Provincial Rifle Association Matches Began This Week in Fair Weather.

The Association and Provincial Matches Were Shot - The Leaders in the Grand Aggregate.

SUSSEX, Aug. 13.—The Provincial Rifle Association matches began here today. The day opened very darkly with a heavy drizzle falling, but about nine-thirty o'clock a slight breeze from the north drove the fog off the range, making fair shooting weather. The attendance is below last year's. The following is a list of the winners in the matches shot off today:

Nursery, range 500 yards, 7 shots-Pte. Langstroth, 74th; Capt. W. H. Fairweather, 8th Hussars; Capt. Mersereau, 73rd, tie for cup and money prize, 32 each.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.-It leaked out here today, says the Interocean that one of the Chicago banks was recently swindled out of $30,000 in cash in a skillful manner. An effort is being made to keep the matter secret, and not even the name of the bank is given. It seems that a depositor of several years standing appeared a few days ago in the bank president's of-fice with a draft of London for £6,000 which was perfectly good. The de-positor informed the president he de-sired to deposit this London draft, and at the same time to check against it, presenting his check for $30,000 for the president to OK. The latter put his nitials on it and thought nothing of it. The depositor then went out into the bank and deposited his London draft and on the following day presented a check for $30,000, which was paid, the teller knowing that amount was pan, the teller knowing that amount was to his credit on the books. Later in the day he again appeared at the window and presented the check for $30,000 which had been initialed by the president. This check was also paid. Nothing more has since been seen of the de-

> POTSDAM, August 13.—The remains of the Dowager Empress Frederick were interred today beside those of her husband, in the mausoleum of Friedenskirche, near Potsdam. LONDON, August 13,-A memorial service was held today in the Chapel Royal, St. James palace, simultaneous ly with the funeral of the Dowager Empress Frederick at Potsdam. Among those present were the Duke and ess of Argyl, Lord Salisbury, the United States ambassador, Mr. Choate, Sir William Vernon Harcourt and Lady Harcourt, Lord and Lady Wolseley, Lord Lansdowne, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain, A. J. Balfour and nany members of the diplomatic corps. After the opening sentences of the services were chanted a royal salute was fired in St. James park, followed by firing of sixty minute guns. POTSDAM, Aug. 13.—Between 8 and 9 o'clock this morning the bells of the churches in Potsdam were tolled, with other members of the imperial family and the visiting princes assembled in the royal hall at the Wind Park railroad station. The high court officials, military dignitaries, Count Von Buelow, and other members of the cabinet, Knights of the Black Eagle and the members of the reichstag assem-bled at 10.25 o'clock in an adjacent hall. Soon aften ten o'clock the special train ordered by the emperor to bring the invited guests from Berlin reached Wild Park station. Among the guests the foreign ambassadors made a striking figure, wearing their highest official uniforms. The United States ammassador, Andrew D. White, however, was attired in simple black. At 10.30 the signal was given that the funeral train was approaching. Conversation, which had hitherto been carried on in suppressed tones, entirely ceased, and an air of great solemnity possessed the company. The train rolled in slowly and noiselessly. Twenty non-commissioned officers of the Dowager Empress Hussar regiment, No. 2 came forward and bore the coffin to the royal hearse, which had in the meanwhile arrived from the new palace. Chamberlains and courtiers with royal insignia participated in the transfer of the coffin from the funeral car to the Slowly and solemnly the procession formed. Eight staff officers seized the reins of the eight splendid black horses attached to the hearse and four Knights of the Black Eagle took hold of the points of the pall cloth, while twelve royal chamberlains held the sup-ports of the canopy covering the hearse and four other courtiers held the cords from the corners. Flanking these to the right and left were two staff officers and twelve captains. The procession formed in the shady avenue extending from Wild Park to the new palace. The public had the only opportunity to see the procession, but got only the slightest view of it, although immense crowds had assembled upon the streets intersecting the road at right angles, and the people strained their necks to get a glimpse of the cortege.

tree-arched avenue to the new palace, and then through the park to the Sans Souci garden, all of which were closed rigidly against the public, though a few newspaper men were admitted by card. When the procession started the bells in the Friedenskirche (Church of Peace) began tolling and all other bells in Potsdam joined in. When the procession reached the mausoleum adjacent to the Friedenskirche, all those in the procession in advance of the hearse took up positions opposite the church. When the coffin was borne across the hreshold of the mausoleum, the cathedral choir from Berlin intoned solemn strophe. Only the emperor and empress, the other members of the im-perial family, King Edward, Queen Alexandra and the other members of the British royal party and the princes of the highest rank entered the mauso-leum, which is small, Dr. Persius, the chaplain, offered a prayer, after which the choir again sang. When their majesties left the mausoleum the proession dissolved. The empress, Queen Alexandra and the other ladies went in carriages direct from Wildwood to

ST. MARTINS

From the Standpoint of the Tourist. A correspondent writes: St. Martins, on the shore of the restless shimmering bay. What a place for tired brains and tired bodies to recuperate and win back old time energy that has been spent with perhaps too much prodigality. Dame nature here seems to have striven to give a sea coast most varied and picturesque sandy stretches being alternated with rocky cliffs and bold headlands. Just in front of the town is a semi-circular bay with a smooth shingly flanked on the east by a commodious harbor over which on the farther side seem to stand guard high beetling cliffs, at whose base nightly shines the red harbor light, and on the west by Quaco Head, with its excellent flash light, which seamen say is the best on the coast. Here is also the peculiar shaped cliff called Anvil Rock. On the "Head" is also placed a fog horn, whose roar is in evidence when the phere becomes misty or charged with fog so as to render the headland uncertain or invisible to the mariner on the deep. This horn seems to be a tireless and eternal protest against fog, and yet the drowned seamen's graves that have accumulated as the years have gone by—no device of man having yet succeeded in even measurably safeguarding this dangerous place. But we find ourselves out to sea. We began to write about St. Martins. Before leaving the shore, cluding a model of the Shamrock II., has been the first to discover each giving the tourist the feeling that he several one. In the town is just enough traffic to make you feel that you are not out of the world where men buy and sell and get gain, but not enough to impede your progress or disturb your meditation as you meander whither you will. The people are all sociable, and after they have assured themselves that you are what you seem to be, they will proceed in their own delightful way to take you in. I do not know that ane one was ever homesick or melancholy in St. Martins.

By far the most conspicuous object in the town is the building once known as St. Martins Seminary. It stands on a slight but commanding em overlooking the town and bay, and is indeed beautiful for situation, and was once the joy of the place, if not of the whole province. Its history is too well known to call for more than a passing notice here. It stands now for vanished hopes and a constant puzzle to those who aspire to be prophets. Un-less utilized in some way so that the ravages of time shall be arrested it will soon become a pile of ruins. It is yet, however, an object of interest to the tourist. It is at present in the care of the genial and breezy A. W. be glad to take you in, giving you such fare and such care that, with the varied and ever-changing scenery on which your eyes will be permitted to feast, you soul will dwell at ease. No more delightful place in which one could spend a few weeks for rest could well be found than in this old Seminary building at St. Martins.

which he has not attended, and he owns some very fast horses, two of them, Romp and Belmont, winning first and second money in last Friday's races. The provincial turf loses one of its greatest enthusiasts with Mr. Leaman's death. The deceased was a native of Butternut Ridge, New Brunswick, but removed at an early age. He leaves a widow. The remains will be taken to Moncton on Thursday are narrow; not they. It is their lives that are real; not ours.

"It is the essence of the lives that are lived in the country that we need so much in our lives; the essence of simplicity, of sincerity, of freedom from things which are external and not worth while. We cannot, of course, live in the city and live as do country folk. What we can do, however, is to go to the country in the summer time and live with them and extract some of the wholesome lessions of simple living which their lives can teach us. The love of nature is implanted in all of us to a more or less degree; the crime to ourselves is that we give it so little chance of development or expression. And the crime is doubld when he withholds the expression of nature's workings in our children."
