Poetry.

THE LUXURY OF LUXURIES.

Go thou and wipe away the tear That dims the widow's eye, Be a father to the fatherless,
And still the orphan's sigh;
Help thou thy brother in distress,
With open hand and heart;
But do thou this when seen by none, Save him who dwells apart.

that it is almost impossible to break a piece of it. We are told by a person who used it, that it does not crack, and that its durability almost exceeds belief. The sample brought in here was immediately bought up, and we make little doubt the article will have a rapid demand.

Appos of leather, Mr. Dangerfield has exhibited some very beautiful specimens of ladies' and gentlemen's shoes and boots, made in a way that great ladies Dangerfield can come up to.

A stand which excited a great deal of attention, was the one containing specimens of soap and candles from the factory of Mr. Mathewson. It is evident that Canadians have nothing to learn in that way from other countries, and that (whatever we may want in other respects) we are able to "hitch our own ways."

In speaking of hardware, too, we ought to have mentioned the numerous samples of stoves sent in by Mr. Ladd, who took the first prize for a cooking stove. Mr.

L. also exhibited a portable grill mill, which attracted a great deal of attention, and some very capital specimens of castings.

A beautiful old country plough, made by Mr. Deak, took the first prize. These were also some good ploughs from the Upper Province, one of which took the second prize.

Among other articles which attracted a good deal of attention, we ought not to omit some very beautiful specimens of needle work. Two pieces in worsted, by Mrs. Bennett, of Beaufort, to which the first prize was awarded, were truly wonderful for the effect produced; and the same may be said of a kind in worsted, worked by one of the sears de la congré-gation. There was also a worked shawl at the upper end of the room, and which we understand came from Gabriel street, Jamaica's establishment, which was very beautiful.

In the way of the fine arts, two speci- mens are particularly deserving of notice —viz. a child's head and the head of the Catholic Bishop of Montreal, both done in marble by Boudet of this city. They are excellently finished, and indicate a preparation in this branch we were not prepared for.

We understand that the Judges have recommended a number of articles to be sent home; and it is also generally sug-<
