ANNIVERSARY OF MACNAB.

Rev. D. C. Hossack, of Toronto, the Preacher Yesterday.

Clergyman From England at Christ's Church Cathedral.

Dr. Peck at Ascension-Laymen's Movement at Erskine.

The 55th anniversary of MacNah Street Presbyterian Church was celebrated vesterday, morning and evening, by special services, that were at tended by large congregations. Rev D. C. Hossack, of Toronto, was the speaker, and his eloquent sermons were much appreciated. In the morning he spoke on the development of the Church, taking his text from Acts. ii.: 47, "And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be

Mr. Hossack said when anniversaries come around it was well to ask what are the influences peculiar to the church of Jesus Christ. The work of the early church was wonderful, and the way to account for the amount of work accomplished was through the personality of the men at the head of the church, and also that subtle influence that one is not able to define. Through that very influence the early church had grown to be so potent that it changed the whole world. Its power lay in its associations, for it was the church of Christ. The people of the present age do not lay sufficient emphasis on the church's work. They may equip the church with the best organ and the best choir, and the best minister, but if the influence within the church is not of a Christian character, then it is not a church, but merely a place of entertainment. The law of association is both subtle and wonderful. The early church was just what the people and Christ made it. They were not wealthy in this world's goods, but they were rich in all that pertains to a good church. The greatest movement for the good of humanity, Christ's appearance on this earth and his saving of mankind, was not helped along by money, and, in this age we are trying to accomplish what Christ left us to finish. If a man in the common walks of life is good and leads a simple Christian life then he will be an example for others to follow. They will catch the infection of his Christian spirit.

The life of the church does not depend so much upon the pulpit as it does upon the pew. The church that stands for Christian perfection won't attract the masses. Christ died for the ungodly. His love went out to all those who had sinned and fallen. There were many things that we do not understand in the good book, but we have to accept its teachings. The church should be a fortress for the weary souls to enter, that they might find rest and contentment from their hard battles with the world. If the church does not fight the world then the world will fight and vanquish the church, Presciveness of the early Christian church.

Preachers may like to have large congregations, but large congregations do not make a live church. There must be individual work on the part of every member of the congregation. It must not be left to the machinery of the church to work out the many problems. Splendid spectacular deeds do not accomplish as much as the quiet unobtrusive methods of the real workers of the Master.

Rev. Mr. Hossack spoke to a large congregation in the evening.

REV. DERBY AT CATHEDRAL.

In Christ's Church Cathedral yester-

In Christ's Church Cathedral yester-day morning, Rev. C. Derby, of Folke-stone, England, preached a very instruc-tive and helpful sermon to a large gath-ering. He chose as his theme, Luke ii. 32, "A light to lighten the Gentiles and the glory of Thy people Israel." In a forceful way he enedavored to show how Christ help here. has a recently way he encedavored to show how Christ had been the means of ob-taining salvation for the Gentiles. He said great pity is felt for the blind man, but many do not think how blind they are in Christ. Even as the blind man is groping his way along, so is the sinner groping his way towards the doom that awaits the non-believer. In the words of the text, he said, Christ is described the first book of the Bible Genesis tells of where man hid from the Lord, and by the sin man committed at that time the world suffered until Christ came to redeem it, and died on the cross came to redeem it, and died on the cross as a means to that end.

By the sin of man in the beginning the world was left in sin, and so it drifted on and on from bad to worse until once more brought under the direct influence of God through the death of His son. Through Jesus Christ every one was given a chance of salvation if they only believed. Jesus, being sent of God, took upon Himself to revive and restore for man the state which he lost, and suffered the worst agonies that He might be able to open mea's eyes toward God, and, knowing this great sacrifice, many do not give it the attention it should receive. There was nothing to matisfy until the Lord came and preacher about the true God, who was a gracious should receive. There was nothing to matisfy until the Lord came and preached about the true God, who was a gracious God, and not a cruel one. Christ taught the people to love one another, and showed them that life on earth is not the only life, but that there is a hereafter, and that those who are earnest in their work for the true God will receive their reward. Although there are many who try to find happiness in worldly things they do not receive the fullest blessing until they truly believe in the Lord, Jesus Christ, as it is through Him that rest for the soul is found. How many there are passing through the world without a knowledge of the light, who, if they could see the light of the Lord, it would make their lives beautiful and happy, as it does every true believer. To those who set out with the intention of finding happiness, he said, there was only one way to find perfect happiness, and that was through the following of the Master. In closing he thought the Christian's mind should be set on the restoring to grace of any who have been so unfortunate as to leave the path of righteousness, and also the uplifting of any non-believer.

DR. PECK AT ASCENSION.

A large number of members and adherents of the Church of the Ascension turned out last evening to hear the sermon by Dr. Peck, a missionary from amongst the Esquimaux. He chose as his text Mark xvi. 15 and 20: "And he of the foreign missionaries. In India and unto them, Go ye into all the world there are now 14,000 ordained mission-

And they went forth and preached the gospel everywher, the Lord working with them, and confirming the work with signs following." He said the Saviour came himself to preach the gospel to the nation, and he thought that it might rightly be called the eleventh commandment. It was a parting command to carry His message of salvation to the world. The preaching of the gospel is making Christ known, and this gosjel is to be made known to every creature that all might have an opportunity of for the opening of the service, the content of the Saviour Christ known of the gospel is to be made known to every creature that all might have an opportunity of for the opening of the service, the content of the Saviour Christ known to every creature that all might have an opportunity of for the opening of the service, the con-Y. Hollinrake spoke to a large congregation last evening in Zion Tabernacle last evening on the subject, "In view of present day conditions, is a man better than a sheep?" He showed how God had created man for His service, and how all other things had been created for man's service. God made man like unto Himself, thus showing blessed. The members of the congrega-tion should be diligent in their efforts to obey the commands of the Lord, as through Him the church will receive its richest blessing and its progress will be more rapid. In looking at why they should obey the command and preach the gospel to every creature he said they had received the greatest gift possible when Christ had been nailed to the cross for the sins of the world. He spoke of the work being done in the far north tion. The speaker contrasted the car and attention given to animals of th lower creation, as against the care give for the suns of the world. He spoke of the work being dome in the far north among the Esquimaux, and of the trying conditions under which the missionary labors, and told of his own experience from the time when led to see the light when he was working in the navy. He said after hearing the sermons on the ship he was favorably impressed and led to see the importance of the work to be done, and as a result decided to go out among the Esquimaux and do the command—"Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." He spoke of the hardships of a trip to the north and of the privations one has to endure after arriving there. It took him considerable time to reach his destination, and when he had done so he decided to keep a two years' supply of provicions on hand in case the vessel, which only makes one trip every twelve months, should be delayed or unable to reach the settlement on account of the ice floos. The weather conditions were so hard on the work being done in the far north to the human being. The weather conditions were so hard on him that after a stay of eight years he was forced to return to England. Going back to his work in the far north, Mrs. Peak went with him, and for a long time was able to stand the hardship, but at last they again returned to England, and on the next trip north Mr. Peck went alone, and during that stay, owing to the delay of the vessel that called at the settlement, no mail reached his people in England for so long a time that Mrs. Peck was in a constant state of worry regarding his safety. Mr. Peck told of Vietoria, B. C., May 2.— Lord Fred Hamilton, son of the Duke of Abercorn and a prominent British diplomat and traveller, has arrived here, returning from India, where he attended his son's weedding to the daughter of the Governor-General, Earl Minto.

Ottawa, May 2.—The draft of the uniform fishery regulations governing the boundary waters between Canada and the United States, under the terms of the treaty passed last spring, as prepared during the last six months by the two commissioners, Professor E. E. Prince, Dominion Fisheries Commissioner, representing Canada, and President Starr Jordan, of Leland Stanford University, representing Canada, and President Starr Jordan, of Leland Stanford University, representing the United States, has been received in Ottawa from Palo Alto, California, where Prof. Prince and Dr. Jordan have just completed their work. The regulations as agreed upon show that Canada has gained very considerably and has sacrificed nothing to the demands of the American fishing interests. The net result will be the observance by the United States and Canadian fishermen of the regulations contended for by Canada in the treaty waters from the Atlantic to the Pacific. These waters include the areas of the waters off the mouth of the St. Croix River; the St. John River, where it forms the boundary between Maine and New Brunswick; Lake Champlain, Lake Memphramagag, the great lakes from Cornwall west, and the waters of Juan de Puca Straits and Puget Sound. Ottawa, May 2.—The draft of the congregation of Erskine Presbyterian Church yesterday on the Laymen's Missionary Movement. He told of the starting of the mission movement at a haystack meeting. Although it was not known as the Laymen's Missionary Movement, then, it was the first movement started to send missionaries to foreign lands. They were young men and they met and asked God's guidance. They did not go to the foreign field immediately, for the way was zot open, but finally found their way to the heathen. If Christians do not evangelize the world in this generation, it will not be because they cannot, but because they will not. The speaker then went on to tell of the first meeting on the Laymen's Missionary Movement; how the assembled men prayed for several hours, and as the result of their prayers and efforts the movement was begun. It spread until now it covers the whole of America and parts of England. The most marvellous ackievements of this century have been the achievements.

It is reported in England that Earl Grey's term as Governor-General is to be extended a year.

OVER DAM.

Three St. Mary's Men Had a Dangerous Experience.

St. Mary's, May 3 .- (Special.) - That Iarcourt Ready, Weldon Evans and Frank Lankin, three St. Mary's young men, did not lose their lives in the storm on Friday is due to a divine providence. The river had risen to the highest it has been in years, and the boat-house where young Ready had his new gasoline launch stored was in some danger, so he, with his two chums, went down to fix it high and dry in safety. While they were in the launch the strong current of the swollen river carried them away, and being unable to manage the craft owing to the tank having no oil in, they, with the launch, were carried down the river and precipiated over a deep dam, where, just now, there is an unusually tremend ous body of water falling. When over the dam the launch overturned broadside,

To-day, in its passing off to sea, it apparently had lost none of its vicious energy. Late this afternoon wires suddenly regained flashed the news of thiryt-four more lives taken in Georgia by the storm, the coming of which some of victims had t n reading for two days in the newspapers.
