The food at this ancient workhouse was to be dealt with as liberally as the drink. The almoner and steward were to "bye no byffe but of the best, without bones and in speciall without the maybon, and none other to be bought."

Drink Unsettled His Mind.
Apparently tiring of his work he came to Ottawa in 1901 and started literary work, contributing for the most part to American newspapers and periodicals. He was successful for a time, and, according to Mr. Mitchell, saved money. But the drink habit seemed to grow and his mind became unsettled. He removed to Florida, to which his father had migrated from France and became a Baptist preacher. Two years of this sufficed and he came back to Ottawa. There were no Turkish baths in the city so he established one and called himself "doctor." He flourished, but the demon drink had him in his grip and his profits were squandered.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

A small boy is always busy looking for something appalling that he may imitate it.

In imagination we all star in dramas of our own production.

When a man has a good opinion of himself his satisfaction is so sublime that it should be put in a frame.

Superstition is inherited prejudice.

A thorough tanning is guaranteed to remove freckles.

Writing home for money is a special branch of the art of letter writing.

Your physician's concern for your health is apt to be commensurate with the depth of your purse.

Earning money and acquiring money aren't necessarily synonymous.

People who can't acquire a habit don't amount to much.

The simple life isn't related to the simpleton.

Be sure that your own lid fits tight before you ask your neighbor to put his on.

Psalm of Summer.
Tell me not in tones that rumble Love is but an empty dream; Rub your eyes and take a tumble In the peaches and the cream.

Love is real, love is earnest, If it isn't just in fun, When the fickle lady turns, To the geese with whom she runs.

Trust no lady, however pleasant, When the summer days are here; She'll not be your Christmas present At this season of the year.

In the world's broad field of battle, In the puzzling game of love, If you make the money rattle She will be your turfdoodle.

She will be your toothless wootsie Till your money is run through. After that her dainty bootsie Murmurs something like "Skiddoo!"

A Test.
WHEN CAN YOU MEET?
DID THE BUTNER SEND HIS BILLS?

"Is your husband a brave man?"
"Sure, he reads the papers and eats meat three times a day."

The Unhappy Rich.
No greater misfortune can befall a young man than to inherit a million dollars without having enough brains stored away in the bony part of his head to serve as a check on the check-book.

We have lately had an object lesson reaching all the way from Pittsburgh to New York, and it is enough to make every young man throw away his money, particularly if he hasn't any.

What a blessing it is to the youth who inherits only health, a good digestion and possibly a shovel. If he earns his money by hard knocks or gets it by marrying an heiress he will know its value and will realize that there are other ways for a young man to be happy besides wrecking his constitution and shooting holes in the moral law.

Let us be thankful we were born poor if we were, for then no expert will ever earn a large fee proving that we are insane.

She Could Hear It.
"What are the wild waves saying?" He whispered in her ear.
"It seems to me," she answered low, With eyes downcast and cheeks aglow, "They murmur in their playing, 'You say, get up and clear!'"

Hadn't Any Mind.
"I never lose my presence of mind," boasted young Softy.
"No, I should say not. It is very obvious that you don't," murmured Miss Caustique.

Wraithy.
"That woman seems to be tearing mad."
"Yes; she is ripping off a piece of her mind to hand to her husband."

Can Keep Them Going.
We can't turn back the wheels of time. As you have doubtless read, But we can always wind our watch Before we go to bed.

Of Course.
"Are these good scales?"
"Depends upon whether you want to buy or sell by them."

Life Saving at Fires.

If lives are in danger at a fire it is a universal rule that life saving takes precedence over fire fighting. If fire escapes are lacking or seriously obstructed all hands devote their entire energies to the work of rescuing by raising ladders, by forcing a passage through smoke filled hallways or by other emergency means.

Life nets are spread and held ready for those who have not the nerve to wait for their rescuers. Life saving consumes valuable time which could be applied to advantage in fighting the flames, and the probable necessity for expending this time, governed as it is by many considerations, plays an important part in studies of underwriters.

Occasionally pomper ladders or window scaling ladders are used in emergencies for making rescues. These furnish thrilling incidents for the newspapers, but are less efficient, slower and a great deal more dangerous both to the firemen and the rescued than the plain or extension ladders—Insurance Engineering.

There's a story of a farmer and his son driving a load to market. On the way they were driving one was a steady, reliable old gray mare, the other a fractious, bulky black horse. On the way the wagon was stalled and the black horse balked and refused to pull. "What'll we do, father?" said the younger man.

"Well," said the father, "I guess we'll have to lay the gad on the old gray." That homely compliment to women, "The gray mare's the better horse," suggests how often when there's an extra strain to be borne it is laid on the woman's back. How often she breaks down at last under the added weight of some "last straw." Women who are dragging along wearily through life can gain real strength by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Puts back its concentrated form the strength making material which working women use up more rapidly than it can be restored by Nature in the ordinary processes of nourishment and rest. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are universal favorites with women because they are easy to take and thoroughly effective in curing the consequences of constipation.

When Bernhardt Was Fooled.
Sarah Bernhardt once fell victim to a sudden attack of homesickness while she was traveling in eastern Europe. She announced that she was going back to Paris immediately. Bucharest was the next city on the route and Bernhardt's impresario at once sent the following telegram to his advance agent, who was then in the Roumanian capital: "Wire me immediately as follows: 'Nobility and leaders society preparing magnificent reception. Minister of fine arts will be represented station. Torchlight procession, massed bands. Wire exact hour arrival.' This telegram was duly sent and the impresario showed it to the actress, who forgot her homesickness in view of the magnificent reception awaiting her. When they arrived there were sixty solemn gentlemen in evening dress, with many decorations, on the platform, there were torches, flags and flowers, massed bands played the "Marsellaise" and the triumphal procession started for the hotel. "Are you not coming with us?" said the impresario to his advance agent, who showed signs of reluctance at the station instead of going to the hotel. "No," he said. "I must look after the nobility and leaders of society. I am afraid they will bolt with their dress clothes." But the actress, so the story goes, never guessed that the sixty great men at the station were supers hired by the advance agent at 36 cents a head.

Relic of Heathen Worship.
The Vicar of Salehurst, Hastings, describes the practice of throwing confetti at weddings as a relic of the worship of the heathen god, Vishnu, and as out of place in connection with the solemn marriage service of the Church of England.

VANITY'S VISIONS.

Neck Ruches Still Popular—Ballet Novelty—Stripes to Be Worn.

Ruches are worn with every gown, whether rich or plain. A stunning one is of black and white malines. White chiffon edged with narrow black lace is attractive, or an edging of velvet or satin ribbon may be employed.

In a bracelet noticeable for the unique effect of contrast very close and beautiful squares of gold filigree alternate with open squares set with gems.

A pair of patent leather low shoes are brightened by straps and ties of scarlet.

Band embroideries are much more in demand than the swiss motifs and appliques, although the latter are very fashionable. They look well with English openwork, which has not been at all subordinated by the blind embroidery used so extensively.

No woman should indulge in a princess gown unless her figure is graceful. There is no style which shows up the defects as this one does, and, on the other hand, there is nothing more becoming to the possessor of a fine form.

It is evident from certain sartorial signs that stripes will be in vogue in the fall for tailor made and other simple costumes.

The motor hat pictured is very smart for short runs about the country. It is made of heavy white linen stretched plainly over the frame, and finished about the face with a narrow fall of English embroidery. Brown velvet encircles the crown.

FASHIONS IN BRIEF.

Elbow Sleeves to "Go" in the Fall.
For the Girl Who A-fishing Goes.

During the hot weather there is no evidence of the elbow sleeve abating in popularity, but there are rumors of radical changes coming early in the autumn. The moderately full elbow sleeve which narrows toward the elbow to meet the glove and fitting the arm closely gives the same silhouette of the long sleeve and finds favor with women of all classes.

A girl went fishing the other day in what is called a trout suit, though it is doubtful if she caught a fish of that persuasion. The material was a silver gray novelty lightly spotted to imitate trout. Her hat was trimmed with a spotted veil with long ends that flew around. His sighs and groans annoy them so. "Past! Off the dock!"

"Here in captivity I have to remove at once a sick monkey from his comrades' reach. Otherwise they would soon kill him. When they can, well monkeys take a strange joy in tormenting an invalid. They bite the end of his tail, they drag him about, and they pinch him. Finally, when he dies, as many as can find room sit on his body, close together, very solemn, as though engaged in some religious rite."

Monkeys as Nurses.
"Monkeys make poor nurses," said a zoo keeper. "When they live near a stream of water and one of the colony falls sick they invariably toss him overboard. They don't want him around. His sighs and groans annoy them so. 'Past! Off the dock!'" windward toward the back. Her gloves were of long, dark gray silk, and her girdle was of dark gray silk.

Tucks are favorite skirt decorations. In groups of three or more they trim a great many gowns in soft materials, and also many tub gowns.

The tailored shirt waist grows more and more liked as a relief from the cheap lingerie affairs one sees worn on every hand.

The simple grace of the princess dress renders it very appropriate for young girls. It is more satisfactory when carried out in some of the heavier materials, such as voile, linen and serge.

In Paris women are wearing tiny toques for restaurant, roof garden and like places of amusement on summer evenings. Nothing could be prettier than one of these big jet bows attached to a fluffy bit of black tulle or a white algeret which stands up partly like a crown and partly like a bow.

Then there are the coronet effects, which are extremely chic and pretty and to a blond woman particularly becoming.

The charming bodice illustrated is of mauve dotted mull. It is laid in pin tucks and inset in three lines with motifs of crocheted lace, through which wide mauve ribbons are run. The sleeves are carried out in the same manner.

"We studied your 'All about the Skin, Scaly, and Itchy'."

When Buchanan Was King.
George Buchanan was a scholar, historian, controversialist and the best Latin poet of his age. Buchanan was tutor to Mary, queen of Scots, and to her son James, afterward James I. of England. One day he caused himself to be made king of Scotland, and this was the way of it: Having observed in James a tendency to too ready acquiescence, he drew up a paper for the royal pupil to sign. James did so at once without having read it. The document happened to be a transfer of the royal authority to Buchanan for fifteen days, and no sooner had the poet got it into his possession than he began to play the monarch, even before the king himself. James thought the man a lunatic until the instrument was produced by which he had signed away his sovereignty. This incident was used by the worthy preceptor to illustrate the day's lesson on the responsibilities of monarchs.
