AS TO THE CUSTOMS REORGANIZATION

Ottawa, June 7.—(Special) Following the reorganization of the customs and inland revenue department after the amalgamation of these branches of revenue-getting, the civil service, commission and officers of the department have decided on retiring several officers now no longer necessary. Every official throughout Canada of an age exceeding sixty-five years will be superannuated on a pension computed on the scale set forth in the Calder bill of one-sixtieth of his present salary for every year he has been in the service. The reorganization of the two departments was done by the Griffinham experts. These decided that certain officers should be eliminated as duplicates no longer necessary when the two departments were united. Then the department aided by the civil service commission does the rest.

Very Likely.

KEEP SINGING

We can sing our cares away easier than we can reason them away. The birds are the earliest to sing in the morning, the birds are more without care than anything else I know of. Singing is the last thing that robins do. When they have done their daily work, when they have flown their last flight, and picked up their last morsel of food, and cleaned their bills on a papkin of a bough, then on a top twig they sing one song of praise. I know they sleep sweeter for it. Oh, that we might sing evening and morning, and let song touch song all the way through! Oh, that we could put songs under our burden! Oh, that we could extract the sense of sorrow by song! Then sad things would not poison so much. Sing in the house; teach your children to sing. When griefs arise, sing them down. Lift the voice of praise against cares. Praise God by singing; that will lift you above trials of every sort. Attempt it.

SCOUTING AND THE CHURCH

Many men who have been associated with Scouting as well as other types of boy's work, over a period of years, believe that it presents greater opportunities for developing the boy religiously than does any other movement instituted solely for boys. Its aim to develop the boy physically, mentally and morally is being realized very widely.

The Boy Scout Movement has been developed on such broad lines as to embrace all classes, all creeds, and at the same time to allow the greatest possible independence to individual organizations, officers and boys.

The Boy Scouts Association maintains that no boy grows into the best kind of citizenship without recognizing his obligation to God. The recognition of God as ruling and leading power in the universe, and the grateful acknowledgment of his favors and blessings, is necessary to the best type of citizenship and is a wholesome thing in the education of the growing boy. No matter what the boy may be Catholic, Protestant or Jew, (and in Scouting there are all three), this fundamental need of good citizenship should be kept before him.

The Boy Scouts Association as an organized body, therefore, recognizes the religious element in the training of a boy, but it is absolutely non-sectarian in its attitude toward religious training. Its policy is that the religious organization or institution with which the Boy Scout is connected shall give definite attention to his religious life. If he be a Roman Catholic Boy Scout, the Church of which he is a member is the best channel for his training. If he be a Hebrew boy, the Synagogue will train him in the faith of his fathers. If he be a Protestant, no matter of what denomination of Protestantism he may belong, the Church of which he is an adherent or a member will only perform its full duty when it accepts this responsibility.

It is interesting to note in this connection that Boy Scout Headquarters statistics show that the great majority of Scout Troops in Canada are connected with Churches. Scouting activities being specially promoted by the Churches concerned as real worth while activities for their boys. And experience shows that the Sunday School or Church School class organized on Scout lines has better discipline, better attendance and greater interest than was evidenced before the Boy Scout idea was put into it.

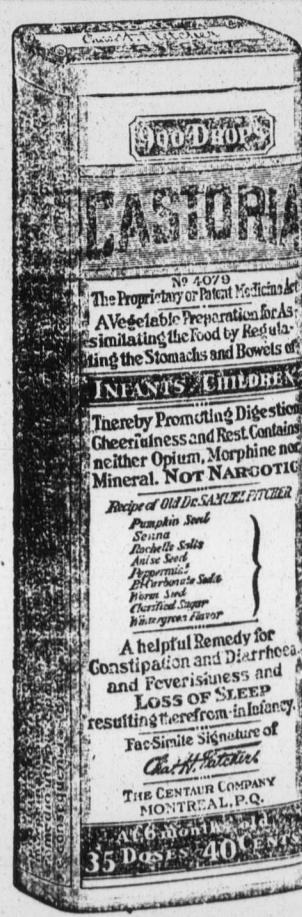

ADVOCATES ABANDONMENT BUILDING BATTLESHIPS

Paris, June 9.—In presenting France's programme of naval construction for the next three years, Deputy Paul Denise, reporter for the Navy Commission, advocated in the Chamber of Deputies today the virtual abandonment of the building of battleships and battle cruisers and intensification of construction of submarines, torpedo boats, destroyers and airplane carrying ships.

The programme provides for the construction of six light cruisers, twelve destroyers, twelve torpedo boats and thirty-six submarines, at an approximate cost of 1,476,000,000 francs.

M. Denise asked the Chamber to vote for the transforming of five battleships, work on which was stopped during the war when the hulls were completed into airplane motherships. He refused to be drawn into a discussion as to whether he agreed with the British Admiral, Sir Percy Scott, that the day of battleships was past, but quoted Rear-Admiral Sims, of the United States Navy, and also Beatty and Jellicoe, of Great Britain, and von Scheer, of Germany, as having a different opinion from Admiral Scott.

He pointed out that France as a pacific nation needed the navy for coast defence, not warships for offensive action and said there was nothing more to fear from Germany. France had no desire to attack any other nation, but the principal reason for the abandonment of construction of battleships by France, he added, was the realization that France could not keep up the pace with Japan, Great Britain and particularly the United States, which were building more units than before the war.
