are crossing the Allantic in two steamers for the Source of Trans. The Board of Trade buttresses of the bridge and was disabled, preventing her from following the race to a finish. The weather was brilliant and most favorable for the race. The tide was fast in right direction and, the wind was very light. There was not even a ripple on the water. The crowd that witnessed the race was the greatest that ever gathered along the Thames course. Teemer rowing 3 strokes to the minute was the quickest at starting, but Boach, pulling a 8 stroke, caught up with him dollars of I had it. The crowd that length. At Waldan's Beach had increased his lead to two lengths. Teemer here spurted with the utmost gameness, but without avail. Beach without avail. Beach, without nover any long the race of his stroke, kept his advantage and at Hammersmith Bridge was four lengths in advantage. Teemer was then rowing a hopeless race, though still working pluckly to lesson the distance between him and the Australian. From this point Beach at most paddled home. Winning, with ease the first of the stroke had increased his lead to be the greatest suiter that has been seen in England. He looked today as though he could row ten miles at racing speed. The betting on Beach at the start was 2 to 1, but this was increased when the rowers reached Hammersmith Bridge to 20 to 1.

The fresh nor wester on Tuesday had a tenency to concentrate the crews and visitors of he smaller yachts on the larger ones. A large the smaller yachts on the larger ones. A large number of ladies and gentlemen (upwards of 80) turned out for the occasion, and certainly if a grand breeze and yachts able to stand up to it can give enjoyment, the guests got what they sought. The Oriole led the fleet, followed by the Afleen, Rivet, Cygnet and Yolande. The Oriole and Aileen started with full lower can vas, the Rivet, Cygnet and Yolande being reefed. As the puffs came down pretty heavy at times and sent the rails of the small yachts under, they were rather astonished to see the Oriole stand up like a church, and then deliberately set both her main and fore gafftopsails. Under the effect of these she began to draw away from the Aileen and the rest of the fleet. The Aileen in carrying away her jib out hail made a diversion for a little while for repairs, which caused her to fall a long way behind. What the Oriole will do when she comes to a five mile thrash to windward alongside of the Aileen cannot be told yet, but she has shown herself to be a staunch and fast boat so far as can yet be seen. can yet be seen. Members of the club seem at last to be awaking to the fact that the club is a yachting club, and that they should accept the courtesy tendered by yachtismen to them on Tuesday afternoons. The Esperanza had more guests that she could carry on the return trip from the yachts. On Saturday next this club will hold the annual race for the Lorne cup, start to be from the Club House at 1.30. On Tuesday next, Sept. 7, being the anniversary of the visitof the Prince of Wales, the race for the Frince's cup will take place, start at 10.30. The club on both days will be thrown open to lady visitors.
