A STRANGE STORY.

EQUALLING TALES OF CAPTAIN KIDD'S BURIED TREASURES.

MONTREAL, March 1.—Truth is stranger than fiction in many cases though there is generally a superabundance of fiction. A case in point has just been related to your correspondent. It is almost an echo of Capt. Kidd's hiding exploits. The merchant had been for years in the grocery business, and grew portly and rich in it. He held a large a nount of bank stock at the time of his death.
