DIGNITY OF LABOR

That the visit of the Prince of Wales to his ranch in Western Canada is good immigration advertising for Canada is conceded by all who give the matter thought.

If the educated young person of today is not to lose sight of the dignity of labor, the home must supplement the schools and put on a course in carrying in wood, hoeing weeds, cutting grass, emptying ash cans, washing dishes and other favorite amusements of domesticated man. This is the only way in which the youth of today will learn that all work is worth doing and that the educated and intelligent citizen should do work of any kind better and easier because of that education and intelligence. It is not to learn to get out of work that we go to school, but if the home does not act as the link between education and work the child of today is very apt to absorb that idea. "By the sweat of your brow" was the blessing handed out to humanity when they were banished from Eden.

British women are being sent out to Canada as immigrants and all sorts of men are being induced to come to Canada, some of whom very soon tell us that they are sorely disappointed upon arrival and are sorry that they came. This kind of talk comes from the papfed immigrants of today and was not known when farmers were being hewed out of the wilderness and the foundations of civilization were being laid on our prairies.

We are insisting today that the immigrants we welcome should have some ready cash to bring with them to this land of ours. Yes, and some of our grandfathers spent their last shilling for a drink of buttermilk when they got off the boat at Port Stanley.

Who made this country what it is today? Immigrants who were assisted and persuaded to come out here and who came with money in their pockets? No.

The farming communities on the prairies and elsewhere in Canada were founded and built up by penniless adventurers, who had nothing but their stout hearts, strong bodies and the will to do and dare as their initial capital.

And their descendants of the third generation have become so accustomed to plenty, to comfort, to the fleshpots of Canada, that they would put a bar across the door and allow only hand-picked immigrants with money to come in because they cannot see how they can make good in Canada without money.

The tower of Babel was a great advertising enterprise, but so many had a "say" in it that it got nowhere. Another case of too many cooks spoiling the broth.—Parkhill Gazette.

Mrs. Templeman leaves three sons and two daughters—Geo. CUTTING INTO STORE BUSINESS

Reports of various church organizations indicate that many of them are preparing for sales of work, bazaars, etc., in order to raise money for various church purposes, says the London Advertiser.

All these sales are planned for late fall or early winter in the knowledge that many people will be arranging for Christmas gifts at that time, and will make some of their purchases from the sales.

The stores that stay in business 12 months in the year to give continuous shopping service to the citizens are likewise depending on extra business at this same time to balance up some of the lean months of the year.

They are entitled to consideration, and it might be well for the church organizations to give the matter a little serious and considerate thought.

Something unusual occurred when a Muncey Indian won a prize over a white veteran for plowing.

Although Alberta has gone wet, its citizens will still claim that you don't feel the cold there because it is so dry.

KITCHEN SINK SERVICE

Where and How to Place This Very Necessary Article.

Hot Water For the Farm Sink—Have One of Generous Size—Location and Height Important—How to Combat Scours in Calves—Lubricants for Farm Machinery.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The simplest arrangement for a kitchen sink service that supplies cold water only is a small pitcher pump mounted at the edge of a sink. This is the first step in improvement over the outdoor pump and cistern. For the hot water service at the sink, it is necessary to have a heating arrangement which is best supplied by a water front in the range, a water reservoir and a supply of cold water under pressure. The water under pressure may be furnished through the use of a pressure tank system, an attic tank or a gravity supply.

Place the Sink at the Proper Height. The height of the kitchen sink is of great importance. The location of the most flexible joint in one person's backbone is not a standard for all. The correct height of the sink is a matter that must be determined by the person who is required to work over that particular sink. Every woman knows that working over a low sink is anything but pleasant.

Watch the man who installs the sink, and see that the height is satisfactory. The bottom of the sink should be just six inches below the point of your elbow. Such little attention to detail while the work is being done may save you many a backache. If you do not issue any instructions to those installing the sink, it will, in all probability, be installed at a height of thirty inches, which is correct for a woman only four feet, eight inches tall. You may be taller than that.

Have One of Generous Proportions.

Considerable choice can be had in size, design and material in kitchen sinks—the shape, weight of metal and quality of enamel largely determine the price. If the size of the kitchen will permit it, a sink of generous proportions is to be recommended. The drain board is important and generally desirable, but sometimes a movable flat wire basket or rack suspended over the sink is more desirable. Taps, faucets, or bibcocks of various types and quality are offered by the trade. The ordinary brass or nickel finish compression faucet is generally satisfactory. These may be had in either screw joint or solder joint.

The Location is Very Important.

The kitchen sink should be located at a convenient point beneath a window or on a wall opposite a large window, so that the lighting may be good. Do not build the sink in with shelving, cupboards or closets unless you are prepared to cover all woodwork that is likely to be splashed with greasy water with copper sheeting. Open plumbing for the sink is to be preferred on the score of accessibility and cleanliness. The cockroach loves wet woodwork and grease. So try to avoid conditions that attract such insects. Locate the sink, if possible, on a wall on which there are no cupboards or cabinets, and do not consider anything but a high back type of sink. It may cost a little more but it is worth it when we consider the added service that such will give.—L. Stevenson, Dept. Extension, O. A. College, Guelph.

How to Combat Scours in Calves.

Like all diseases of cattle, prevention is the best method of combatting scours. Ordinarily scours, as distinguished from white scours or calf cholera, can usually be traced to overfeeding, irregular feeding, dirty pails, cold milk, sour milk, or old milk, and any one or all of these are due to carelessness on the part of the feeder.

Constant vigilance is the price of healthy calves. As soon as trouble is detected, the feed of the calf should be reduced at least half. Administer a dose of castor oil in warm milk by means of a small drenching bottle. This will tend to remove all irritating substances from the bowels. Feed should then be gradually restored to the normal amount, and formaldehyde solution should be added to the milk at the rate of one teaspoonful per pound of milk. This solution should be made up of one part of formalin (40 per cent. solution of formaldehyde) to thirty-one parts of water. If prompt improvement does not follow this treatment, repeat the dose of oil, and accompany it with another reduction in the feed.

Calves are always greedy, and for this reason overfeeding should be avoided. This is true particularly when alfalfa is being fed, as it is exceedingly palatable, and the animal is apt to gorge itself.

Lubricants for Farm Machinery.

Heavy oils and greases are used on all bearings where the pressure is great and the movement slow, as on axles and slow turning shafts. Generally speaking, the greater the speed of the turning part the lighter the lubricant used. No oil should be used that has not sufficient body to remain on the surface of shaft and bearing for a reasonable length of time. All farm machines, excepting engines and cream separators, can be kept well lubricated with the heavier oils and greases. Cream separators running at high speed require a light high grade oil, while gasoline engines require an oil of medium body and capable of standing a high temperature. Grease or hard oil cups should be attached to all bearings where practicable.—L. Stevenson, O.A.C., Guelph.

Have you given careful attention to the selection of the stallion to which to breed the farm mare.
