coffers of the Electrical Development Company. The syndicate that controls this company, the transmitting company and the light company fixed the price of Niagara electricity as between the manufacturing and distributing companies at $35 per horsepower per annum meter measurement, or $25 flat rate. Mr. Wright says the light company buys on the meter basis-$35-and over and above the cost price the company has got to earn enough to cover its working expenses and other proper charges and pay its dividend of 8 per cent. to its shareholders. So it charges to-day rates for power stated in the

to be paid by the light company and the street railway company to the Electrical Development Company, whose in-terests were particularly considered by the syndicate that controlled both the selling and buying companies? It is of public knowledge that the Electrical Development Company in foating part of its bond issue on the English market gave special prominence in its prospectus to these very contracts, and assured prospective investors that the return to be derived from them would be sufficient to pay interest on the whole bond issue authorized, and also to provide the redemption fund. In these circumstances ft is a natural inference that the contract prices were fixed primarily for the purpose of securing a successful flotation of the Development Company's bonds, and that the right of the citizens of Toronto to receive light and power at the lowest rate possible, after payment of working and other legitimate expenses, and of a fair dividend to the Had the Toronto Electric Light Com- large share of the ultimate responsibilpublic; it is inconceivable that contracts dividends passed. of the character represented could ever have been entered into in the way and manner they were. This matter has a vial bearing on the electrical situation in Toronto, as it presents itself to the citizens to-day. The apologists for the electric syndicate conveniently ignore the strong presumption that the Toronto Electric Light Company has not been randled as a thoroly independent company out to buy on the most advantageous terms for its shareholders and customers would have been. But it is this very thing that so greatly strengthens the case for a municipal distributing plant and renders so undesirable either proposal to establish the light company as a quasi-public trust, after the type of the gas company, or to accept a partnership in it as it is now constituted. What the citizens of Toronto have get to keep in mind is that only by the passing of the bylaw about to be submitted will the city council be enabled to meet the
