LETTER FROM FREDERICK B. MORGAN TO HIS PARENTS, MR. AND MRS. GEORGE P. MORGAN

Dear Mother:—

Just a few lines to let you know that I am on the firing line at last, and am well and happy. Had a good time coming across from England to France. I am going in the trenches tonight. Write me the Bear River news and give my love to all the folks at home. I do not know if I will be home, the bullets are flying everywhere. We are only thirty-five yards from the German trenches. They say they will give us their trenches in November. I hope it is true. The moon is fading behind the clouds. I will say good bye and try to rest a bit.

From your son,

FRED B. MORGAN,

SOME FACTORS INFLUENCING THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE CANADIAN EGG TRADE

(By W. A. Brown, B. S. A., Chief of Poultry Division, Live Stock Branch, Ottawa.)

Increased Production

From present indications, it would appear as if the year 1915 will establish a record for egg production in both the United States and Canada. While no accurate figures giving details of total production are obtainable, statistics of stocks of eggs in storage at the end of June, published in the various trade journals, give a reasonably accurate indication of the general trend of production as compared with other years. According to "The Egg Reporter" the total stocks in storage, June 30th, 1915, for the main storage centres in the United States; namely, Chicago, New York, Boston and Philadelphia, amounted to 3,599,500 cases as compared with a total of 2,947,000 cases on the same date of the previous year, an excess of over 600,000.

No aggregate figures for Canada have been prepared, although it has been estimated on the part of the various Canadian produce associations that there are at least 20,000 cases more eggs in storage in Montreal this year than last; approximately the same in Toronto, and from 25,000 to 30,000 cases more in chief centres of the Western Provinces.

While it has been frequently pointed out that consumption has not been as great this year as in previous years, the decrease has not been such as to account for the large excess in storage. Further evidence of the invalidity of this argument is the fact that single local centres like Belleville, Brockville, etc., report receipts of several thousand cases more than last year.

While undoubtedly there was more poultry in the country at the commencement of the egg season, it has been pointed out that the high production was largely due to the favorable season. It will be recalled that the season of high production opened early owing to the comparatively mild weather in the month of March. The month of April was also warm, while May was comparatively cool. So rapidly did production increase in March, that many of the storage men were not ready and the result was that prices dropped to a lower point in the third week in March than at any time later. In fact, owing to the high price of feed and the excellent market for poultry at that time, many farmers seriously considered selling off a portion of their stock. With prospects, however, of a profitable export trade in the fall, competition in buying for storage became keen, prices improved materially, and this, together with the "Patriotism and Production" campaign being conducted at that time, offset for the time being at least, any untoward tendency towards an unusual depletion of farm flocks. It is reported, however, that the uncertain conditions of the market early in the season had the effect of curtailing somewhat the number of chickens hatched this year.

Information at hand indicates that, although the increase in production has been general throughout the Dominion, it has been particularly notable in the Prairie Provinces and in Ontario, Quebec and Prince Edward Island. In the instance of the last three, the increase has been gradual and not greatly in excess of current requirements, but in the Western provinces, the surplus has been of such an extent as to cause serious fluctuations in prices in several local markets, particularly in the Province of Saskatchewan.

The Situation in the Western Provinces

As pointed out above, the situation in Western Canada with regard to eggs, has been much different this year from that of any previous year. Up to and including the year 1913, all of the Western Provinces have been importers of eggs. British Columbia still imports large quantities, but instead of importing from the United States and Eastern Canada, now secures her requirements from her sister provinces. Ten years ago the Prairie Provinces imported eggs the year round. Later, as internal production increased, imports were confined to the winter season. During 1914, production more than equalled the consumption. In fact, some storage eggs were shipped east. It remained, however, for the year 1915 to mark an epoch in the history of the interprovincial egg trade of the Dominion, for in this year for the first time in the history of the country, fresh gathered eggs have been shipped in quantities from the Western to the Eastern Provinces of Canada.

In addition, the Prairie Provinces have this year supplied all of the requirements of British Columbia, and from their stocks in storage will have a considerable quantity either for export or to supply the deficiency caused by the export of eggs from Eastern Canada.

As has been frequently pointed out, the development of the poultry industry in the Western Provinces of Canada bids fair to rival and excel that of the States of Iowa, Missouri and Kansas.

It is evident, however, that the extent of this development depends entirely upon the ability of Canadians to find a satisfactory market for the product.

The Export Trade

Although the report for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1915, shows that the imports of eggs into Canada were still greater than the exports by 900,497 dozen; namely, 4,493,396 dozen as against 3,592,899 dozen, it is noteworthy that last fall Canada exported considerable quantities to the British market.

This year, with the unprecedented conditions prevailing in Europe and the resultant shortage of eggs on the British market, the exportation of eggs commenced earlier than usual. Up to and including the second week in July, a total of 58,627 cases of fresh gathered eggs, a great portion of which were "Canadians," have been shipped from the port of Montreal, chiefly to Liverpool, Glasgow, London and Manchester. The demand still continues, but at the time of writing the shipments have fallen off considerably owing to the impossibility of securing refrigerated space.

The outlook for fall shipments of storage eggs is good however, and it is reported that already several large contracts for Canadian eggs have been secured. The United States is also looking to the British market to absorb a large part of their surplus of 600,000 cases. It is evident, therefore, that with the Russian supply largely cut off, and the supplies of other foreign countries seriously interfered with, the chief competitors on the British market this fall will be the United States and Canada.

Having in mind the fact that Canada, an agricultural country, will soon become an extensive exporter of eggs, it is of the greatest importance that with the exceptional opportunity offered for entrance into the British market, special precautions be taken at the present time to establish a creditable reputation for Canadian eggs in that market. The United States has the quantity—it remains for Canada to establish her name on the basis of quality.

DREYFUS BACK IN WAR

Alfred Dreyfus, hero of the notorious spy trial that split France into bitter factions several years ago, has re-entered the army and is now commanding one of the forts surrounding Paris. Dreyfus who was a captain of artillery when he was convicted of having sold to Germany plans of a new French gun, was promoted to the rank of major after his re-trial and acquittal. He holds the same rank now. Though he is 54 years old Dreyfus volunteered his services at the outbreak of the war, because he was eager to rehabilitate himself in the minds of any doubters.

THE FUTURE OF THE NATION

To the Editor:—

I wish the following part of Globe Editorial might be read by everyone. We cannot side-step the issue. We must move forward with other nations or we will imperil our very existence as a nation.

"With commendable promptness after the prohibition of the use of Volodka in Russia came the virtual prohibition of the use of absinthe in France. The free social use of alcohol beverages connotes much beside the drunkenness; over devotion to sports, to gambling, to frivolous social functions and much else that is worse than any of these things. Economically Russia will come out of the war practically unscathed and Germany's recovery from her losses may be alarmingly rapid if her people continue voluntarily the self-denial now imposed on them by duress. How shall it be with the whole British Empire made up of far flung fragments scattered over every part of the ocean?"

The answer to this question must be as wide spread as the Empire. The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland will have to become sober; so will all the Naval Stations, trading posts, police headquarters; all the places even the minutest over which the British Monarch reigns and the British Government rules and the British Flag waves. The penalty for continued self indulgence will be the imperilment of British civilization, the forfeiture of British economic pre-eminence and the irreparable loss of British moral and political influence on the direction and rapidity of human civilization. As unprecedented as this war will be its unparalleled results. A new world in the most significant and sobering sense of that term will emerge with the coming peace and that is near enough to serve as a motive for honest self examination and resolute action."

CODFISH DYED TO IMITATE SALMON

New York, Oct. 4.—Announcement was made today by the health department that it had seized 300 pounds of codfish which had been dyed red and shipped to this city as Alaska salmon. The seizure was made Saturday at a cold storage plant and an investigation at the health department laboratories it developed that the alleged salmon was the common codfish with dye injected so that the outer layer of fish was a deep red hue, the second layer a shade of pink and the third layer a pale pink. Below that the fish was white.
