Calendar, Aspects, &c.

October smiles but after the first there will become unsettled weather. Rain.

18th Sunday after Trinity.

Throughout this moon's quarter, the weather will be very changeable, but some days very fine.

Some frost and many vines have been destroyed.

19th Sunday after Trinity.

Changeable.

Looking dull, aspects for rain during some days, windy season.

Rather more pleasant. Very fine day.

20th Sunday after Trinity.

18th St. Luke the Evangelist.

Some snow fell down East. Changed to rains both East and West.

Unsteady and cold. Very cold day.

21st Sunday after Trinity.

The weather fine which continues.

St. Simon and St. Jude. A few fine days and so the month ends pleasantly.

OCTOBER.—It has been stated in the West, that there had never been such a failure of seed corn in coming up as in the present season. The observation of many has shown that corn that had been selected, and hung away from all heat, had its vitality destroyed by freezing. Corn husked and thrown on the floor, and covered with snow, had grown, at least seven-eighths of it. Corn left in the shuck in the field had produced, while corn put in the crib had failed. It is therefore pretty well established that all seed corn, if husked, should never be allowed to lie on the ground over night; and that corn that is to be hung up in a cold room for seed should never be husked until the planting time arrives. As the facts here given are well attested, it will be quite proper to follow this light of experience. It will cost nothing, and cannot lead astray.

Assortment of Lamps, Chimneys, Wicks.
