Going into society the writer found that the Berlin ladies were as a rule dressed like kitchen maids on a rainy winter Sunday, and that apart from their appalling habits of dress they were hopelessly unintelligent and uninteresting.

Turning his investigations among other classes of Berlin population the writer found that shopkeepers, waiters and workmen were as a rule far less polite than their like in London, Paris and New York. These and many other conclusions led the writer to declare some successful, contracts will, it is expected, at once be given out for the construction of more vessels.

The Kaiser will participate in the manoeuvres of the "High Sea Fleet" in the North Sea, in the first week of September. Unusually comprehensive preparations are afoot.
Herr Hauser, of Oberdorf, in Wurttemberg, the well known inventor has just designed an improved mechanism for his repeating rifle. The new repeater works automatically; as soon as a shot is fired, the gun loads itself from the cartridge chamber. Herr Mauser claims that his new rifle is bound to be utilized by all modern armies and there is certainly every probability of its being adopted by the German army.

HIS WIFE, THE LITTLE EMPEROR OF RUSSIA

ST. PETERSBURG, June 15.—This snap-shot of the little Czarovitch of Russia, only son of the Czar and Czarina, and heir to the throne of Russia, was taken aboard the imperial yacht Standard by the mother of the little prince. It shows the Czar's son to be a healthy and intelligent looking little chap, the expression of whose face seems to prove that he has inherited some of the melancholy temperament of his father.

ST. JOHN BOY FROM CALGARY

J. A. Orscoli Spilling Lots in That Progressive Western City

J. A. Orscoli is a former St. John boy who comes from the throbbing city of Calgary in Alberta. To his friends here with a bonafide land-selling proposition that looks particularly good. He has opened an office in the R. E. T. Pringle store, corner William street, and since his arrival has been doing a brisk business.
Calgary is a city with which a great many St. John people are familiar. Pretty nearly everybody knows of its phenomenal advancement, and a large number of New Brunswick families have some members located there. The two most progressive cities out west, according to bank dealings and other statistics, are Vancouver and Calgary, the latter showing a greater percentage of advancement by a good wide margin; indeed its percentage is thirty points higher than that of any city in America.
Mr. Orscoli is offering his Calgary lots does so under a written guarantee from the City Clerk of Calgary, Mr. H. E. Gillis. He has other valuable credentials.

CHINESE REBELS LOOT CHRISTIAN MISSIONS

Movement to Overthrow Present Government is Growing in Two Provinces

HONG KONG, June 15.—The revolutionary movement in the provinces of Kiangsi and Kwangtung has assumed serious dimensions.

The rebels have destroyed various European missions in the vicinity of Kienchow, but the German and British missionaries are safe at Swatow. According to an official report from Swatow, the rebels have secured a quantity of arms and ammunition. All towns and villages in the disaffected provinces are being visited by revolutionaries who urge the people to rise and overthrow the present government.

Although the revolutionaries have issued a proclamation of proclamation, the intention of harming Europeans, it is feared that the movement may assume later a distinctly anti-foreign character.

The Viceroy Shun has sent 1,200 native soldiers to Swatow to reinforce the local garrison and the police. Two Chinese gunboats are also being dispatched, and the authorities at Swatow have been ordered to disarm all suspicious persons.

Representatives of the European power have warned the Chinese officials of the necessity of protecting foreigners.

The rebels declare that they will kill all government officials and destroy all official property.

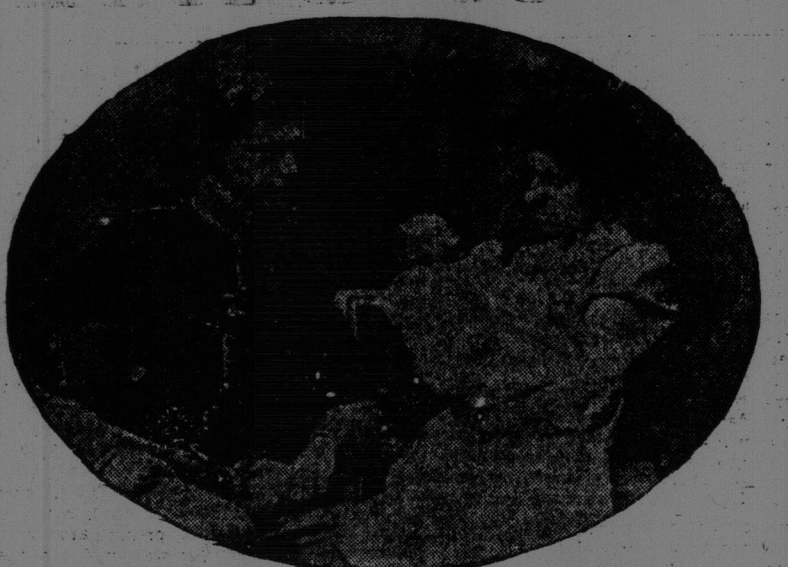

BOY INSISTS ON SEEING HIS ARM AMPUTATED

Says the "Interesting Sight" Repaid Him for All the Pain He Suffered.

VIENNA, June 15.—Josef Tuck, a 14 year-old schoolboy, was presented yesterday with a watch by the well-known surgeon, Professor Baron von Eiseler, for remarkable courage during an operation.

The boy's arm had to be amputated but he refused to have an anesthetic as he declared he wanted to watch the operation.
He was so insistent, and promised so solemnly not to mind the pain, that a professor let him have his way. He did not shrink or utter a sound during the course of the amputation, which he watched with the greatest attention, and at the end stated that the interesting sight was well worth the pain.

ANOTHER ROYAL COUPLE WHO HAVE A BRAND NEW SON

BERLIN, June 15.—Almost on the same day when an heir was born to King Alfonso of Spain, the son of Alfonso's sister, Princess Ferdinand Maria, of Bavaria, was christened at Munich.
The Princess, who was born November 12, 1882, married in January, 1906, and is here shown with her husband, and holding in her arms her son and heir. The photograph shows how strongly she resembles her brother, the King of Spain.

SCOTLAND'S OLDEST CITIZEN

IS A DEVOUT CHRISTIAN.

Archibald MacCrimmon, Aged 108, Has His Record Read in

Kirk—Steel Combine Has Advanced Prices Five

Shillings per Ton.

GLASGOW, June 15.—When the other evening the Free Church of Scotland, otherwise the "Wee Free," resumed their general assembly in Edinburgh, members were cheered by an announcement that a vest of Scotland minister was able to make. This was nothing less than that one of the members of the Church was a centenarian, and had communicated for the first time when he was 107 years of age. The veteran who is believed to be the oldest Scotchman alive, is named Archibald MacCrimmon, of Snirtort, in the island of Skye.

The Rev. John Macleod, of Glasgow, told the assembly that during a big portion of his life MacCrimmon had not been religiously inclined, but nothing more could be said against him than that during the long winter evenings of the misty Isle of Skye, working as a tailor, he had gathered round him in his workshop, the youth of the district and told them great stories of the evil deeds of Black Donald, an inveterate character who was credited with having been engaged in exploits which the Church in the Highlands could not countenance. MacCrimmon, however, had repented of his shortcomings and there was great jubilation that the old man had cast in his lot with the faithful remnant even though it was at the 108th year of his age.

It was also mentioned by Mr. Macleod that he had seen some twenty-nine years ago in Skye, Donald Macleod, a Free Church catechist in the island who, died at the age of 109. These instances of longevity showed that Skye was a very healthy place indeed. There was great cheer of ministers there and he strongly recommended the island to brethren of the cloth who wished to live long and remain strong and healthy.

Apparently because some people in the name of Scotland put for the first legislation proposals for the Taxation of Land Values in Scotland is to be the medium of determining whether urban land can be efficiently and equitably valued apart from the subjects of it. Mr. Henry Campbell-Bannerman is authority for the statement that the solution of the urban problem can be found in a measure for the separate valuation of land apart from the buildings and improvements with a view to the rearrangement of the rating system in urban areas. Mr. Winston Churchill himself thinks that reform needs only "one bold stroke." In that case the Land Valuation Bill introduced into the House of Commons by the Lord Advocate must be regarded as merely a preliminary feat.

The system of values by annual rental as at present carried on in Scotland is tolerably well understood. It is said to work very well upon the whole, but the numerous appeals against the valuations of the assessors every year show that it does not work so harmoniously as many statesmen are accustomed to assume.

Speaking of the subject of steel the Glasgow Herald says editorially:—

"The fact that the Association of Scotch Steelmakers—commonly though not correctly called the Steel Combine—have just raised the minimum prices of manufactured steel by five shillings per ton is a sign of the times. It is now apparent that shipbuilders cannot make any attractive offers to ship owners who may be contemplating additions to their fleets. And perhaps those with vessels in commission, for which they have difficulty in finding remunerative employment may be inclined to think that this is a good thing—for them. But it is not a good thing for our leading steel industries. The advance in steel, however, is justified by the high price to which pig iron has once more returned. Last year it was the complaint of steel and iron manufacturers that they could not obtain for their finished products prices to compensate them sufficiently for the high rates they had to pay for their raw material; while smelters on their part contended that owing to the security and dearth of iron and the current prices of fuel they required all they were able to get for pig iron. Nevertheless it is known that the high level to which pig iron was raised last year was mainly due to the abnormal American and the increased demand. The American demand was supposed to be entirely due to the large American consumption, but recent figures have shown that it was also to a considerable extent due to the increased exports of iron and steel manufactures from the United States. Last year it paid America to consume her own pig iron for her own enormous requirements in finished iron and steel.

and to import Scotch and Cleveland pig iron for the purpose of making material for export.

"After the turn of the present year the end of the boom seemed to be in sight—at all events there was a prospect of slowing down. A number of influences at work served to depress our market for pig iron so that Cleveland warrants—now the leading item of the market—which has been as high as 68s. had reached the limit of their capital figure. It was supposed for one thing that the American railway companies had reached the limit of their capital expenditure for the time being on extension and equipment, and that their outlays during the present year would be comparatively, perhaps even compulsorily moderate.
