"My word," she says, "Canadians do like Edwards' desiccated Soup." "My word," echoes the grocer, "they do." Already thousands of housewives have tried it; already the grocers are receiving regular orders for more and more and MORE. Here is a thick, nourishing, old-fashioned

French Canadian Farmers Have Money to Spend

The Province of Quebec offers unlimited opportunities to advertisers who wish to get big returns for very little initial expense.

Conditions here are entirely different to those to be found in any other province of the Dominion, because 80 pe cent of the entire population is composed of Frenchspeaking people. Of this 80 per cent, 70 per cent, or 1,169,000 live in the villages and rural districts, and can all be reached through the columns of one newspaperthe weekly edition of LA PRESSE. LA PRESSE (weekly) is the great agricultural paper of the French-Canadian farmers, and taps a country whose field crops and dairy products are valued at about $125,000,000 annually. It is used by all the leading general and mail order advertisers, who find it impossible to cover that part of Canada without
