A few days ago Mr. John Salsbury, of Strathroy, met with a painful accident, and one which came very near proving fatal. He was removing the brick from an old well, when the mud suddenly caved in, burying him to the depth of about five feet over the head. Fortunately, nearly some active young men were passing, and by their aid, and what other help could be procured, the sand was shovelled out with such rapidity that in about twenty minutes Mr. Salisbury was rescued from his painful position. He was quite unconscious when first saved from his living grave, and could not possibly have survived much longer, as his face was entirely covered and imbedded in the sand, with no possibility of obtaining any fresh air.

No. 10 New York Express, G. W. R., about one o'clock on Thursday morning ran off the track four miles west of Princetown, which was caused by the wheel of the tender-trunk of the leading engine breaking. There were two engines on the train. There were killed:—Driver W. Cooper and fireman Andrew Irving, of the second engine; baggageman G. Wright, expressman Jas. Andrews, assistant expressman Wm. Leggatt and a man supposed to be named McBride, in the employ of Hendrie & Co., of Galt, on his way to Hamilton to attend his mother's funeral, and who was riding in the baggage car at the time of the accident. None of the passengers were hurt beyond a fright and a few scratches, and they proceeded on their journey as soon as arrangements could be made for them. The cars took fire, and one first class, one second, and one baggage car were destroyed, with about twenty pieces of baggage. The remaining cars were very slightly damaged. The examination of the broken wheel which caused the accident shows it to have been perfectly sound no flaw or defect being visible. Wright and Leggatt were residents of Clinton, Andrews of Buffalo and Cooper and Irving of London.

Canadian Monthly.—The October number of the Canadian Monthly and National Review — a journal highly creditable to the country—is to hand. "Evolution and Immortality," "Preemption from Municipal Taxation," and "Darwinism and Morality" are able articles, and "From London to Australia and Back," is a letter full of interest. "Current Events," are always interesting, and the dissertations on pic-nics, clerical interference, municipal extravagance, &c., are as full of vigor and thought as any previous articles from the same brilliant pen. A continuation of the "Annals of Canada" also appears—a very valuable work published in sheets which may be detached and bound, thus forming a work giving a very complete record of the leading events in Canadian history arranged according to dates. Copies of the magazine may be obtained at the booksellers.

Some members of the family were injured by falling timbers, one child, we are informed, being very seriously hurt.

KINTAIL.

Base Ball.— The Kintail base ball club played the Lochalsh Clippers last Saturday, at Amberly. Owing to the inclemency of the weather, the game did not commence till late in the afternoon, when it cleared off beautifully, giving the contestants a fair chance to exercise their skill. Six innings were played, when darkness stopped the game. The score stood 25 for Kintail and 11 for Lochalsh. The Kintail boys would have done better had not an accident happened their pitcher. At the very commencement of the game, one of the players while striking at the ball let go the bat, which flying with great force, struck the pitcher, who was but a few feet from the batsman, inflicting a severe wound on his forehead. After enjoying a splendid supper and good time at Mr. Parr's, the players left for their homes, well satisfied that base ball is one of themanliest outside games. —Com.

GODERICH, OCT. 11, 1876,

Lord Dufferin in British Columbia.

Before taking his departure from British Columbia, Lord Dufferin addressed a gathering of prominent citizens upon matters at issue between that province and the Dominion. A false impression prevailed, particularly in England and British Columbia with reference to Lord Dufferin's visit to the Pacific coast, and many comments were made by the press upon the character of the proposals which he was supposed to carry from the Dominion Government to the disaffected Province, and the citizens thereof received him less as a vice-regal visitor than as an ambassador. Owing to the existence of this feeling, no opportunities were allowed to pass of giving unmistakable expression to it, and His Excellency was even rudely treated. And having received none of the supposed proposals, the brilliant speech of His Excellency was elicited in response to the request of some anxious citizens.

The speech is given in His Excellency's happiest vein, eloquent, simple and independent. Having alluded to the wealth and importance to the Dominion of the province of British Columbia, which had been impressed upon his observation during his tour, he naturally proceeded to discuss the railway question, as the railway is the link which securely binds this valuable district to the Dominion. He assured his hearers that the people of the west would do everything in their power for the prosperity of the Pacific Province, and notwithstanding the irritating conduct of the citizens Canada would go on and build the railway as rapidly as possible. Reviewing the circumstances connected with the inception and growth of the great railway scheme, Lord Dufferin showed that Canada had not failed in its pledges, although not fulfilling them to the letter. When in 1871 the terms were agreed upon, the hopes of the principals to the arrangement were too sanguine, they were not acquainted with the immense engineering difficulties to be contended against and the question of a practicable route for the new railway was a "sealed book." It was found impossible to carry out that which was agreed to, and when Mr. Mackenzie succeeded to power he objected to bind the country to fulfil the terms, the omission of which now cause the Columbians to grieve so much. This conduct on Mr. Mackenzie's part has been construed as indicating an opposition to the railway scheme, but Lord Dufferin was satisfied that he was favorable to it, and added that, in acting as he did "Mr. Mackenzie was undoubtedly right." The estimates of the cost and time necessary to build the railway were based upon the example of the American Pacific Railway, and the originators of the scheme, carried away by the prevailing railway fever, deemed nothing impossible to them. But they calculated wildly, for the comparison between the Pacific Railway of fact and the Pacific Railway of fiction was by no means just. Emigrant trains had passed through the Rocky and Sierra Nevada mountains and discovered feasible routes for the great United States scheme before the engineers were sent out, but in the present case little or nothing is known of the mountain region, and the work of locating the line advantageously will be arduous and lengthy. No effort is being spared, however, in the preliminary work, and surveying parties are engaged in different sections of the country, locating the line. Mr. Mackenzie is unquestionably eager to see the work ended, but His Excellency further adds that the Premier would have been a traitor to a most sacred trust if he had allowed himself to be teased, cajoled or intimidated" into commencing to build the railway before having decided upon the best route. The route is now about determined, and the ministry deserved commendation for its activity in the matter.

The question of the Nanaimo Railway was alluded to at length. It has been said that Mr. Mackenzie was responsible for the defeat of the Bill in the Senate, but His Excellency declared that of his own knowledge he knew the Premier grieved at the fate of the Bill, and gave the following emphatic denial to the charge made by Conservative organs that the failure was altogether due to the efforts of Mr. Mackenzie and the Reform party;—

"I tell you in the most emphatic terms, and I pledge my own honor on the point, that Mr. Mackenzie was not guilty of any such base and deceitful conduct—had I thought him guilty of it, either he would have ceased to have been Prime Minister, or I should have left the country."

There was no "broken agreement" in the failure to build this railway, for the parties to the arrangement acted in good faith until a higher authority in the person of the Senate vetoed their scheme. As compensation the bonus of $750,000 was suggested, that sum, together with the land grants accompanying it, being considered sufficient to build the road. If the Columbians accepted this proposal, their railroad would be secured as cheaply as was proposed when the Senate stepped in to prevent the gift being made.

His Excellency rather startled the Columbians by depicting to them the position they would occupy if they seceded from the union,—losing their independence and becoming a mere colony—but he believed that the secession sentiments were not expressed in earnestness. The effects of the speech will no doubt be beneficial, and have a tendency to induce the people of the Province to be more reasonable and patient.

It is reported that John A. Macdonald is being induced to visit Lambton, the constituency of Hon. Alex. Mackenzie, and hold forth to the electors. We hardly expect that the chieftain will "beard the lion in his den," but if he should do so Mr. Mackenzie should make it convenient to be on hand at the same time. Should he do so, Sir John will no doubt be more circumspect in his language than he has been of late.

The Stratford Herald says:—'its now about time for the Premier to call Tom White a liar again." Thrue for ye.—T. W. certainly deserves it, as popular sentiment and his own language has already branded him as such.

After a short cessation of hostilities, the warfare has been again renewed in Turkey, and the engagements which have taken place are unimportant, although the Servians are still unfortunate. The peace negotiations have approached the crisis, and a few days will decide whether a general European war will be entered into or the difficulty be at once and finally settled. England has issued an ultimatum, which leaves Turkey but one course to pursue, if she does not wish to lose the support of the former. England, however, has guaranteed that Russia shall not occupy Constantinople. She also demands reparation for the victims of the Bulgarian atrocities. It is stated that the Porte is willing to come to terms, on the condition that Servia receive no foreign reinforcements, but a letter authenticated report states that the Sultan, although willing is unable to accede to the demands of the nations, owing to the continued influx of Russian reinforcements to Servia and the strong public feeling manifested thereat. Russia has proposed a scheme to induce an understanding between the powers, with a view to imposing an armistice upon Turkey. So serious are the issues depending upon the result of the negotiations, that much excitement prevails and the final developments which are not far off are awaited with much anxiety.

An investigation into certain affairs of the Northern Railway at Toronto, is bringing forth some damaging revelations, and a correspondent in that city thus speaks thereof:—"It is now well known that the Northern Railway invested $1,000 in Mail stock in order to help to start a live Tory sheet; it is not so well known that the Grand Trunk contributed a still larger amount for the same purpose, and yet that is now freely stated here as one of the developments. It is also well known that the Northern contributed largely to the testimonial fund which was claimed to be made up of the voluntary contributions of the members of the Conservative party, but the public have just learned for the first time that the Grand Trunk was still more generous, and it is even asserted that the Great Western was bled to some extent for the same purpose. What must the public think, in view of these revelations, of either the men who got up the testimonial or the man who has since enjoyed the benefit of it? Any honorable, high minded patriot would sooner starve on a dunghill than live at the expense of railway shareholders who should have got the money in the shape of dividends, and who in many cases were too poor and too ignorant to be able to defend themselves against such swindles."

Our Tory friends are fond of quoting the Toronto Telegram, a sort of independent organ, but they haven't yet quoted this:—"If the Conservatives want to keep the ground they have lately gained, they had better lose no time in putting a muzzle on the mouth of Mr. Thos. White. His attacks on the personal integrity and veracity of Mr. Mackenzie do them unmixed harm. Mr. Mackenzie may not be a man of first-rate power, or exactly the right man to be at the head of the Dominion; we do not say he is. But his personal integrity is seriously doubted by no reasonable being. The Steel Rail charge, once for all, is nonsense. Mr. Mackenzie neither did anything dishonest in that matter nor said anything that he did not believe to be true. He was rather too hot and not very adroit in repelling the charge; that is the worst that can be alleged about him. Therefore the sooner the accusation is dropped the better. We may add that it would, on general accounts, be good policy to keep Mr. Thos. White, eloquent as he is, a little more in the background. The idea of his becoming the leader of the Conservative party, in succession to Sir John Macdonald, is enough to drive people back into the penfold of Big Push."

A cotemporary, in the Opposition ranks, referring to certain sharp controversies which have recently taken place between prominent Reform journals, concludes that the Reform party is disorganized and preparing to collapse.—Outspoken and independent in principle as the latter journals are, it is not to be wondered at that errors of judgment on the part of political colleagues seldom pass unnoticed and are properly criticized, and it is as little to be wondered at that our cotemporary reasons as it does, seeing that its associates are so unscrupulously partizan in spirit as to reject the dictates of consistency and remain subservient to party interest.—It is better to be consistent than prudish.

Sir John was greeted at the Conservative gathering in Norfolk, by the following expression, "It is not because you are deemed faultless that this large assembly has met to do you honor,"—Yet we do not think this will save the chieftain from being canonized on his death.

Thursday, 2nd November, it is understood has been set apart by Lieut.-Governor Macdonald as a day of public thanksgiving We hope this year the various churches will recognize the one day, and not as in previous years interfere with the universal recognition of the admirable custom by appointing different days for the purpose.

The writ for the South Wellington election has been issued, and the nomination takes place on Friday next, polling on the 20th inst. Messrs. Robt. Melvin, Jas. Laidlaw and Jas. Innes of the Mercury, all Reformers, are spoken of as candidates. It is altogether likely that there will be no contest.

In the case of the Lincoln contested election, the charge of bribery on the part of Mr. Rykert's agents was dismissed, and the scrutiny of ballots was deferred until the 24th inst. Rykert's majority in his last election was 29, and it is not expected that the scrutiny will unseat him.

Hon. David Laird has accepted the appointment of Lieutenant-Governor of the North-west Territory, and will shortly proceed to take possession of the new office.

Bullock Breeds Show.

This show, which was held in Clinton on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week was well attended and proved quite successful. The entries were not as numerous as in previous years, but this fact is easily accounted for. In cattle Messrs. H. Snell and M. McTaggart were the prominent exhibitors, having their short horn herds on the ground. Horses were well represented, particularly in the classes of buggy and team horses. The ladies' department was, owing to the bad weather on the second day, not quite up to the standard. A good display of fruit was made, although limited to a smaller extent than usual.

Educational.—The teacher's institute at Dungannon has done no work since last winter. It speaks ill for the teachers of this district. There is a good library in connection with the institute and the teachers have no opportunity of changing the books. Could not some of the teachers make a move in the right direction in calling a meeting at the earliest opportunity?

Crops.—The fall wheat in this vicinity looks very well and there is quite an extent of it sown. The beautiful showers of the past few days have added to the growth.—Com.

SEAFORTH.

A farmer of the name of McDonald, from the neighborhood of Clinton, met with what may yet be a fatal accident while on his way to Seaforth with a load of grain. While going down a hill some of the bags fell off, precipitating Mr. McDonald to the ground in front of the wheels and against the horses heels. Another farmer, who was with him, caught the reins, but by this time the wheels were upon his chest and the horses kicking his head. He was with difficulty extricated, and Dr. Burgess, of Seaforth sent for, who found that he was severely injured, the ribs having been completely crushed in on the lungs, while he was so disfigured about the face that even his friends could scarcely recognize him.

PORT ALBERT.

Mills Sold.—On Wednesday last Mr. G. M. Trueman sold the Port Albert Mills, by public auction, to Mr. David Runciman for the sum of $6,150. Mr. Jas. Crawford, the former proprietor, is about to remove to Manitoba, where he has purchased 950 acres of land.

Boy Lost.—Some little excitement has been created in the township, through the straying away from home of a son of Mr. Gibson. The young man is 22 years old, dumb and non compos mentes, but he will answer anyone addressing him as 'Johnnie.' Last heard of Mon was on the 9th con., and it is supposed he attempted to follow his father who had gone to Muskoka to buy land. He is 5 ft. 10 inches high, with brown hair, and when he left home he had on a black full-cloth suit, and white hat.

WINGHAM.

A night watchman is to be engaged to patrol the village.

The entries to the Turnberry show summed up 523.

Pettypiece's "Whiteface" beat McCutcheon's "Grey Eagle," in two straight heats a few days ago.

Slaughtering hogs within the corporation is permitted, on the stipulation that the offal is buried.

On the day of the show, Mr. J. S. Hammond's horse ran away, upsetting the rig to which it was hitched, smashing three sewing machines therein and dragging Mr. H. in the mud for some distance. This is the second time Mr. H. has had sewing machines broken by the same means.

A correspondent says: The new cemetery, containing 10 acres, is being laid out, the central portion will be surveyed out into burial lots, to contain 7000 graves, intersected with carriage drives 20 feet wide and walks 10 feet wide. Outside of this will be a pauper's field, one acre being reserved for the caretaker. Borders of shrubery will add beauty to the general appearance.

A fire broke out about three o'clock on the morning of the 1st inst., in the store occupied by Robert Gordon, but was fortunately discovered by some parties returning from the T. G. & B. excursion, and was got under control before the fire caught in the adjoining buildings. Mr. Gordon's stock is almost entirely destroyed. Had the fire not been discovered when it was the principal business part of the town would have been destroyed. Loss fully covered by insurance.

BAYFIELD.

Accident.—On Wednesday evening last, during the storm, a tow of two scows loaded with stone for the harbor works was attempting to make this port when one of the scows with 21 cords of stone upset at the end of the north pier. The stones were all lost, and the scow was sunk.

Farewell Supper.—On Monday of last week the merchants of Bayfield entertained Capt. Hubbell and crew of the dredge and tug employed at the harbor works, at a complimentary farewell supper, in McCann's Hotel. A very pleasant and agreeable evening was spent. The work of dredging has been suspended, owing to instructions from the Government, and Mr. Hubbell and his crew are removing to Port Huron. Genuine regret is experienced at their departure, for one and all have proved themselves gentlemen, and have won general respect.

Another Threshing Machine Accident. — On Thursday last, whilst a son of Mr. John Johnston, Brownson line, aged 12 years, was amusing himself about a threshing machine, he got entangled in the machinery, and his leg was so mangled, that immediate amputation was necessary, the operation being successfully performed by Drs. Wood and Buchanan. The boy is doing well, and is said to have displayed remarkable nerve and coolness. This should indeed be a warning to men with such machines, never to allow thoughtless boys playing about them when at work.

The heavy gales of this week have prevented the dredge leaving.

Story has put up two lamp posts at the head of West Street, in order to exhibit qualities of the new light produced by the new burner and refined petroleum recently described in these columns. It is now capable of flooring its rivals and laughing at their broad-sidings and pickings, and can afford to forgive any smaller light that culls from its columns without giving credit. Our cotem. is worthy the high reputation it bears.

Again Stopped.—Owing to the severe gales of the past few days, a bar has again formed at the mouth of the river, damming the water until Mr. Platt has been forced to suspend work at his mill owing to backwater. This is proving a great source of loss to Mr. Platt, who has usually about 50 hands employed. He certainly is entitled to recover damages from the authorities, whom we hope will as soon as possible take steps to prevent the annoyance.
