With some other rites of the night at a Hallowe'en party in the suburbs this evening a charm cake will be cut at midnight that will contain a wedding ring. At parting the guests will toast each other with cold tea in small wine glasses; there must be neither milk, sugar nor lemon in the tea, but a trifle of salt, the latter for the purpose of forcing a dream of thirst, the prediction being that one's future spouse will appear in the vision to give a drink of water. Each guest will receive as a souvenir silvered or gilded wishbones. The dance favors will be love knots of ribbon, heartshaped pin-cushions, gilded darts, and other emblems of Cupid's sway.

Her observation must have been very limited, for it is true that one class of writers, at least, do talk easily and extremely well, as a rule. These are the newspaper writers. Specialists in any branch may be abstracted and hard to rouse to conversation, but the writer who is accustomed quickly to set down a thought, often without time for improving it, does assuredly develop a readiness of speech utterly foreign to the general talker. One will notice here, too, a rapid selection of the best words and a care in finding synonyms, without any of that wearisome weighing of sentences that is so inexpressibly tiresome in many wouldbe fine conversationalists. Applicants will be notified to my estate again for the benefit of someone else?

Ans.-The widow is entitled to dower in your real estate, which is an estate for life in one-third of it. If the real estate is sold and converted into money she would then get the interest on the third for her life, and at her death the third of real estate or of the money into which it was converted would go to your heirs or the persons to whom you by your will give it. It is sometimes advisable to provide by the will a provision for the wife and declare it to be in place of dower, in which case she can take nothing under the will if she claims her dower, and must elect which she will take. She has no claim on the personal estate if you make a will. In 1894 B died, bequeathing same property to F, his wife, for life, and after her death to the infant children of C and E; nothing said about claims yet unpaid. The widow now wishes to dispose of the property. Can she or the guardian of the infants dispose of same? If so, upon what conditions? Ans.-The widow can dispose of her life estate, subject to the claims under the will of A. Upon the facts stated the interests of the infants could not be disposed of by the guardian, and it does not appear that there are any grounds which would authorize the court to empower him to do so during the life time of the widow, but you had better consult & awyer if there are other circumstances, such as necessity to maintain the children, in which case joint application on the part of the widow and the guardian of the children might be made to the court for authority to sell the property, and after paying claims against it under the will of A to apportion the proceeds between the widow and the children. special and urgent grounds would have to be shown to the court to obtain an order. 2. C lives in Toronto, which is about 90 miles Ans.-Upon the facts stated she can draw the money in person upon being identified, or she can by power of attorney authorize one of her sisters to draw it. It is possible that before she can draw the money she will have to execute a release or receipt to the executors. This, of course, must be done in person or by power of attorney. It may however be arranged by corresponding with the bank man ager to have the money drawn in Toronto through the branch of the bank renewed; and no book will be lent there or through some other bank. This would be a matter of course if the money can be drawn through a check.
