

I hope that we are psychologically prepared for this challenge. It has come upon us rather suddenly and tends to shake the basis on which we have always thought about our relationship with native people. I suppose, in a way, we tend to react like somebody who has been standing on the other fellow's toes for so long that we are indignant when he wants to pull his foot out. I hope we can overcome this for his sake and ours.

—Dr. Lloyd Barber, former Commissioner of Indian Claims
