THE PULPWOOD QUESTION

American pulp and paper interests are still anxiously enquiring what Canada intends to do on the pulpwood question in view of the situation created by the Alton tariff. There are many Americans who are still in doubt as to the exact meaning of the new tariff provisions affecting Canadian pulp and paper. The New York Journal of Commerce says of the matter: "It is reported from Montreal to be certain that the province of Quebec will assimilate its policy to that of Ontario in regard to the exportation of wood for pulp-making grown on the crown lands, which are leased for the cutting. This means an absolute prohibition of the export, done away with the export tax, which now discriminates the Quebec policy from that of Ontario. That will simplify the application of the countervailing duty provided for in our new tariff, so far as those provinces are concerned, and they are the only ones affected. It will simply result in imposing a duty of one-twelfth of a cent a pound, dry weight, upon mechanically ground wood for pulp from those provinces, instead of having it free from duty as from other sources, and will add one-tenth of a cent a pound to the duty on printing paper from there, when valued at three cents a pound or less." There will be no equivalent of an export tax to be added.

The provision for the countervailing duty makes no distinction between pulp wood, pulp or paper derived from material from crown lands and from other sources, but the instructions lately given by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to the Collector of Customs at Ogdensburg made that distinction and directed that the duty be collected only from pulp or paper made from wood from the Crown lands. If that is the proper construction of the law, it will affect only the smaller part of those articles imported from the two provinces, for it is said that somewhere from fifty to seventy per cent of those imported come from material grown on private property. The provisions cannot prohibit the export of those or impose a tax upon it. That can only be done by the Dominion Government, and it is understood that it is not disposed to adopt any such policy.

It is said, however, in the despatch from Montreal, that the Canadian press is almost unanimously in favor of Provisional and Federal prohibition of the export of pulp wood. It is argued that American paper makers are dependent upon Canada for their supply of this material, and if it is cut off, not only the grinding of the pulp, but the making of the paper, will have to be largely transferred to Canadian soil, building up the industries there. While that policy does not seem likely to be adopted by the Canadian Government, it is an interesting question what the consequence would be if it should be so.

"Would it be 'unduly' discriminating against the United States and lead to imposing the additional twenty-five per cent ad valorem to the 'import' tariff upon all imports from Canada? If there should be a general prohibition of the exportation of wood for pulp-making from Canada it would cover all the provinces and all the material, whether from public or private land, but it would apply to exportation to any and all countries, and not to the United States alone. Would the fact that the United States affords practically the only available market for the material make this constitute a discrimination against it 'unduly' or otherwise?—Quebec Telegram.

In the United States about 16 per cent of the divorces are granted after three or four years of married life.

After reading Dr. Cook's description of the trip to the North Pole, the wonder is that anybody failed to reach the coveted spot.

Of course the North Pole may have been discovered, but the discoverer carelessly neglected to saw a piece of the end and bring it back to show us. During the past seven years the postal system in China has expanded largely. The postal routes now cover 48,000 miles and there are 2,400 post offices.

There is nothing opportunity to show that the North Pole is any different from any other spot in all the world's miles of eternal ice and snow. But it is the Pole.

In the excitement of receiving Peary's story from Battle Harbor the world has developed the wireless telegraph in transmitting over four thousand words of press matter from a station equipped only for marine work. It is one of the most wonderful things yet to the credit of wireless telegraphy and adds another feather to the cap of Chevalier Marconi.

The North Pole does not appear to have been so bad a spot after all. The weather was comparatively mild, and Peary's lack followed him right to his goal. Five hours after his arrival at the top of the earth the clouds cleared away and he was favored with weather such as that experienced in the Canadian West in February. The thermometer was only 33 below, while the mercury at one time climbed as high as 12 below and the sky was cloudy.

EDITOR'S MAIL

Editor Campbellton Graphic.
Would you kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to state the contents of our work at Caughnawaga?

As perhaps many of your readers know, this is an Indian Mission situated about nine miles from the city of Montreal.

"Caughnawaga" is derived from an Indian name, "Ka-na-ow-ke," meaning "at the rapids." When the Indians first settled here they chose for their place of settlement that land at the rapids. But as the river runs the highway, many of the people lost their lives in crossing the river at high places, so they decided to move camp up the river, do the village where they now occupy just opposite the town of Lacolle.

The population of Caughnawaga at the last census was placed at four thousand, and now the French who have become in the eyes of the law Indians are included in the estimate. The natives of this place belong to the Huron-Trois-Rivières tribe. There is one Protestant Mission on the reserve of which the Rev. A. E. Mathews is the pastor, assisted by one of our Indians from Oak, Mr. Lazarus Frost, who is studying for the ministry.

This church was established here in the year 1857, and the Rev. Mr. Dieme was appointed the Missionary. A few years before this time some able local preachers were sent down to the reserve and who visited the Mission about once a month.

The only place to hold services on this day was in somebody's kitchen and therefore the house was so great you would scarcely recognize it to be a place of worship.

In the year 1897 a school house was built, and this up to the present time has served the purpose of school and church combined. Now, here to say with the population being in this is all the small for our services.

In the year 1905 the property on which the parsonage now stands was Tonic or Stimulant?

There is an immense difference between a tonic and a stimulant. Up one day, way back the next; that's a stimulant. Steady progress day by day toward perfect health; that's a tonic. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a tonic, a strong tonic. The only Sarsaparilla entirely free from alcohol. Do not stimulate unless your doctor says so. He knows. Ask him. Do as he says. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

bought by the Missionary Society and in June 1906 the parsonage was built, but not furnished. In 1907 the church property was bought, but all this was not without regret, as the council men did all in their power to keep us from getting the two lots, and when obtained tried to recall the property. We had hoped that one this time we would have had a church built where we could bring the people together, to give them the message of the Gospel, as it is very difficult to reach many of them out to the seclusion in the school.

The Missionary Society has asked that we raise $400 for this purpose. This has been no easy thing to do, with our small band, as the Indians are not rich in worldly goods. We number about 16, including children, and many of them work as laborers and some as there is little or no work on the reserve for our people to do. In order to raise money we organized a few years ago what we called a Ladies' Aid Society, but we have come to the conclusion that it ought to have been called a Ladies' and Men's Aid, as the men have been equally busy in making it a success. We have five lady members, and began by holding meetings once a month, each member in turn giving a meeting, when the ladies were supposed to meet about 2 o'clock in the afternoon for the purpose of sewing or doing other work for the benefit of the Society. The meetings would open with devotional exercises and any business matters to be transacted were then done. After this all would join in the work appointed for that day. In the evening a plain supper would be provided, each person paying 10 cents. If any of the members were absent, they too, would have to pay 10 cents. After supper we would generally have singing, as the Indians are very fond of music, and after this the meeting would close with prayer, all going to their homes after having spent a pleasant, and it is to be hoped, a profitable time together. At the end of the year a sale of work would be held.

We have not yet raised the required amount. We have so many needs rising up before us. There is the church and a larger school, of course, when the building is used for a school, I expect it will be enlarged, as it is so small for the number of people attending. Some quarters there are fifty and even sixty in attendance.

Another thing we have been wondering how we are going to get, and that is a musical instrument for the parsonage. Some of your readers probably know that we have had and have seen the prize contest therein, and if any would care to vote for the writer of this article in order that we might win the piano which will be left on the Mission. It would be very much appreciated by the people of this Mission.

Trusting we shall receive the help which we much need.

Yours in the Indian work,
