STARVED 'MID ARCTIC ICE.

Terrible Sufferings of the Peary Expedition—No Food and No Fuel.

New York Sept, 18.—A special from St. John's, Newfoundland, says: The inner history of the Peary expedition is coming to light. The members of the expedition endured great privations. They were compelled to eat walrus food and burn part of their house for fuel.

A tidal wave in Falcon harbor last October swept away a large part of Peary's stock of petroleum oil, which he intended to use for fuel, having special stoves to burn it. Part of this stock afterwards was recovered, but the supply of oil was exhausted in March, the worst period of the Arctic winter. From that time until August the cooking and eating had to be done with walrus and seal blubbers.

The discomfort of this was accentuated by the condition of Anniversary Lodge, the house in which the expedition wintered. It was totally unfit for a habitation. It had a glass roof, intended to attract the sun's rays, but when the Arctic night came on this proved worse than useless.

It had to be covered with boards and makeshift contrivances, and after each snowstorm the whole party had to work removing the snow, which otherwise would have crushed it in.

The sleeping quarters were uncomfortable in the extreme, separated from the fierce cold by only thin boards with felt coverings. The formations of frost on the walls after a night's sleep were some inches thick. After returning from his journey over the ice Capt. Peary announced his intention of remaining in Greenland another year.

He had cached a large stock of provisions on the inland ice, 130 miles from headquarters, and this diminished the quantity available at camp for the sustenance of the 14 persons who composed the expedition. As the season was of unusual severity economy was practised.

Had the Falcon failed to reach them all of Peary's party would have been compelled to live in Esquimaux huts and eat Esquimaux food all winter.

"Such a fate would have been a living death," said one of the members. "I would prefer not to be questioned as to what would have happened, the very thought of it makes me shudder. I will never face the Arctic regions again, unless with five years' provisions, so as to cope with any emergency. We were supposed to have equipments and supplies for two years, and if the Falcon had not reached us it would have been a serious matter."

The difficulties the Falcon had to contend with were only to be gauged by the declaration of Captain Bartlett and Chief Officer Tracey, both experienced navigators, who stated that they never met ice in such immense quantities and of such unusual thickness. Mr. Tracey has made nine voyages north and never saw the like.

AN INTERESTING RELIC.

A 12-Foot Log That Formed a Portion of a Beaver Dam.

Mr. John Langstaff brought into The World office yesterday a log which for over 100 years has formed a portion of an ancient beaver dam.

The dam was built in the Don, near where Yonge-street crosses that stream at Thornhill, long before the city of Toronto was thought of. Mr. Langstaff gives this interesting story of the old dam:

"Old settlers have told me that the beaver dam existed in 1794. In 1801 John Lyons built a dam to secure power for a sawmill. The back water submerged the beaver dam completely. The saw mill changed hands several times and in 1878 a big freshet washed away the dam, but left the work of the beavers intact and showing above the water. In May of this year the floods caused by the heavy rains carried away part of the beaver dam, and part of this log, 12 feet long, was carried down. I sawed a portion of it off and this is it. It was undoubtedly cut by the beavers, and the pointed ends show their peculiar method of felling trees."

THE TOASTING FORK.

It Takes an Important Place in the Home Comforts of an English Household.

Those who read the list of wedding presents showered upon the explorer Stanley and his bride must remember the astonishing number of toasting forks. If unfamiliar with English life, the present of one no doubt seems odd, but part of the furnishings of every English dining-room is a silver toasting fork. It is a pleasant sight to see a fair English lady, girl or matron, using this implement for the benefit of some favored guest, or quite as often for the husband or brother who has come in unexpectedly just as tea is being served.

A pretty fashion prevailed in England some years ago, and there is no reason why it should not be introduced on our afternoon tea tables, although it has long since been abandoned by those who invented it, says The New York Times. It was a tray for the silver service and was made for beadwork, usually in scroll or arabesque pattern and framed heavily in gilt. It resembled a panel picture, but with rounding ends. At the four corners rounds of wood about the size of a half-dollar and a half-inch thick were placed to serve as feet.

The general impression made upon a stranger by the English dining-room is that the idea of heaviness is carried out the table; their simplicity and prettiness are paramount. These are quite compatible with the proverbial dignity of the English dinner, which is too solemn a function to be included in a desultory survey of the dining-room and its accessories.

A lady in Syracuse writes: "For about seven years before taking Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, I suffered from a complaint very prevalent with our sex. I was unable to walk any distance, or stand on my feet for more than a few minutes at a time, without feeling exhausted; but now, I am thankful to say, I can walk two miles without feeling the least inconvenience. For female complaints it has no equal." d

THE CANADIAN LADY.

Max O'Rell Writes of Canada and Her Daughter in His New Book.

Max O'Rell's new book, "John Bull & Co.," has just been issued.

When Mr. Blouet writes of "John Bull & Co." he means the English provinces, Canada and Australia principally, leaving India for another book.

The ladies of the countries that he visits always interest Mr. Blouet, and he naturally describes the Canadian lady, who, he says, is:

"A happy combination of her English and American sisters. She has the physical beauty, the tall, graceful figure and the fine complexion of the former, allied to the decided bearing, the naturalness, the frank glance and the piquancy of the latter. If, added to these, one could have the shrewd common-sense and the irresistible charm of the Parisienne the result would be a really ideal woman. The amount of out-door exercise taken by Canadian women in their winter games and pastimes goes far to explain the beauty of their complexions. The air of Canada is dry, the houses are heated the same way as American houses, yet these two things, often advanced as the cause of the American belles' pallor, do not prevent the Canadian women from having brilliant complexions."

Where Rain Never Falls.

There is perhaps no more curious place on the Pacific seaboard than Iquique. It stands in a region where rain has never been known to fall, and where, as was remarked by Darwin when he visited Iquique in 1835, the inhabitants live like people on board ship. These number about 14,000, nearly all connected with the staple industry of the port, due to the development of the nitrate industry on the adjacent pampas. The rain gauges at Lima, close to the Pacific, record absolutely no rainfall. There are several parts of the earth where rain never falls. Such are the Sahara, or great desert of Africa, and considerable tracts of Arabia, Syria, Persia, Tibet and Mongolia in the old world, while in South America the rainless districts comprise narrow strips on the shores of Peru, Bolivia and Chili and on the coasts of Mexico and Guatemala, with a small district between Trinidad and Panama on the coast of Venezuela.—Brooklyn Eagle.

HEAD AND SHOULDERS above every other blood-purifier, stands Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. See the evidence of it. It's sold in every case, on trial. If it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

In restoring your strength, when you're "run-down" and "used-up;" in cleansing your blood from every impurity, whether it's a simple eruption or the worst scrofula; and in building up wholesome flesh, when you're thin and weak—there's nothing to equal the "Discovery." In every disease caused by a torpid liver or impure blood, it's the only guaranteed remedy.

Mrs. ELIZABETH J. BUSHWAW, of Sidney, Ohio, writes: "My little boy was so afflicted with liver trouble and other diseases that our family physician said he could not live. In fact, they all thought so. I gave him Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pellets and they saved his life. We have used the 'Discovery' for throat and bronchial trouble, and found such perfect relief that we can recommend it very highly."

Tips From Wall-Street.

Worinser has liquidated a large amount of Gas.

Earnings of St. Paul for second week of September show a decrease of $19,000.

Nelson Morris has resigned as a director of Distillers.

Henry A. King & Co.'s special wire from Ladenburg, Thalman & Co., New York: The bears had further success in raiding the leading industrials this morning, and it was not until afternoon that the excess of bearish operations asserted its influence in the shape of a rally. The weakest features were again Sugar and Distillers, the latter touching the lowest figure on record for the stock. Rumors that the court swould have to be appealed to were kept in circulation, and it was also asserted that the Whisky insiders had sold out. As regards Sugar, the cry has been that the speculative pool want lower pricesk and that the management itself is looking forward with anxiety to the meeting of Congress and the outcry against trusts. Chicago Gas, though firm at first, yielded to a vigorous attack, led by prominent bears. With the exception of Rock Island, the Grangers, though pressed by the bears, did not yield to any great extent. Stop orders have been caught in the industrials, and liquidation has been forced in Distillers and Sugar. Long stock, however, has not come out and after a further drive at Sugar, which fell to 94 3-4, the bear leaders showed a disposition to take back stocks, which checked the declining tendency. Whisky was affected favorably by the resignation of one director and by rumor that the president of the company may follow the example. The recoveries, except in this latter case, have not been marked, nor is there any symptom of bullish feeling in the market, which turned almost entirely on the extent and rapid growth of the bear interests. At the close there was a tendency to create renewed weakness in Gas, while the rest of the list, including Grangers, were steady and dull.

Henry A. King & Co.'s special wire from Logan & Co., Chicago: From opening there has been no feature to wheat; a light local scalping trade. The price of 40c per bushel at San Francisco caused a good deal of comment. We cannot confirm this gossip, but have asked for it. We can only repeat what we said yesterday as to the future. The trade in corn has been like wheat, local, with light fluctuations. The future price is a good deal a question of receipts. We think May corn at this stage of the game too high. Provisions—The business has been better than in any of the other pits. There has been constant buying by brokers, supposed to be for some packing interest who had sold at lower prices. All hog products on weak spots will do to buy boldly. Receipts hogs to-morrow 22,000.

Schwartz, Dupee & Co., Chicago, wired Dixon: Wheat started rather weak, and closed firm. Large Northwestern receipts and weak cables had most to do with the early decline. A reduction in the French crop estimate and the statement by The Prairie Farmer that a large part of the present surplus would be disposed of in feeding had something to do with the final strength. Contract stock increased 250,000 bushels. Baltic shipments were slightly smaller than the week before. Export clearances made a total of over 400,000 bushels. Corn kept within a range of about 3-4c, acting weak early, but firm towards the close. Light receipts had most to do with the rally; 417 cars, and 215 estimated for Wednesday. The contract stock increased almost 300,000. There were frosts in Iowa, but warmer weather is predicted for to-morrow. There was some covering by local shorts. The Prairie Farmer estimated the crop at 1,357,000 bushels.
