night: did not wish to tell lest I might get into trouble: told it only when I had to.

Sheriff Powell was examined and said: To-day I made Whalen dress himself in the clothes which he was supposed to have worn on the night of the murder.—Also made Kinsella dress himself. I called in J. W. O'Brien, Serjeant Major Cummins, Wm. McKenns, and several others who were all together before last witness saw them; I asked him to look at them and examine them well; he looked well at them. After he had examined their faces I made him turn their bicks to him and asked him if he recognized any one of them, he said he did, the one who fired the shot on Monday night. He then went and put his hand on Whelan as the person. He said, I think this is the one who fired the shot. I recognize him by his size and way of acting. Whelan seemed agitated by the declaration and attempted to look over my shoulder to see what was being worn by O'Brien. Whelan seemed agitated by the declaration and attempted to look over my shoulder to see what was being worn by O'Brien. Whelan wanted to know where De Lacroix saw him. This is all the evidence formally communicated to the press, the examination being still conducted with closed doors. Several other witnesses were examined, amongst them Lacroix's uncle, Marquette, who fully corroborates his evidence relative to meeting him on the night in question at the hour mentioned. Another witness testifies that Marquette told him on the following day of the occurrence, and of his having witnessed the firing of the shot, at the same time expressing his fears to relate the occurrence lest he should get into trouble. These facts would seem to dispose of the suspicion that De Lacroix had manufactured his story.
