She entered the smoking-car of a Western train and solemnly refused to go into another car, observing that her presence would keep the occupants from smoking. One stone wretch, however, insensible to the claim of refinement and reform, began to enjothis accustomed cigar, which was sudden by snatched from his lips, with the remark, in high treble, "If there is anything I do hate it is tobacco smoke!" For time the offender was silent and motion less, then gravely rising, amid the plan dits of the assembled smokers, he too' that little poodle and gently threw hin out of the window, sighing, "If there is anything I do hate it is a poodle!" No mortal pen could describe the feelings of that reformer.

It is mentioned that the spinning wheel, as a source of fashionable female occupation, is coming into vogue again. Somebody suggests that its romance has been revived, because the wheel figures so often in imported pictures along with pretty girls. Nothing better than spinning shows off a fine arm and figure, except perhaps harp-playing, which has become about obsolete. Certainly spinning is a more useful and rational employment than working impossible dogs on canvas in Berlin wool.

One of the politest newspapers we have ever seen is The Corinne (Utah) Reporter, which thus apologizes for rather a great mistake: "It was our misfortune to labor SAINT JOHN, N. We have thought that the funniest of all "strikes" was that of the household servants who wanted more wages "beause coals and provisions is high." But cause coals and provisions is high." But this is made of no account by the strike of the beggars of Treves, who have been in the habit of getting a dole for praying on a fixed day for the prosperity of the town. As prices rose in the market, so rose the price of those prayers, the plous beggars refusing to pray at all unless their wages were doubled. To lose the benefit of these benedictions was not to be thought of; the city corporation has submitted—the strike is successful.

The death of the Countess Teres Spaur is announced from Vienna. Her name is remembered chiefly in connection with that of His Holiness the Pope, who, at the outbreak of the revolution in Rome in 1848, after the assassination of Count Rossi, escaped in a private carriage and made his way to Gaeta, the st town in the New Olltim territor. The Countess just deceased was the lady who, at no little personal risk to herself, conveyed the Pope safely out of Rome on that occasion, disguised as a footman, or as his domestic chaplain. Pope Pious has always regarded her good offices with grateful recollection, and her last hours were gladdened by the benediction of His Holiness.

"Hamlet" was recently acted at Lafayette, Indiana, and its performance was mentioned in the following tender strain, by the Journal of that place: "Hamlet must have been a remarkable man not to have gone mad in the midst of such characters as the aimless mother, the insipid and discordant Ophelic, and the noisily empty Laertes, as they were presented on this stage. We confess to a secret satisfaction at the poisoning of the Queen, who in roughing her cheeks, got a double dose on the end of her nose and we experienced a malicious joy in the unskillful stabbing of Lucrtes, who served death, if for no other reason funeral with more pleasure. So-called "spiritual" phenomena are undergoing tacit attack in London in the performance of a certain Herr Dobler. This person does exactly the very same things which the Davenport Brothers dic, but without claiming the assistance of any supernatural agency. His audience sits in darkness for about two minutes, while he binds himself hand and foot to a ch ir. The rope is then examined, at appears quite fast, the knot being between his hands and seemingly so tight as to render it impossible to withdraw them. The light is again extinguished, he is guarded upon the platform by two well-known inembers of the audience, suddenly a tembourine flies about the room, and a bell is rung. ine flies about the room, and a bell is rung.

Other things Herr Dobler does which show that with hands and legs tightly tied he can do more than most people can accomplish with hands at liberty. He borrows a coat from a spectator, puts it beside him on the table, the light gces out, is instantly rekindled, and the coat is on his back, his hands tied as before;

is on his back, his hands then as before; in another dark moment it is off and thrown to the lender. The lights are extinguished upon his hands filled with flour, and in two minutes they are found untied with the flour still remaining in them. He acknowledges that this is all mere sleight of hand.
