It is a timely and welcome decision from the legal office of the city that the contractor's deposits in the hands of the city may be used after forty-eight hours' notice for the repairing of the roads. It may, of course, lead to litigation, but it is one thing to have the money in hand as a guarantee, and let the contractor sue, and quite another thing to sue the contractor and then go to look for the money.

We think the city can afford to consider the question of accepting the proposition to build the street railway line to Cedar avenue, provided certain grading and cutting is done by the city. The mystery is, why the railway people do not care to go farther. Even if the traffic is not there already, it would quickly come; and if not a paying line in itself, the company can afford to be generous, even if only to appease public sentiment, which is evidently very strongly against them on this question; and some day that public may find an opportunity for reprisal.

It begins to look as though we might have the Grand Trunk offices in Victoria Square. The indicating straws are blowing that way; and while we think it might be a bad precedent, there is, apart from that, much in its favor. It might tend to reestablish Radegonde street and Beaver Hall Hill, which have of late not maintained their rightful place in the progress of the city. Owners might then be encouraged to build in that vicinity, and thereby increase the revenue of the city.

We surely do not want a twenty-thousand-dollar morgue for this city. It looks as though somebody wanted the city to want it. All that is needed is a small, unpretentious building in some small side-street
