ANNOUNCEMENT!

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's immortal poem, the most dramatic in all American literature, has been made to live and move and breathe in the wonderful motion picture presentation of—

EVANGELINE

It was produced by William Fox as the screen's contribution towards the perpetuation of the charmping story. It visualizes the word picture painted by the great poet, and all who love his works, will wish to see it.

Wills Knocks Out Bennett.
New York, June 5—Harry Wills, of New Orleans, negro heavyweight champion, knocked out Ray Bennett at this city in the first round of a scheduled fifteen-round bout at a new open air arena in Long Island City, last night.

LACROSSE.
Cornwall Wins.
Cornwall, Ont., June 6—Playing the kind of almost by which championships are won, the Cornwall Colts Saturday took the Senators of Ottawa into camp by the score of 10 to 1. The local outclassed the visitors at all stages.

THE BIG FIGHT OF JULY; OTHERS OF PAST DAYS

New York, June 6—With a difference in weight of about twenty pounds when they meet in the ring four weeks hence, Dempsey and Carpenter will otherwise appear almost equal in build and stature. If both were to mix in among a few collegiate athletes, football players and carmen, probably neither would be picked out as being unusually big or formidable in general make up. Dempsey stands six feet 1 1/2 inches in height, just two inches taller than the French champion, and while Carpenter will weigh about 170 pounds in fighting condition, Dempsey expects to enter the ring slightly under 180 pounds.

The champion's shoulders are broad, while Carpenter's are sloping in shape, but otherwise the bodily measurements of the pair do not differ to any marked extent.

Experts who have seen both men are satisfied that they will be well matched in speed and cleverness, but the majority believe that Dempsey will carry by far the heavier weight in his blows.
Dexterity and suppleness are claimed as advantages for the Frenchman by his following, but just how hard a punch he can deliver is still a problem.

Dempsey showed in his bout with Willard at Toledo that his blows possess enormous punishing power, but his more recent encounters with Bill Ivens at Madison Square Garden did not demonstrate that he still retains the forceful punch necessary successfully to stand off a man of Carpenter's undoubted ability and cleverness.

Just how good the challenger is is how hard a blow he can land is problematical to the majority of American fistic patrons, who have seen him in action. His only bout here, that with Levinson in Jersey City last year, did not afford much of a line on Carpenter's power. Levinson, always a clever boxer, made practically no serious effort to defend himself on that occasion and went down and out an easy victim for the Frenchman in the fourth round.

Nearly thirty years have elapsed since Queensberry rules and glove contests were substituted for the London prize ring code governing pugilistic contests for championship titles. In most of the bouts fought for the heavyweight championship since the change took place, there was a decided advantage in stature between the principals, but this did not always carry victory with it.

Beginning with the Corbett-Sullivan battle at New Orleans in 1892, the big Boston man was massive in proportion to the lithe, supple and extremely clever Californian, but the smaller man bore the big champion down and annexed the title in the twenty-first round. Corbett was one and one half inches taller but fifteen pounds lighter than Sullivan, who stood five feet 10 1/2 inches and weighed about 200 pounds.

Corbett and Bob Fitzsimmons were more evenly matched in height and age.
Corbett was half an inch taller and four years younger than the Cornishman, but he was nearly twenty pounds heavier than Fitzsimmons when the latter knocked him out and won the title at Carson City, March 17, 1897.

Two years later James J. Jeffries, of huge build and outweighing Fitzsimmons by fully fifty pounds, won the title in eleven rounds from Bob at Coney Island, and five months later, in November, 1899, Jeffries got a retiree's decision over Tom Sharkey in a twenty-five round bout in the same arena. Sharkey was several inches shorter and about twenty pounds lighter than the then champion.

Corbett challenged Jeffries twice for the title, but was knocked out by the bigger man each time, once in twenty-three rounds and the next time in ten rounds.
Jack Johnson, who defeated Jeffries at Reno, Nev., in 1910, was nearer to the big man's size than any of the other heavyweights who had met him for the title in the previous ten years. Johnson was three years younger, one inch shorter and only ten pounds lighter than the Ohioan. Johnson scored a knockout in fifteen rounds.

Jesse Willard, the giant Kansan, was by all odds the biggest man who ever held the world's heavyweight title. He stood six feet, six inches, weighed 250 pounds and had decided advantages in every way over Johnson when he won from the negro at Havana, in 1915.
When he met Dempsey, two years ago, these physical advantages did not enable him to withstand Dempsey's sudden onslaught, so he confessed afterward that he did not remember much after he was knocked down in the opening round.

Bishop's School Defeated.
Montreal, June 6—Playing their annual match, the eleven representing the Ashbury College Cricket Club defeated the eleven representing Bishop's College School of Lennoxville by 50 runs on Saturday.
