Wedding Bells.

TUCKER-TUCKER.
A very pretty wedding took place at the C. E. Church, Portugal Cove, on Wednesday evening last, when Miss Lena A. Tucker, daughter of Mr. David Tucker, Broad Cove, was united in matrimony to Mr. James Albert Tucker, formerly of Broad Cove and now in the employ of the Reid Mill, Co., this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. E. Legge, Rector of the Parish. The bride wore a pretty costume of sage blue with hat to match, and was attended by her sisters, Misses Gertrude and Maud Tucker, while the groom was supported by Mr. Jacob Tucker. Mr. F. Dodd performed the duties of father of the bride. After the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of the groom's parents. The bride was the recipient of many valuable and useful presents from friends at home and in Montreal where she worked for several years as an assistant in Goodwin's store. The Telegram extends congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Tucker and wishes them many years of wedded happiness.

How Pneumonia Starts, and How Often Prevented.

You catch a little cold to-day, and by to-morrow it has reached the throat, next day the lungs are affected, and you wish you had used "Cattarhoxone" which kills colds in five minutes. In the first place Cattarhoxone soothes the irritated membrane and relieves congestion,—then it cuts out the phlegm and destroys the germs. It enables the blood to retain a natural supply of oxygen, lung-food, and vitality. In any cough bronchitis or Catarrh, it's guaranteed to positively cure. Beware of dangerous substitutes offered under misleading names for genuine Cattarhoxone which is sold everywhere, large size containing two months treatment costs $1.00, small size, 50c., trial size, 25c.

fall we vote for State-wide prohibition. Victory is in the air; victory is sure. It won't be long before the nation will be dry. Death to the foe of God and goodness.

Yours sincerely,

S.S. Senlac said to have Germans on Board.

Investigation Now Being Conducted.
A rigid enquiry is now being conducted into the burning of the s.s. Senlac and cargo in Sydney Harbor on Monday last. The report that there were three Germans on board is causing a bit of sensation. According to the police here, these Germans were in the detention camp at Sydney, were released from there some time last summer and joined the Senlac, but they were constantly and closely watched and allowed to land at any of the British ports visited by the Senlac. The result of the investigation into the fire at Sydney is being awaited with great interest.

War Wedding.

At St. John's, Westminster, on Nov. 22nd, Miss Grace Goodridge was united in matrimony to Lieut. H. Owen, Commander of the torpedo destroyer H.M.S. Cherwell. Rev. Archdeacon Wilberforce officiated, assisted by Rev. C. E. Owen, of Over Wallop Rectory, Hants. The bride was charmingly dressed and carried a bouquet of pink roses. She was attended by Miss Ruby Ayre, who was also handsomely attired. At the conclusion of the ceremony a reception was held at the Lyceum Club, from where the wedding took place. The health of the bride was proposed by Rev. C. E. Owen, the groom's father and Lieut. Gerald Harvey, who had just left Wandsworth Hospital, having his arm in a sling, proposed the health of the groom. The bridal party then left on their honeymoon amid the best wishes of their friends.

Amusements.

BIG CONTEST TO-NIGHT AT ROSS-LEYS.
There is a great treat in store for those who visit Rossley's Theatre to-night. There are several people who have faithfully promised to appear. Mr. Ballard Brown and Miss Madge Locke have one of their finest acts, an all round Irish variety bill. Miss Locke will perform one of her wonderful dances which made such a hit in New York, and last night the dainty little lady had to respond to several encores. Mr. Ballard Brown sang delightfully songs from Tanqueray, also two Irish ballads. The act is beautifully costumed. Be in time for a good seat to-night.

BRITISH THEATRE.

The week-end programme at the British is full of interesting and pleasing subjects. The three part drama "Human Hearts" will appeal to all for its tendency to portray what is so true to life, and which calls for the highest type of emotional acting. The other numbers as will be seen from the advertisement with the "Ev'ing O' Hearts" assure the friends of the popular British a pleasant evening's performance. A matter of particular interest to our juvenile friends is the offering of three watches to be given to the lucky winners at the matinee on Saturday. This is a rare chance for a boy or girl to win a good watch, and we feel sure that all attend on Saturday in the hope of winning such a handsome prize.

Tricking the Germans.

Telling How a Cute Old Frenchman Escaped Being Shot.
Many a French village will have a story to recount of the Great War. That of which the beadle of a small village in the department of the Aisne is the hero has a human side that will cause it to be remembered.

Before the war, this village was a quiet, peaceful spot, far removed from the bustle of the great highway. It was chiefly noticeable on account of its ancient steeple, its venerable parish priest, and its beadle, almost as venerable. Then, one fine day, the Hun legions descended upon it. As usual, the invaders were terribly suspicious. In the eyes of a Hun—he knows something about the subject—everybody, man, woman, or child, is either an active or potential spy. Neither priest nor beadle, in spite of his age, was exempt from careful supervision. Both were looked upon as probable sources of danger.

Suspicion was replaced by certainty one night, when a flickering light was noticed behind one of the church windows. Somebody inside was obviously making secret signals to the enemy. With infinite precautions the church was surrounded and the door burst open.

Found Nothing Suspicious.
Inside, the beadle was discovered looking very embarrassed.

"What are you doing here?"
"Mind your own business."
Without more ado the old man was seized and carried off to his house. It was thoroughly ransacked, but nothing suspicious was discovered.
The beadle was submitted to a fire of questions, but no answer could be extracted from him, except, "Mind your own business."
For nothing in the world would the poor old fellow admit in front of his nearly paralyzed octogenarian wife, who was present at the cross-examination, the real motive for his presence in the church. How could he confess that what took him there was the desire which periodically seized him with irresistible force, to have a brief tete-a-tete with a certain black bottle of potent liquor, which he kept carefully hidden on the top of a dusty beam?
"To-morrow, at dawn you will be shot," was the verdict.
In vain the old woman pleaded for her husband. She even went the length, in her despair, of raising her crutch to strike one of the soldiers, but fortunately for herself she missed him.

Put on a Bonnet and Petticoat.
As there was no suitable place to keep the beadle, it was decided to leave him in his own dwelling for the night and place an armed sentry at the door, the only exit.

For a long time the beadle pondered in silence. Then, a luminous idea occurred to him. He rose suddenly, whispered a few words to his wife, and began to rummage in the wardrobe.
First he put on a bonnet, then a bodice, then a petticoat. Finally, he took his wife's crutch, and, leaning heavily upon it, groaning and sobbing bitterly the while, he opened the door and went out.

The sentry stared hard, but, recognizing the figure of the old woman he offered no objection to let her pass. He watched her as she hobbled pathetically in the direction of the church.

A few hours later, when the first streaks of dawn lit up the eastern sky, a sergeant and two men appeared to take the prisoner to the Kommandantur.
In the little house they found only the poor old woman industriously telling her beads.
"Where is your husband?"
"I don't know."

The whole village was turned inside out—church, presbytery, and houses, but no beadle could the soldiers discover.

Two days later, as has happened in similar cases, the village changed masters a second time and was occupied by the Allies. Just as the regiment of French dragons was passing the church, the beadle appeared on the steps, waving his wife's bonnet and singing lustily the Marseillaise.

Household Notes.

Indigestion is the foundation of a great deal of unhappiness. Good food, well cooked, will prevent indigestion in many cases.
For salad dressing, three table-spoonfuls of oil, one and a half of vinegar, quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth of pepper.

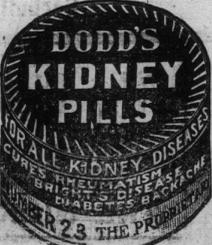

Try common oilcloth for your pantry shelves and around the sink. It stays in place, wears longer and can be cleaned very easily.
Don't forget that fresh or stewed fruit is a very important part of the family diet in winter. Baked apples are particularly wholesome.

If a pale-colored printed cotton bed-spread fades, wash it in strong soda water to take out the color and then use it for a dust sheet.
A fine bit of emery board, such as comes for manicuring, makes a good substitute for an eraser when you make an inkspot on paper.

Old corks are good to make a low fire burn up, and pine needles—to those who live in the country—make one of the best of kindlings.

If you make dessert one day using the whites of eggs, try to make the following day a cornstarch pudding which calls for the yolks of eggs.
Small portions of meat can be made to serve the family a second time by adding mushrooms, which always add interest and flavor to any meat.

When weighing molasses for cooking purposes, if the scale is well floured first, the molasses will run off quite smoothly without leaving any stickiness behind.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Just as a child learns language in the first stages without a grammar, it should, at first, learn music naturally and without too much rule. Rhythm appeals to all animate creation and much may be made of rhythms from the earliest stage of musical work. The identification of different rhythms on hearing them played will be an easy task and a useful one.
Almost all of the cradle songs, slumber songs, boat songs and swing songs are in the sixty-eight time in medium or slow tempo. But the same rhythm taken rapidly becomes the snappiest and brightest in music, and quick step and other spirited music will be found in the same rhythm. The most nickerly rhythm imaginable is five four, and even though the child will not be called upon to play such a rhythm for a long time, it may sense its effect even in the early stages of musical study.
