BY MARY HOWITT. There's not a flower upon the hill, There's not a leaf upon the tree; The summer bird hath left its bough, Bright child of sunshine, singing now In spicy lands beyond the sea.

There's silence in the harvest field, And blackness in the mountain glen; And clouds that will not pass away From the hill-tops, for many a day; And still surround the homes of men.

The old tree hath an older look;
The lonely place is yet more dreary;
They go not now the young and old,
Slow wandering on by wood and wold;
The sir is damp, the winds are cold,
And summer paths are wet and weary.

In rich men's halls the fire is piled,
And furry robes keep out the weather;
In poor men's huts the fire is low,
Through broken panes the keen winds blow,
And old and young are cold together.

Oh! poverty is disconsolate!—
Its pains are many, its foes are strong;
The rich man in his jovial cheer
Wishes 'twas winter through the year;
The poor man mid his wants profound,
With all his little children round,
Prays God that winter be not long.

FATE OF SPANISH RULERS.—Retribution strangely follows in this life the trifler with the lives of his fellow men; and when the tiger of the Peninsula is let loose he tears his victim to pieces. Though the fumes of blood cast a film over the eyes of despots, which hides from them the end that awaits them—an end as cruel as their lives had been—the finger of an avenging Providence not less certainly writes their doom in invisible ink upon the pulacewall.

writes their doom in invisible lisk upon the palace-wall.

The Conde de Espana was a wholesale murder-er, and was slain by his own people; Moreno, the political butcher of Malaga, was hinself assassinated in the end; Quesada, the trampler of the Madrid populace beneath his horse's hoofs, was torn by that populace asunder, and his mutilated fingers stirred a convivial bowl for the Nacionales who slew him; the Governor of Cadiz, in 1830, was assassinated for his severities, in the street; Elio, Captain General of Valencia, was the excutioner of his political adversaries, and perished on the scaffold. The contemporary annals of Portugal furnish similar instances; for, within ten years, Gomez Freire, an unpopular Minister, was shot down in the streets of Lisbon, Telles Jordao, the inhuman persecutor of the Constitutionalist prisoners in the Tower of St. Juliar, was torn in pieces and as frightfully mutilated as Quesada was in Madrid. This is the true mirror for Ministers in the Pennisula—the awful lesson which "must give them pause" in the midst of their riot of power and berbarous instincts. "No hay boda sin tornaboda," says a significant Spanish proverb—"There is no wedding but there is a day after it."

wedding but there is a day after it."

WINTER IN THE SOUTH OF SFAIN.—In this delicious climate vegetation is never suspended, except by the excessive heats of summer. The genuine spring is usually about Christmas, and the choicest truit is in bloom when the ground of England is focked up with frost; when vegetation is hoar nipped, and the snow is heaped on every bough and twig. It is in winter here that the climate is truly lovely, and in summer and autumn only that one might sigh to be elsewhere. From November to May it is Heaven or an Elysium. In winter the only drawbacks are the excessive rains; but the alternative of shower and sunbeam is even then extremely frequent, and whenever it occurs, delightful. The sunbeams sparkle out like molten brilliants, with a lustre that happily does not smite and madden, and pierce the brain, (as too often in the depth of summer.) and the light, "through purest crystal gleaming," is mild, ethereal and benignant. Inconvenient as are at times these terrible showers, pouring on, like a deluge for days and without internission, no milder treatment would soften and prepare the ground, break up the indurated soil of summer, and fit it for the reception of seed. It was in Andalusia that the ancients placed the Elysian Fields.

SOMETHING NEW FOR THE LADIES.—It is pleasant occasionally to find ascientific mind on the side of the ladies, so far as the peculiarity of a portion of their wardrobe has forever and aye excited F the opposite sex. We perceive that at a recent sitting of the French Academy of Sciences, Dr. Pierquin read a paper in favor of the corsect as an article which should be worn by females. He ridiculed medical men for attributing consumption and various other diseases to this cause, and declares that the inferiority of the muscle in that part of the female frame requires the aid of this outer case. To this, a crusty Old Bachelor adds—"Dr. P. must have some interest in a corset-making establishment."

Who's for and whose against the corset? Who NEW and SPLENDIDLY ILLUSTRATED BRITISH PUBLICATIONS, Who's for and whose against the corset? Who shall decide when Doctors disagree; but it must be told truly that one thousand Physicians argue against their use to one in their favor. But, still, Doctor Pierquin is likely to become popular with the ladies.

A Western Judge.—A paper published somewhere out West-gives the following report of a Judge's sentence lately passed on a criminal. Brumley was doubtless a 'hard case,' but what kind of a case the judge is, our readers may determine:

Brumley, you infamous scoundre!!—you're an unredeemed villain—you haint a single redemin' trait in your character—your wife and family wish we had sent you to the Penitentiary. This is the fifth time Fee had you up before we, and you have put me to more trouble than your neck is worth. Fee exhorted and prayed over you long enough, you scoundre!! Just go home and take one glimpse at your family, and be off—in short don't let us ever hear of you again. The grand Jury have found two other indictments against you, but Fll discharge you on your own recognizance, and if I ketch you in this neck of woods to-morrow morning at daylight, Fll sock you right square in jeil and hump you off to Jeffersonville in little less than no time—you infamous scoundre!! If I ever ketch your tinger at man, woman or child—white man or nigger—Fll sock you right square in to the jug—stand up! you scoundre!! while I pass sentence on you?
