

fighting not only against the man made laws of Capitalism, but against all the laws of economics. So long as their labor-power remains a commodity they cannot better their condition. So long as they allow the capitalists' claim to the resources of the earth and the machinery of production, slaves they must remain and as slaves they must expect to be treated. Their only hope lies in their emancipation from slavery and they alone can achieve that emancipation.

