Something About the Railway.

DEAR SIR, -Before I left Wingham in May, 1886, every one I met was again willing to think favorably of Goderich and its citizens as a whole, whatever but, if we may judge by the follow from their recent newspapers, the feeling there must be very different today. The Advance of three weeks ago, in speaking of the offer of Mr Meyer for the charter of the Wingham branch of When he is in Goderich he usually regis. | council, and, from what we can learn, too close prying, followed by discourtesy to Mr Meyer, knocked the charter or Times said: "Mr Robert Porter, M.P., our townsmen did—put their shoulders suddenly became ill. I beg here to premise, sir, that when I name any one in what hereafter follows, it is not done for the purpose of drawing particular attention to that individual; but simply as a reference by which to test my veracity should any one choose to do so, for, as you are aware, I have within the last two years been on three several occasions, publicly denounced as a liar, or what comes to about the same thing—of the best. A complimentary and very feeling address was presented to the rev gentleman and his partner, Mrs. Campbell, by the ladies of the W. M. S., to which he replied in very feeling terms. Some time recently he was the recipient of a handsome present by the young people of the congregation, as a token of their great respect for him.

As was announced by advertisement Mrs. Porter, M.P., on Wednesday, the sions, publicly denounced as a liar, or what comes to about the same thing—charged with habitual "falsehood," and all arising out of the narrow-minded course pursued by the council towards the committee on the subject of the rail-road; and although these charges were William Blaikie, author of "How to Get Strong, and How to Stay So," and "Sound Bodies for our Beys and Girls." writes in Harper's Magazine for July, upon the question "Is American Stamina Declining?" and makes a number of practical suggestions for reforming our system of education in the direction of physical training. Very shortly after receiving determined to abandon the charter en-tirely, whereupon Woodcock and I called upon Mr ex-Mayor Seager, as one of the provisionals, to see whether some-thing could not be done to induce the council to save the charter, but on looking over the list of his colleagues he shook his head and expressed a doubt that anything could be done by them, and nothing was done. We then called on Dr Holmes, as the present chairman of of the Citizens' Committee, who at once expressed his willingness to call a meetof the committee if we desired it, but that he felt sure it would do no good, for he did not believe that the council would listen to anything that we might propose to them on the subject, and that if any good was to be done at all it would have to be by speaking to them individually, an uphill and undesirable a job. But this feeling teing not only consonant with our own opinions but also trees, made a discovery-he found three apples. He is going to keep his eye or with that of the whole community, we let the matter drop; but in a very few days thereafter came Mr Meyer's letter offer-ing to take the abandoned charter, and in the twinkling of an eye it became of immense value and changed the whole course of the council's conduct towards it. There is much more, sir, connected with this most important subject which I desire to bring before the public, but for several days past my hands have been in such an almost continual state of cramp that I cannot possibly get it into this week's issue. Yours, &c THOMAS KYDD. Goderich, July 4th, 1889.
