

Household Hints.

Turnout.—Take a fine large white-fish, steam till done, take all the bones out, and sprinkle with salt and pepper; take a quart of milk, quarter pound of flour, a bunch of parsley, and three large slices of onion; put over the fire, and stir till it comes to a thick cream; take off two eggs, quarter pound of butter, strain through a sieve; put in a baking dish a layer of fish and a layer of sauce alternately until the dish is full, the sauce being on top; then sprinkle with bread crumbs; bake half an hour in a moderate oven.

SPANISH PICKLED ONIONS.—Cut onions into slices, put a layer of them into a jar, sprinkle with cayenne pepper and salt, then add another layer of onions and proceed as before. Proceed in this way until the jar is full, and pour cold vinegar over all till covered. They will be fit to use in a month.

RUSSIAN SALAD.—Cut up raw apples, and every kind of available vegetables into small slices, and lay them in a shallow dish, with salt, a little vinegar and pepper; and the best oil. The dressing must thoroughly saturate the mixture for twelve hours, and then this salad will be not only a new but a good dish.

INK SPOTS.—If soaked in warm milk before the ink has a chance to dry, the spot may usually be removed. If it has dried in rub table salt and drop lemon juice upon the salt. White soap diluted with vinegar is likewise a good thing to take out ink spots.

KISS PENDING.—Scald one quart of milk and dissolve six tablespoonfuls of corn starch in cold milk add the yolks of three eggs and stir into the scalding milk put the whole into a dish and let it stand and cool. Take the whites of the eggs, beat with one cup of sugar, put on top and set in the oven, to brown.

THE QUEEN OF PUFFINGS.—One pint of bread crumbs, pounded, one quart of milk, yolks of four eggs, one-half cup of sugar, and the grated rind of one lemon. For flavouring, take four tablespoonfuls of white sugar, whites of four eggs, and the juice of one lemon.

HAM BALLS.—Mince very fine cold, cooked ham—that which has been boiled is best, although fried ham will answer if not too salt; add an egg for each person, stir in a little flour and make into balls. Dip into an egg and then in grated bread and fry until of a nice brown.

POTATO STRIPS.—Pars, cut in long even strips; lay in cold water for one hour; dry by spreading them upon a towel and pressing another upon them. Fry to a light brown in salted lard. Shake off the fat in a hot colander. Line a deep dish with a napkin and put in the strips. They should not be crowded in frying, but each should be distinct and free from the rest.

VEAL CHOPS WITH TOMATO SAUCE.—Trim and flatten the chops. Dip in raw egg, then in cracker dust, and fry, rather slowly in lard and dripping. Open a can of tomatoes, and drain off the liquor into a sauce pan with a sliced onion and stew ten minutes. Strain out the onion, return the juice to the fire; thickened with a great spoonful of butter, worked up in a teaspoonful of corn starch; pepper and salt. Boil up sharply, and when you have laid the chops upon the dish, pour the sauce over them.

CANNING RHUBARB.—Permit me to tell your readers how to can rhubarb—pie-plant—as I have never seen it among the recipes given. Prepare sauce as for pies and pack into glass cans, covering with cold water, taking care to get all the air out, and then put the cover on as tightly as possible. I have just used some which kept nicely, being nearly as fresh as new, though not quite so sour, as some of the sourness soaks out in the water, which of course is not used. The pies are made the same as from fresh pie-plants.

Golden Cleanings.

There are two kinds of mercies—mercies in hand and mercies in hope. Pence does not dwell in outward things, but within the soul. The greatest fault is to be conscious of none.—Thomas Carlyle. Occasions of adversity do not make a man frail, but they show him what he is. Impossible things are always being done, else the world had been all wilderness by this time.

As a river is deep; so are the mercies of God great, neither can the bottom of them be sought by any man. God will not refuse the poor offerings of poor people; but he will not accept the poor offerings of the rich. It is needful to trust as well as to pray—to believe that strength will come, as to reach out the hand of faith to receive it.

Some men think that the business of churches must be done by strategy, tricks and cunning. They say we must fight the devil with fire. But the devil is used to fire and it won't hurt him half as much as it will you. Many girls when they marry know nothing at all about the science of love, or man's nature. They wish and expect to be everlastingly made love to and worshipped without being taught the way to command that love and worship, and when they do not get it, they turn into bitter disappointment against their husband for not being what their children fancy pictured them, blaming them instead of questioning their own common sense which would tell them that to gain love it must be won bravely and deservedly, won in the daily battle against self.

Ever and anon, in these days, the community is startled and the Church saddened by the revelation that some one who had stood high in the confidence of the one, and in the membership of the other, have been guilty of extensive embezzlement of money which did not really belong to them, and the question is proposed, how such things are to be accounted for. Now, in the outset, it is pertinent to remark that such things are not by any means new or unheard of. They may be more frequent now than they were formerly, and because of the efficiency and almost omnipresence of the agents of the daily press, they may be more widely published than in any former age in the Church's history. But such cases, unhappily, have existed from the beginning. There was a Judas among the twelve, and from the days of the disciples until now, there has been an uninterrupted succession of that dishonest apostleship. We are not to suppose, therefore, that any new things has happened when those who are connected nominally with the Christian Church fall into such evil ways. Neither are we to judge of the Gospel and of the church from them. We take our estimate of the worth of Christ's teachings from Christ Himself, and not from Judas; and we ought to test the Church, not by such exceptional instances, but from the general effect produced by its presence and working on the history of the world, and on the community around us. The value of the fruit tree is evidenced by that which hangs upon its branches, not by that which falls, worm-eaten and decayed, to the ground.

A Thought for Middle Life. It is the solemn thought connected with middle life that life's last business has begun in earnest; and it is then, midway between the cradle and the grave, that a man begins to marvel that he let the day of youth go by so half enjoyed. It is the pensive autumn feeling; it is the sensation of half sadness that we experience when the longest day of the year is past, and every day that follows is shorter, and the light fainter and the feeble shadows tell that nature is hastening with gigantic footsteps to her winter grave. So does man look back upon his youth. When the first grey hairs become visible, when the unwelcome truth fastens itself upon the mind that a man is no longer going up hill, but down, and that the sun is always westering, he looks back upon things behind. When we were children we thought as children. But now there lies before us manhood, with its earnest work, and then old age, and then the grave, then home. There is a second youth for man, better and holier than the first, if he will look on and not look back.—[F. W. Robertson.

Catalogue of Dickens' Works. Oliver Twist, who had some very hard Times in the Battle of Life, and having been saved from the Wreck of the Golden Mary by Our Mutual Friend, Nicholas Nickleby, had just finished reading A Tale of Two Cities to Martin Chuzzlewit, during which time the Cricket on the Hearth had been chirping merrily, while The Chimes from an adjacent church were heard, when Seven Poor Travellers from Mugby Junction commenced singing A Christmas Carol. Barnaby Rudge then arrived from the Old Curiosity Shop, with some Pictures from Italy and Sketches by Boz, to show to Little Dorrit, who was busy with the Pickwick Papers, when David Copperfield, who had been taking American Notes, entered and informed the company that the Great Expectations of Dombey and Son regarding Mrs. Lirriper's Legacy had not been realized, and that he had seen Boots at the Inn taking Somebody's Luggage to Mrs. Lirriper's Lodgings in a street that has No Thoroughfare, opposite Bleak House, where the Haunted Man, who had just given one of Doctor Marigold's Prescriptions to an Uncommercial Traveller, was brooding over the Mystery of Edwin Drood.

The road to matrimony is a bridal path. "There," said a charming lady, with a naive expression that made her face radiant, pointing to an ebony case of antique china, "that is my brickbat cabinet." "Appointment and 'interment' is a rhyme sent in by a poet 'this morning,'" writes a Western editor. "If he will kindly make the former," he adds, "I will guarantee that he will get the latter."

How Women Should Dress. An American authority says: "No lady need be ashamed to dress plainly or cheaply; she can, with the help of the modern guides to dress, appear like a lady on very little money. She can lay down three rules for herself: Never to pretend to anything, never to wear false jewellery, and, affirmatively, always to be neat. A young girl with a white muslin and a fresh flower is dressed for a queen's ball. A lady of maturer years, in a well-fitting dark suit, real jewellery or none, and her own hair—all the better. True womanhood includes all the delicate refinements that overflow in the perfect glove, the well-fitting shoe, the pretty stocking, the neat frills, and becoming bonnet. The American women, to do her only justice, is a neat creature by instinct, and, if she occasionally gives too much thought to dress, she is still to be admired and commended for her daintiness."

Master J. Stratton, of Clinton, is the possessor of a pair of turtle doves, the hen of which is sitting on four eggs. It is a very unusual circumstance for a bird of this kind to lay more than two eggs before sitting.

How to Get Rich. The great secret of obtaining riches, is first to practice economy, and as good old Deacon Snyder says, "It used to worry the life out of me to pay enormous doctor's bills, but now I have 'struck rich.' Health and happiness reign supreme in our little household, and all simply because we use no other medicine but Electric Bitters, and only costs fifty cents a bottle." Sold by F. Jordan.
