Boys, Beware!

Yesterday when the Fogota was coming up to Crosbie & Co's wharf two boats rowed by boys were directly in her way, and as the youths became excited and being unused to the manipulation of boats, Capt. Barbour, who saw that to continue would be to run them down, had to alter his course and caused him delay in berthing his ship. Boys are given boats by out-harbor men on Sundays to pleasure about the harbor. Many of these lads know nothing about the handling of boats and run great risks, especially when they go outside the harbor. Boys should be more careful.

Truckmen Hurt.

Saturday afternoon a truckman loading fish in Job's Cove to be hauled to the Borna, narrowly escaped being killed. When nearly all the fish, which was in casks, were on the cart the horse started and one rolled off, striking the man and knocking him down. Had the cask gone over his body he would have been killed, and as other truckmen near ran to his aid, this was averted. He was hurt about the head and body, but not seriously.

"Weary Willies" Arrested Saturday.

Last year, about this season, Summers' barn on Freshwater Road was a place of refuge for men belonging to St. John's who had no visible place of abode and who worked only when they had to to avert starvation and to obtain liquor. For some weeks past the place has again been the rendezvous for such characters, and during the past week locks were broken, and as soon as they were replaced by the owner of the barn they were broken again, so that these fellows could get in there and use the place for sleeping quarters. Last year it was known that the men who frequented the place purchased pork, &c., out of their earnings and cooked cabbage, potatoes and other vegetables secured from nearby farms in a paint can, which had been cleaned out for the purpose, and had a fire place over which they cooked their meals while they slept in the barn at night. They supplied themselves with liquor on coming to the city, especially on Saturdays, and Head Constable Peet, learning that others were at the same game recently, paid the place a visit with the night watch early yesterday morning and found four men asleep in the place. All were arrested and taken to the police station. They were more or less under the influence and there was great danger to their setting fire to the place and being themselves burned to death, while their presence in the building was a menace to the other residences and buildings near. Head Peet did not go to the place to make the arrest without a good backing and took officers McGrath and Squibb with him when he went to Freshwater. Two at least of the occupants of the barn were known to be hard cases and it was believed would resist arrest. When the Head and his men entered the place, which they did quietly, with lantern, they handcuffed the two most likely to kick, while they slept, and aroused the others and brought them out the road. Near Hennebury's two became violent, but officers Merce and Cleary were stationed there as a reserve force to meet just such an emergency and the men were brought to the station. A fifth man who was in the building escaped when the police entered. At the lockup when the Guard searched them they had in their pockets liquor, tobacco, matches, turnips, potatoes, &c., with a little cash. There was over two tons of hay in the barn which the men frequented. Not so very long ago three of the number broke into and stole liquor from Mr. P. J. Shea's saloon. They were found in a stable last year under conditions similar to this and served three months on a charge of vagrancy. Some petty larcenacies which have not been solved are attributed to this quartette by the police.

Tim Shannahan and Delaney Good Friends Again.

Delaney Arrives From the Labrador.

Poor Delaney, he's back from the Labrador to face a hard winter. He did absolutely nothing, and now he thinks he will go on the railroad to try and make up a few shillings. Mrs. Tucker says 'tis not as easy as you'd think to get on the railroad, there's a bit of chasing around, she heard, and you're likely to lose your fall as well as your summer trying to get on.

Delaney is simply mad, every now and then he makes shows he's mad. "What in the name of fortune," said he, "were ye doin' up around here this summer, why to take the papers you'd think ye were all after takin' leave of your senses?" "Oh," said Mrs. Tucker, "tis no use of you getting vexed with the whole world because you did nothing in Griffin's Harbour; you know, Delaney, as well as I do, that if you are in St. John's you must do as St. John's does. Why, take the Governor for instance, he couldn't keep himself barred up in that old stone building. Even he had to get out and keep up with the crowd, and the only shortage we had was in the way of lions. Oh, if we only had lions we'd be as good as South Africa. We had Earls and Dukes and Dukes' wives out to Grand Falls to the upper ten is like a good trouting excursion to the man with the pledge. The people you know get glowing accounts of these trips and big shows in the papers, much in the same way that they give an account of a trip to the Pole, but a man who was there and who knew it all told me that they have the time of their lives. Certainly some very enthusiastic speeches are made on the deck of the yachts, and sometimes they cry over the backwardness of the country. Then they send in their pictures to the papers again; you know to be prominent and to keep yourself as your face must appear in the papers, at least three times a week then get some big talk underneath; and a continuation of trust is assured."

"What about the oil wells," said Delaney, "have they done any working on them yet, or do you think there is any chance of a job on one of them this fall?"

"Look here, Delaney," said Mrs. Tucker, "don't be so sarcastic, you know as well as I do 'twould never do to rush these wells; why, man alive, they have been talking oil wells night, noon and morning. Every one you'd meet was talking oil until I actually could get the taste of oil off my tea; but now you know they'll knock off as 'tis getting too cold, but it will be a nice start for the spring, and 'tis likely we'll have an airship with oil experts in the spring."

"Are any of those Earls or Dukes going to stop around here the winter?" asked Delaney; "for 'twould be a nice chance for them to get Mr. Downey and Mr. Seymour to take them out to the ice. You know nearly all the public men have had their excursions, and the few who hadn't might be thrown in, and then we'd have no jealousy. I heard Mr. Morrison is going to be knighted, the poor man, he deserves it for he worked hard all his life time trying to earn an honest dollar. Mr. Morrison is a nice, quiet, harmless man, and I'm sure he'd make a good looking knight. Anyway, this is his chance and if he doesn't grasp it he will only have himself to blame."

"Well," said Delaney, "I'm tired as a dog to-night, but I must go down and have a chat with the Premier in the morning; he and I were, always good friends, and I have a few wrinkles to give him of what people are saying on the Labrador. Success is all right, you know, but look out for the turn of the tide when people get disgusted with tomfoolery."

Budget of News From Greenspond and vicinity.

In this vicinity last week fishing was at a standstill owing to the high winds and stormy weather that prevailed; squid continues scarce.

The schr. "Camperdown," Skipper Percy Barbour, of Newtown, arrived home from the Labrador on Sunday, Sept. 3rd, with a load of 630 quintals. His report adds nothing to what is already known.

The weekly half holiday which has been observed throughout the summer at Greenspond, has been discontinued on account of the revival of business.

George Norris, a respected citizen of Newtown, entered into rest last Tuesday, at the age of 68. He was buried on Wednesday at his birthplace, Pinchard's Island, Revs. J. T. Hiscock and Mr. K. Gardner officiating at the sacred service.—R. I. P.

Schools have now re-opened, and they enter the scholastic arena imbued with the confidence that success brings and strengthened by a summer's recreation.

The Methodist Church at Greenspond, is being generally renovated in the interior, Mr. William Blackwood being in charge.

Greenspond has always attained a creditable position in the Pass and Honours Lists of the C. H. E. Examinations, but this year its success is exceptional. A peculiar feature is that this one outpost secured this year both of the $100 Preliminary Outport Scholarships. Miss Maud Saunders, of the C. E. High, and Master Percy Dewey, of the Meth. Superior, are the fortunate winners. Mr. Samson and Mr. Crumme, the respective teachers, may well be proud of their pupils, and of this tribute to their teaching ability.

Sept. 5, 1910. COR.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas and family, accompanied by their niece, Miss Lilian Fleet, leave for Portland, Maine, by Tuesday's express.
