DEATH AT FRANKVILLE

There passed away at his residence two miles east of Frankville, at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Mr. Samuel Hanton, one of Kitley's well known and highly respected citizens. He had been a sufferer for some time with cancer. Last fall he underwent an operation at the Brockville General Hospital.

Deceased was born on the farm where he died 62 years ago and with the exception of a few years spent in the Southwestern States has always lived in this vicinity. He was a veteran of the Fenian Raid of 1870, serving with old No. 3 company, 41st Battalion, Prescott and Cornwall. The company at that time was one of the finest with headquarters in Frankville. Mr. Hanton was also a justice of the peace, being appointed by the Whitney Government. He was secretary-treasurer of the school board for the last 17 years. He was a Conservative in politics and a member of the Anglican church, where the funeral was held.

Besides his sorrowing widow he leaves to mourn his loss two sons, W. M. and Mer-dith, who reside at home; three brothers and two sisters, who all reside near Frankville with the exception of one sister who resides in the west.

THE MOTOR BOAT

Writing on the fascinations of motor boating, Dr. Mark G. McElhinney of Kingston states: Motor boating is the most varied, most enjoyable, most carefree and most versatile sport known to man. It opens up a fresh interest at every turn, gives opportunity for taking a wide variety of chances and develops the power of description, especially in the matter of vituperation and other sorts of red-hot language that a man, once caught in its coils, can have small hope of escape. Moreover, he does not want to escape. All that he feels is necessary to complete happiness is a larger or a faster boat. With us Canadians, love of the water is a race instinct, a legitimate heritage from the peoples from which we are sprung. We love water so that we always want to be near it or on it, and even refuse to take our whiskey without it. There is a lot to learn about motor boating, a lot that cannot be got out of books. A man may fake knowledge on many subjects and pass, but if he tries the game in motor boating, he falls down hard. This is why motor boatmen are a pretty decent lot. They are there with the goods, and what they do not know they are willing to ask. Some sailors of windjammers sneer at the power boat, hinting that it is too free from danger and needs little handling. Let such make Kingston in a lively southwestern in a motor boat and he will get all the action and interest that he can hold for the time and distance.

FOUNDED HOTEL DIED

JEANNE MANCE AND HER DEVOTED LIFE IN CANADA.

French Women Whose Status Vandalized in Montreal Recently Tattered With Is One of the Most Magnificent Characters in the History of the Dominion—She Served the Sick and Wounded for Thirty Years.

If the purpose of those, who a few nights ago, tampered with the statue of Jeanne Mance, which adorns one of the four corners of the Maisonneuve monument in place d'Armes, Montreal, was simply to work destruction upon one of the most beautiful specimens of the sculptor's art in Canada, then there are vandals in our midst who would have been fit members of that barbaric horde that early in the middle ages poured over the Alps, over-ran Italy, and sacked Rome. However, the purpose of the vandals was not accomplished, and the beautiful bronze figure remains, to adorn the monument that commemorates the founding of Montreal two hundred and sixty-nine years ago this month. The work to which Jeanne Mance devoted her life and her means was that of nursing the sick, succoring the infirm and needy, and binding up the wounds sustained by those, who, in almost daily conflicts, were holding the little outpost of civilization against the onsets of the relentless Iroquois. Jeanne Mance was the Florence Nightingale of Ville Marie, the prototype of the trained nurses whose services form so large a part of the work of mercy carried on to-day in our great hospitals.

Mademoiselle Jeanne Mance belonged to an honorable family of Nogent-le-Roi, near Langres, France. She was born in 1836—two years before the founding of Quebec. She received the education of a young gentleman of her time. Her constitution was delicate, her manners graceful yet dignified. Though an earnest devotee, she felt no vocation for the cloister; and yet, writes her biographer Fallon, while "still in the world" she led the life of a nun. She had read accounts of the missionary work carried on among the Indians of Canada; her enthusiasm was kindled, and she journeyed up to Paris to seek advice respecting her engaging in the work. She received encouragement from high ecclesiastics, and from ladies of rank, wealth and seal. Well supplied with money for her pious work, she went to Rochelle, from whence the ships sailed for Canada, and here she fell in with the party about to set out for the wilderness for the purpose of establishing a colony almost two hundred miles beyond Quebec, on the island formed by the junction of the two great rivers of the west and the north—the Island of Montreal.

On May 8, 1642, they embarked for Montreal, the little flotilla consisting of a pinnace, a flat-bottomed craft moved by sails, and two rowboats. On May 18 they landed on the Island of Montreal as the spot where, thirty-one years before, Champlain had chosen as the fit site of a settlement.

In the following year a French lady of rank, Madame de Bouillon, gave forty-two thousand livres for the building of a hospital at Villa Marie. The enclosure within the palisade stood near the river, and in the spring it was in danger of inundation, and in fact, during the first winter the high water caused by a thaw nearly flooded out of place. There was also no room for the patients, the palisade of the hospital was accordingly built on higher ground adjacent. In order to protect it against the Iroquois it too was surrounded by a palisade, and, in time of danger, a part of the garrison was detailed to defend it. The hospital was intended not only to nurse sick Frenchmen, but to nurse and convert sick Indians.

Among the notes to one of the volumes of the Relations is this tribute to Jeanne Mance. She "was at one time the main support of the Montreal colony. Besieged by the Iroquois in 1651, and at all times exposed to their incursions, the new settlement was in danger of destruction; Mlle. Mance furnished Maisonneuve with 22,000 livres from the hospital endowment, with which to raise and equip soldiers for the defence of the town. In the following year she visited Paris and procured the reorganization of the Montreal Society, which had become greatly reduced, both in numbers and funds. Later she had much to do with bringing from France the nuns of St. Joseph. For the latter she procured an endowment from Madame de Bouillon. The establishment of these nuns, her administration of the hospital (in which they succeeded after her death), and her share in the management of the colony placed great burdens on the shoulders of Mlle. Mance, but she discharged her duties with enthusiasm, conscientious devotion, and excellent practical judgment."

These were dark years for the colony. Danger was ever at hand, and at times destruction seemed inevitable. Its prospects were far from hopeful, and what was left of vitality was in the enthusiastic Mademoiselle Mance. She earnest and disinterested soldier Maisonneuve, and the priest Oliver, and his new Seminary of St. Sulpice. During these years of struggles and danger Jeanne Mance remained at her post, administering the affairs of her hospital, and with her associates nursing the sick and wounded, and caring for the needy and homeless. And so passed the life of this heroine of the early years of Montreal, and it is because of that work that in the group of statues that forms the monument commemorating the founding of the city, a place has been given to the figure representing the first nurse in Montreal, and the founder of its first hospital. Jeanne Mance's remains were buried in the chapel of the Hotel Dieu—Montreal Standard.

ANALYTICAL CHEMIST TELLS OF PATENT MEDICINES

A graduate in organic chemistry, who has made a study of many of the best-known patent medicines on the market, states that many have virtue, but as a rule people have to pay for a lot of unnecessary expense. The following is the recipe of a well-known secret preparation, and is known by authority to be one of the best stomach and liver tonics. It is prescribed by many of the best physicians.

This mixture cures constipation and biliousness. The recipe: Fluid Extract Cascara..... 1/2 oz. Syrup Rhubarb..... 1 oz. Carriana Compound..... 1 oz. Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla 5 oz. Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

An eminent authority, who has made a careful and scientific study of the relative values of drugs having a specific action on the kidneys, bladder, and liver, pronounces this an excellent combination.

You can buy the ingredients separately and mix at home. Cost this formula out and save it.
