SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

You give a woman $10 and then bor-row 72 cents from her and see what will happen. Two days later you casu-ally inquire what has become of the $10. She tells you she has not had $10. You waive the question whether she ever had $10 and ask her if she has $10 now, and finally get a reluctant admission that she is penniless. Then admission that she is penniless. Then you follow up the inquiry and discover that she has bought nothing. Then you are ready with the final charge, "What, then, did you do with the $10?" and that blessed woman will come back at you like this, "You gave me $10 and then borrowed it back." That is the way your 72 cents becomes a boomerang that smashes you and your $10 to smithercens. And yet, in spite of all, that same woman will hang on to 35. that same woman will hang on to 9$ cents and get more out of it and make it do more things and spread it round over more clothes and keep it simmering like a bubbling spring—in short, take her all in all, a woman is the master financier of the world.

Chinese Dialects. "It is absolutely impossible," writes a traveler recently returned from a traveler recently returned from a tour of China, "to conceive of a nation speaking as many dialects as you will find in China. A foreigner's ability to speak Chinese is a practically worthless acquirement, as about every twenty-five miles the dialect changes to such an extent as to be practically another language, and even if you are speaking the best mandarin—the court language—you are quite apt to be told that your honorable foreign language is not understood. Even the governors of the provinces have to employ inter-preters to communicate with the people they govern.

"It is a common joke among foreigners in China that the natives always indicate by signs what they intend to converse about before beginning to talk, and this is a joke with quite a grain of truth in it."

English Settles.
The "genuine English settles" often offered in shops are viewed with discretion by travelers who have seen such belongings in old English farm-houses. On their native heath they are of solid eak, fully five feet high and running quite across the great kitchens. They are black with time and are apt to be well seasoned with ham fat. The duty of the settle is fourfold. It is the family seat, and, as the bench part can be raised, in the drawers beneath are kept the family rags for weaving. Above the seat is the family hat rack. The upright is double, and in the races thus formed the control of the races thus formed the control. in the recess thus formed the family bacon is hung, doors opening from be-hind into this cupboard. The daints, affairs we know as English settles are toys compared to the actual thing.
