

HAVE YOU

tried Zam-Buk for those disgusting pimples and blackheads? Others have used it with great success, and we are confident you will not be disappointed.

Mr. J. B. Wagner of New Canada, N.S., writes: "For a considerable time I suffered with pimples and blackheads on my face. They were very unsightly and I suffered a good deal. Someone recommended Zam-Buk and I commenced using it. To my delight the pimples and blackheads gradually began to disappear, until now my face is entirely cleared of them. I am, indeed, grateful for what Zam-Buk has done for me, and should like all others who are troubled as I was, to know of this wonderful ointment."

Zam-Buk is just as good for eczema, salt rheum, ulcers, abscesses, old wounds, blood-poisoning, boils, piles, burns, cuts, scalds, etc. 50c. box, 2 for $1.25, all druggists or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Send 1c. stamp for postage on free trial box.

ZAM-BUK

PRESBYTERIAN W. M. S.
TO MEET IN KOMOKA

KOMOKA, Oct. 22.—Sunday evening next the W. M. S. will hold a meeting in the Presbyterian Church, which will be addressed by Mrs. Menzies, a returned missionary from Honan, China. A cordial invitation is extended to all. The anniversary of the Presbyterian Church was observed Sunday and was a great success, both services being largely attended. Rev. Dr. Martin of Stratford conducted both services, and his sermons were thoroughly enjoyed. The choir was assisted by Miss Robina Mowat, soloist, of London, also by the Presbyterian Church choir of Delaware.

CANADIAN WOMEN HAVE EARNED VOTE SAYS SIR WILFRID

Liberal Statesman, Addressing Women's Canadian Club, Gives First Public Utterance on the Question of Suffrage—Tribute to Royal Family.

[BY ISOBEL C. ARMSTRONG.]

The cat is out of the bag. The great Canadian Liberal leader and statesman, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, acclaimed "the foremost Canadian of his time," has expressed himself openly and publicly in favor of women's suffrage under certain conditions.

Henceforth, London, Canada, apart from all other distinguishing features, will be known as the city in which Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in a public gathering, first gave utterance to his opinion on the great question of the franchise for women.

The occasion was the first meeting of the season of the Women's Canadian Club yesterday afternoon in the Normal School, and the most auspicious opening in all the history of the club. Hundreds were present, including many new members, who had made a point of securing their season tickets early, in order to share in the treat offered, an address by such an orator as the distinguished guest of honor, Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Subject Was Suggested. "Women's Suffrage" was not the speaker's own particular choice of subject. A few days before coming to London he had received a letter from a London woman, asking him to say something on the question. Gathering that the topic would be one of interest here, the most courteous and gracious of men complied with the request.

A fanatical conversion to "votes for women" on the part of such a far-sighted statesman as the Liberal leader could not be expected by even the most extreme zealot of the cause. Sir Wilfrid Laurier stated that he believes the privilege of the ballot will very soon be extended to the women of Ontario. He prophesies that the first British parliament after the war will grant to the franchise, won through distinguished service to the country in the war.

At the same time, he recognizes conditions under which the extension of the franchise would be neither advisable nor acceptable at the present.

Audience Is Curious. Curiosity, mingled with intense interest, held the audience almost breathlessly silent when Sir Wilfrid announced that in compliance with a request he proposed to say something about his views on suffrage. His words were an echo of the thought in the minds of several when he continued: "The subject seems rather a debatable one for a man in active politics. But in Canada, party politics have never been divided on the subject. It is not a partisan question at Ottawa, because it is not within the province of the Federal Government. The question is one for each Legislature to decide for its own province."

"Suffrage is largely a matter of local conditions, to be governed by circumstances of the country in which it is applied. In some communities there would be almost insuperable objections."

"But I do not think that woman's suffrage would produce all the good effects which its friends expect. Public opinion is largely produced in the family, around the family table, where the father, mother and children gather. Generally, the opinion of one member of the family is the opinion of all. If suffrage were given, there would not be an appreciable difference. There would be more votes cast, but in about the same proportion. There would be in Ontario 60 per cent of votes in favor of prohibition and 40 per cent against, as at the present time."

"The advantage of suffrage, nevertheless, would be two-fold. It would remove a grievance from a class in the community who believe they have a grievance, because they are not allowed as men to express an opinion on public matters. The moment a class is dissatisfied with its lot, it ought to be the object of the state to make such readjustment that the man or woman citizen will be satisfied with his or her allegiance. In the second place, the woman looking for suffrage, having her grievance removed would dedicate to the state her abilities, ability and energy in public life."

Has Changed His Mind. At this point the speaker made the greatest confession that he had in his career changed his mind not once, but even twice and three times in regard to the question of the franchise for women.

"Five years ago, as premier of Canada, I was in London, England, for the coronation of King George V. I witnessed the great women's suffrage demonstration in which 40,000 women marched from the terrace to Albert Hall. Some of the best of England ran in the veins of the women in that parade. There were women there who traced their lineage to William the Conqueror, and who had worked very hard for a previous living. On the faces of all was an intense sentiment of earnestness. I said, 'If I were a member of the English Parliament, I would vote for women's suffrage.' I will say, when the women subsequently turned from the constitutional methods which they had followed to unconstitutional, I changed my mind at once."

Won By Service. "But during the war, much to their credit, the suffragists of England have ceased their agitation and devoted their whole attention to the work in which England is engaged at the present time. By service the women of England have won what they failed to achieve by agitation. At the next Parliament in England, the women will have the suffrage."

"Also in France there is a movement in favor of suffrage. I have in my hand the letter of the president of a French Union of Women's Suffrage, the grand-daughter of the great historian of the civilization of Europe."

"At the opening of the war this woman had five sons and one son-in-law, all of whom have gone to the front. One son is dead, another, perhaps worse, a prisoner in Germany. This woman, who has made a great sacrifice to the cause of civilization, has written a letter in reply to a manifesto purporting to come from a French section of the League for Permanent Peace, with headquarters in New York. The manifesto has suggested that victory for either side in the war is impossible, that the battle of necessity must be a drawn one, and that the sooner peace is declared the better."

French Woman's Sentiments. "Shame on those who can write and spread such words," says the president of the French Suffrage Union. "Would you class the invaders with those who defend their country? The future peace is not to be spoken of at this moment. Not one of us thinks so. Peace when it comes must insure deliverance for the future from such horrors of war as we are suffering at the present. But what are such sufferings of the war besides the bitterness of an insufficient peace? There can be no peace until victory."

"Such sentiments as these were expressed no later than yesterday by Mr. Asquith. These are the sentiments which animate every Canadian man and woman whose heart beats true. We hate war, but if there is war, it must be fought to an issue which will insure no recurrence of the horror of the past two years."

"If the women of France are animated by the spirit of this woman whom I have quoted, and the women of France have proved themselves, I think everybody will agree that the public life of France would be elevated if women had a right to take part in public life."

Turning his attention again to Canada, "We have evidence every day," continued Sir Wilfrid, "of the work of the women of Canada to alleviate the fatigues and sufferings of the men at the front. All honor to them for it!"

Tribute to Connaughts. Following, a fervent tribute of loyalty and admiration was paid their royal highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and the Princess Patricia on the eve of their departure from Canada.

"We have had the example," he said, "of the first lady of the land, the Duchess of Connaught. We in Ottawa know with what noble fortitude she has borne since the outbreak of war the trials her position, origin and life have placed upon her. By her example, devotion to duty and dignity of life, she has made the royal family of England a model in Canada than ever before. The Princess Patricia has endeavored herself to the Canadian people to such an extent that when the first regiment crossed the seas, it took the name of the young princess and put itself under her patronage. At Ypres and on other battlefields where these gallant Canadians distinguished themselves I must believe that their inspiration was not only their native bravery but the feeling as well that they must be equal to the name of the lady under whose patronage they had enlisted."

Debt to the Duke. "What of his royal highness the Duke of Connaught? I have known all the governor-generals since confederation with the exception of one, some of them intimately. They have been men of marked ability. Of all of whom he has been a successor, none has more earnestly or ably discharged the duties of the high office than the Duke of Connaught. No one who has left the office has carried back to England more than his royal highness. Very few appreciate fully the debt of gratitude we owe him for his service under the existing conditions. As a professional soldier, he would no doubt have preferred to be at the front in staying in Ottawa, to give the benefit of his advice. No doubt we will hear of him at the front very soon along with the brave men in Flanders."

"We are always shadowed by the thought, no matter to what subject we turn our attention. Thank God, conditions are different from what they were some time ago. The offensive now no longer belongs to the Germans, but to the Allied army. The end is certainly very far, but the end is in sight. The end will of a certainty be a vindication of the cause of the Allies. The return of peace will forever banish from Europe the war cloud which has shadowed it for many years. Our hearts are now with those at the front. When victory comes, we hope for a better world than ever has been known."

Warm Welcome From Women. When Sir Wilfrid Laurier entered the auditorium yesterday afternoon at a

PRESIDED AT MEETING WHERE SIR WILFRID SPOKE ON SUFFRAGE

MRS. DONALD McLEAN,
President of Women's Canadian Club.

In Manitoba there are no such objections. But in the province of Quebec, the attitude would be very much that of England and France in the past. The belief of suffrage will be extended to the women of Ontario at no distant date.

Depends Upon Conditions. "It is my personal conviction that suffrage should be dependent upon local conditions. If a class in the community, equal to the voters in education and intelligence, wants franchise, this class should have it. There is no reason why Canadian women, equal in training and intelligence to the voters, should not have suffrage if they want it."

Where Public Opinion Is Made. "But I do not think that woman's suffrage would produce all the good effects which its friends expect. Public opinion is largely produced in the family, around the family table, where the father, mother and children gather. Generally, the opinion of one member of the family is the opinion of all. If suffrage were given, there would not be an appreciable difference. There would be more votes cast, but in about the same proportion. There would be in Ontario 60 per cent of votes in favor of prohibition and 40 per cent against, as at the present time."

"The advantage of suffrage, nevertheless, would be two-fold. It would remove a grievance from a class in the community who believe they have a grievance, because they are not allowed as men to express an opinion on public matters. The moment a class is dissatisfied with its lot, it ought to be the object of the state to make such readjustment that the man or woman citizen will be satisfied with his or her allegiance. In the second place, the woman looking for suffrage, having her grievance removed would dedicate to the state her abilities, ability and energy in public life."

Has Changed His Mind. At this point the speaker made the greatest confession that he had in his career changed his mind not once, but even twice and three times in regard to the question of the franchise for women.

"Five years ago, as premier of Canada, I was in London, England, for the coronation of King George V. I witnessed the great women's suffrage demonstration in which 40,000 women marched from the terrace to Albert Hall. Some of the best of England ran in the veins of the women in that parade. There were women there who traced their lineage to William the Conqueror, and who had worked very hard for a previous living. On the faces of all was an intense sentiment of earnestness. I said, 'If I were a member of the English Parliament, I would vote for women's suffrage.' I will say, when the women subsequently turned from the constitutional methods which they had followed to unconstitutional, I changed my mind at once."

Won By Service. "But during the war, much to their credit, the suffragists of England have ceased their agitation and devoted their whole attention to the work in which England is engaged at the present time. By service the women of England have won what they failed to achieve by agitation. At the next Parliament in England, the women will have the suffrage."

"Also in France there is a movement in favor of suffrage. I have in my hand the letter of the president of a French Union of Women's Suffrage, the grand-daughter of the great historian of the civilization of Europe."

"At the opening of the war this woman had five sons and one son-in-law, all of whom have gone to the front. One son is dead, another, perhaps worse, a prisoner in Germany. This woman, who has made a great sacrifice to the cause of civilization, has written a letter in reply to a manifesto purporting to come from a French section of the League for Permanent Peace, with headquarters in New York. The manifesto has suggested that victory for either side in the war is impossible, that the battle of necessity must be a drawn one, and that the sooner peace is declared the better."

French Woman's Sentiments. "Shame on those who can write and spread such words," says the president of the French Suffrage Union. "Would you class the invaders with those who defend their country? The future peace is not to be spoken of at this moment. Not one of us thinks so. Peace when it comes must insure deliverance for the future from such horrors of war as we are suffering at the present. But what are such sufferings of the war besides the bitterness of an insufficient peace? There can be no peace until victory."

"Such sentiments as these were expressed no later than yesterday by Mr. Asquith. These are the sentiments which animate every Canadian man and woman whose heart beats true. We hate war, but if there is war, it must be fought to an issue which will insure no recurrence of the horror of the past two years."

"If the women of France are animated by the spirit of this woman whom I have quoted, and the women of France have proved themselves, I think everybody will agree that the public life of France would be elevated if women had a right to take part in public life."

Turning his attention again to Canada, "We have evidence every day," continued Sir Wilfrid, "of the work of the women of Canada to alleviate the fatigues and sufferings of the men at the front. All honor to them for it!"

Tribute to Connaughts. Following, a fervent tribute of loyalty and admiration was paid their royal highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and the Princess Patricia on the eve of their departure from Canada.

"We have had the example," he said, "of the first lady of the land, the Duchess of Connaught. We in Ottawa know with what noble fortitude she has borne since the outbreak of war the trials her position, origin and life have placed upon her. By her example, devotion to duty and dignity of life, she has made the royal family of England a model in Canada than ever before. The Princess Patricia has endeavored herself to the Canadian people to such an extent that when the first regiment crossed the seas, it took the name of the young princess and put itself under her patronage. At Ypres and on other battlefields where these gallant Canadians distinguished themselves I must believe that their inspiration was not only their native bravery but the feeling as well that they must be equal to the name of the lady under whose patronage they had enlisted."

Debt to the Duke. "What of his royal highness the Duke of Connaught? I have known all the governor-generals since confederation with the exception of one, some of them intimately. They have been men of marked ability. Of all of whom he has been a successor, none has more earnestly or ably discharged the duties of the high office than the Duke of Connaught. No one who has left the office has carried back to England more than his royal highness. Very few appreciate fully the debt of gratitude we owe him for his service under the existing conditions. As a professional soldier, he would no doubt have preferred to be at the front in staying in Ottawa, to give the benefit of his advice. No doubt we will hear of him at the front very soon along with the brave men in Flanders."

"We are always shadowed by the thought, no matter to what subject we turn our attention. Thank God, conditions are different from what they were some time ago. The offensive now no longer belongs to the Germans, but to the Allied army. The end is certainly very far, but the end is in sight. The end will of a certainty be a vindication of the cause of the Allies. The return of peace will forever banish from Europe the war cloud which has shadowed it for many years. Our hearts are now with those at the front. When victory comes, we hope for a better world than ever has been known."

Warm Welcome From Women. When Sir Wilfrid Laurier entered the auditorium yesterday afternoon at a

Corduroy Skirts, $6.50

Wide-Wale Corduroy Velvet Skirts, in brown, taupe and green, sport style, with belt and pockets.

Second Floor.

HATS

Second Floor.

Untrimmed Silk Velvet Hats, large and medium sailors, also high turned-up shapes, a group of the newest modes for Saturday. At $3.00

A table of Large, Medium and Small Black Velvet Hats for Saturday's selling at $1, $1.25, $1.50, $2, $2.50 to $4

Misses' Cord Velvet Tams, in brown, navy and black. At $1.25

Children's Cord Velvet Hats, trimmed with rosette and band of silk, in white, navy and saxe. At $1.25

Children's Velour Hats, with band, brown only. At $1.50

Silk Dresses

Black or Blue Paillette Silk Dresses, with white crepe collar and cuffs, square collar of silk and bretteles, nice wide skirt. Special $12.50

Kimonos

Long Kimonos made of warm velour flannel, fitted at the waist on an elastic band, pretty colors of copen, sand, black and mauve, etc. At $1.50

Cut Glass

Cut Glass Water Jugs at $1.75

Tumblers to match at 25c each

Individual Cut Glass Vases, each 50c

Cut Glass Jelly Comports $1.50

Dress Goods

200 yards All-Wool Herringbone Serge, in navy, grey and black, 40 inches wide; our regular selling price is 85c. On sale Saturday only, per yard 69c of the Women's League for Permanent Peace, with headquarters in New York. The manifesto has suggested that victory for either side in the war is impossible, that the battle of necessity must be a drawn one, and that the sooner peace is declared the better."

French Woman's Sentiments. "Shame on those who can write and spread such words," says the president of the French Suffrage Union. "Would you class the invaders with those who defend their country? The future peace is not to be spoken of at this moment. Not one of us thinks so. Peace when it comes must insure deliverance for the future from such horrors of war as we are suffering at the present. But what are such sufferings of the war besides the bitterness of an insufficient peace? There can be no peace until victory."

"Such sentiments as these were expressed no later than yesterday by Mr. Asquith. These are the sentiments which animate every Canadian man and woman whose heart beats true. We hate war, but if there is war, it must be fought to an issue which will insure no recurrence of the horror of the past two years."

"If the women of France are animated by the spirit of this woman whom I have quoted, and the women of France have proved themselves, I think everybody will agree that the public life of France would be elevated if women had a right to take part in public life."

Turning his attention again to Canada, "We have evidence every day," continued Sir Wilfrid, "of the work of the women of Canada to alleviate the fatigues and sufferings of the men at the front. All honor to them for it!"

Tribute to Connaughts. Following, a fervent tribute of loyalty and admiration was paid their royal highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and the Princess Patricia on the eve of their departure from Canada.

"We have had the example," he said, "of the first lady of the land, the Duchess of Connaught. We in Ottawa know with what noble fortitude she has borne since the outbreak of war the trials her position, origin and life have placed upon her. By her example, devotion to duty and dignity of life, she has made the royal family of England a model in Canada than ever before. The Princess Patricia has endeavored herself to the Canadian people to such an extent that when the first regiment crossed the seas, it took the name of the young princess and put itself under her patronage. At Ypres and on other battlefields where these gallant Canadians distinguished themselves I must believe that their inspiration was not only their native bravery but the feeling as well that they must be equal to the name of the lady under whose patronage they had enlisted."

Debt to the Duke. "What of his royal highness the Duke of Connaught? I have known all the governor-generals since confederation with the exception of one, some of them intimately. They have been men of marked ability. Of all of whom he has been a successor, none has more earnestly or ably discharged the duties of the high office than the Duke of Connaught. No one who has left the office has carried back to England more than his royal highness. Very few appreciate fully the debt of gratitude we owe him for his service under the existing conditions. As a professional soldier, he would no doubt have preferred to be at the front in staying in Ottawa, to give the benefit of his advice. No doubt we will hear of him at the front very soon along with the brave men in Flanders."

"We are always shadowed by the thought, no matter to what subject we turn our attention. Thank God, conditions are different from what they were some time ago. The offensive now no longer belongs to the Germans, but to the Allied army. The end is certainly very far, but the end is in sight. The end will of a certainty be a vindication of the cause of the Allies. The return of peace will forever banish from Europe the war cloud which has shadowed it for many years. Our hearts are now with those at the front. When victory comes, we hope for a better world than ever has been known."

Warm Welcome From Women. When Sir Wilfrid Laurier entered the auditorium yesterday afternoon at a

J. H. Chapman & Co.

THE SATISFACTORY STORE 239, 241, 243 DUNDAS STREET.

FUR-TRIMMED WINTER SUITS $20

Handsome Blue Cheviot Suit, trimmed with fur. Distinctive style and excellent taste are displayed in every line of this new Russian-style suit; bottom of coat cuff and collar trimmed with black coney fur; the coat has becoming fullness gathered into belt effect; below the belt the coat flares as seen in this season's newest models; girdle-top skirt gathered at the back. This suit is faultlessly tailored and perfect fitting.

HANDSOME BLUE AND BLACK SERGE SUITS, $15.00. New long coat models with becoming fullness and flare, belted and lined with silk serge, made of finest quality all-wool serge, blue and black. Choice of several different styles.

PLUSH COATS AT $15.75, $23.75 AND $30.00. Now at its best, our showing of Women's Silk Seal Plush Coats, 46 to 50 inch lengths, in ripple effects, with large, square and high choker collars; beautiful rich materials, with silk linings. Garment Section, Second Floor.

FLANNELETTE NIGHTGOWNS. Women's White Flannelette Nightgowns, high V neck and long sleeves. Special at 75c

Slipover Flannelette Nightgowns, white only, trimmed with embroidery or lace edging. At $1.00

Full range of Children's Flannelette Nightgowns.

WARMLY-LINED PETTICOATS. Women's Black Sateen Petticoats with warm lining of red fleece, just in. At $1.50

SERGE MIDDY SKIRTS. Girls' Middy Skirts of blue serge, full pleated 4 to 6 years at $1.75

8 to 10 years at $2.00

LISTER'S SILK SEAL PLUSH

Fine qualities of Glossy Silk Seal Plush that has the appearance of real seal, splendid wearing with a rich, luxuriant pile, makes up beautifully. Note the fact that these are the genuine Lister make and were secured at old prices, which are much below the present-day value. $5.00, $6.50, $8.00 and $10.00 per yard

Women's and Children's Underwear

Women's Wool Vests and Drawers, soft and fine, splendid quality for winter wear, Watson's well-known make. At, per garment 75c and 85c

Zenith Brand Vests and Drawers, finest quality ribbed wool, white or natural. Per garment $1.00

Women's Combinations, full range of winter weights $1.00 upwards

SCOTCH TWEEDS. In splendid wearing quality and most desirable effects for winter wear, 45 inches wide, $1.00 value. At, per yard 85c

SATURDAY SPECIALS IN ALL DEPARTMENTS.

Women's Vests and Drawers, merino wool, winter weight. Per garment 50c

Women's Vests and Drawers, heavy ribbed fleece garments. Each 50c, 35c, and 29c

Infants' Button-Front Vests, all wool. At 50c and 75c

Silk and Wool at 50c and 75c

Union at 35c

The Ontario Furniture Company Homelovers' Club.

Your Wife and You

YOUR wife and you are partners in a business of your own, a business as old as the hills, but with no competition—the business of home-making. It is a business from which the good partners draw dividends that are far beyond and above the dreams of avarice. The more successful homes a country has the richer that country. Like other businesses, home-making demands understanding, tact, foresight and economy.

The Homelovers' Club organized by this store stands ready to help homelovers to make the most of their resources. By enrolling in the Homelovers' List you can take full advantage of our cash prices and arrange with the Secretary of the Club for spreading your payments over a certain number of months.

If you and your wife will apply for fuller particulars to the Secretary at our store we think that you—as a business firm—will realize the advantages of this Homelovers' Club.

Watch this store's advertising pages closely—they are indices to opportunities.

The Ontario Furniture Company, Limited

226-28-30 Dundas St. London's Largest Home Furnishers

BACKACHE, LUMBAGO AND RHEUMATIC TROUBLES.

Dear Mr. Editor—I wish to state that I suffered greatly from backache, lumbago and rheumatic troubles. I used "Anuric," the latest discovery of Doctor Pierce for backache and kidney troubles, and I recommend it to anyone suffering from any of these maladies.

Yours truly,
J. F. BARBER.

Note: It is now asserted with confidence that these painful effects due to uric acid in the system are entirely eradicated. A new remedy, called "Anuric," has been discovered by Dr. Pierce, and is the cause of a drainage outward of the uric acid with which it comes in contact within the body. It will ward off backache, headache, and the darting pains and aches of articular or muscular rheumatism—of those diseases which are caused by too much uric acid, such as gout, asthma, sciatica, renal calculus. "Anuric" prolongs life because old people usually suffer from hardening and thickening of the walls of the arteries, due to the excess of uric acid in the blood and tissues.

Dr. Pierce, who is director and chief physician at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has been testing this wonderful medicine with the relief of overworked and weakened kidneys. The relief obtained by suffering from these troubles is so great that he determined to place "Anuric" with the principal druggists in town where people could get this ready-to-use medicine. "Anuric" is not harmful or poisonous, but aids nature in throwing out those poisons within the body which cause so much suffering, pain and misery. Scientists assert this remedy is 27 times more potent than lithia. Send 10 cents for large trial package.

"Anuric" is building up a reputation as good as Dr. Pierce's other well-known medicines which have been proved reliable during nearly fifty years, such as Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the ills of women, Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets for the liver, regulator, and Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for red blood.

Don't Suffer Longer

and allow yourself to become grouchy, upset, nervous and depressed. These conditions usually indicate a disordered digestive system, which, if neglected, may be hard to remedy. Remove the disturbing element and put your digestive organs in good working order by taking

BEECHAM'S PILLS

They gently stimulate the liver, act on the bowels, tone the stomach—purify the blood and regulate the system. These benefits are particularly marked by women at such times when nature makes special demands upon their vitality. They act promptly and safely.

The next time you feel low-spirited and out of sorts, take Beecham's Pills. Their sure, mild, thorough action will

Give Quick Relief

Worth a Guinea a Box
Prepared only by Thomas Beecham, St. Helens, Lancashire, England
Sold everywhere in Canada and U. S. America. In boxes, 25 cents.

dian Club." Following the meeting, afternoon tea was served in the gymnasium, where a very large number had the honor of being presented to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, serving.