It is a fair question to ask, if this money had been invested in local busi-ness and industries, if it would not have yielded more satisfactory returns. When money is invested abroad, the investor must needs depend upon the statements and the hönesty of man-agers over whom he has no direct con-trol, and in many cases he knows very little personally about the real condi-tions. The thing seems to promise well, and he takes the chances. It is fair to ask if his interests are any more likely to be served with fidelity abroad It is a fe n. N. B. Star Line S. S. Go
