Miners were brought by rail from Missouri and escorted from the station to the mines, which it appears are fortified by a strong body of soldiers. The authorities of the State of Colorado and the Federal Government are determined that violence shall not prevail and that the laws shall be enforced. It is evident too that the strikers have lost the sympathy of the surrounding States. They must now see that they have gained nothing by the places of the strikers; so the chances the money? est of the whole community.
