IN TROUBLE AGAIN

Walter Stephenson and His Son Arrested, Charged With Using Foul and Abusive Language.

Walter Stephenson, who lives on St. James street, just outside the city limits, and his 14-year-old son Daniel, will appear before Squire Lacey tomorrow to answer to charges of using abusive, profane and grossly insulting The father's alleged offense occurred on Monday last, the complainant being Stina Petersen, a Danish woman. The complainant in the other case is Sarah Brooks, and the offense is alleged to have taken place on Saturday last. Stephenson is the man who spent some time in jail last spring for refusing to put his premises in a sanitary condition. It is alleged that he bought aged and diseased horses and fed them to his hogs. He is also said to have been some years ago concerned in the death of a soldier, who received fatal injuries at Stephenson's house on Adelaide street.

HIGHLANDS OF ONTARIO. The Grand Trunk Railway Company have just issued a dainty folder that tells by descriptions and attractive illustrations of the great sport of deer hunting in the Highlands of Ontario. An increasingly large number of local sportsmen go to the north every fall and to them-in fact, to all who are interested in the rich possibilities for enjoyment that exist in that district-"The Trail of the Red Deer" as the pamphlet is named, will be highly interesting. In the introduction it says: "There is certainly something peculiarly fascinating about deer hunting, or the thousands of sportsmen that each year penetrate into the forests of the Highlands of Ontario and undergo the hardships necessarily incident in the life of the successful deer hunter, would not repeat the journey annually. Bankers, lawyers, doctors, merchants, clerks, and in fact, all sorts and conditions of men, early in the fall, as soon as the green forests begin to give way to their autumn hue, take down the rifles and accoutrements, oil and grease them, sight them, and make ready for the opening season, when the law allows the killing of deer. At that time the prevailing topic of conversation in all sporting circles is deer The booklet contains much information concerning rates, districts and seasons that is of exceeding interest to all hunters.

A MURDER MYSTERY

In the Way of Being Unraveled-Four Mea Under Arrest.

New York, Oct. 23 .- It is said that a physician has given the police information which has cleared up the mystery of the murder of Jennie Bosscheiter whose body was recently found by the roadside in Paterson, N. J. Four men, according to his story, on the night of the girl's death, took her to a saloon in Paterson, where she drank drugged wine. She was then placed in a carriage and driven for several tours through the outskirts of the city. When that they could not revive her, and in a fright they called upon a doctor for aid. He found that she was dead. The four men then drove back over the road they had traversed earlier in the night, and hid her body beside the thoroughfare, trusting to chance to escape detection.

George Kerr, Walter McAllister, William Death and Andrew Campbell have been arrested and accused of having caused the girl's death. The police say Death has made a confession saying that the four were drinking with the girl and gave her "knock-out" drops.

"As luck would have it the pitcher fatally wounded herself last night. She struck a wild streak, but a little thing like that did not seem to feaze my new catcher. The writ of habeas corpus sought by Steur- and desperate chances taken in a ball game before or since. The score was a tie at the ninth inning. It was still a tie in the fourteenth. "Then came the chimax of the young collegian's exhibition. I had succeeded in working Dave Foutz for a base on balls, and the new catcher was the next man up. He had been hitting the ball savagiy all the afternoon, and Foutz was too old and wise a pitcher to take any chances. So he deliberately started to give the man his base on bails. But the youngster did not take kindly to the idea of getting a free ticket to first. He wanted to hit the ball, and when Foutz pitched one of those sharp, speedy inshoots that just cut the inside corner of the plate the man from Yale stepped back and swung his bat. The impact of that blow between the sphere and the bat sounded as sharp and clear as a pistol shot, and then the ball sped on a line to deep right center. "I was a pretty fast runner myself in those days, and I put on all steam when I started on that sprint around the bases, but fast as I was the Maria Southampton...New York youngster was at my very heels when crossed the plate, and the ball had not been gathered in by the outfield-was something terrific. Even the old, seasoned players on the team were trembling with excitement, but the Yale man was as cool as a frozen river. The first thing he did was to carefully bursh the dust off his patent leather boots with his silk handkerchief. Then he put on shis coat, lighted a fresh cigarette, and turning to me said: 'Manning, that's a pretty fair pitcher of yours. If he had only a little more speed and control he would make a crackajack.' "'Never mind about that pitcher,' I replied. 'All I want from you is your terms and you can sign a contract right here now. Name your own figure.

'My dear Mr. Manning,' he answered, 'I really could not think of playing professional baseball, and I just jumped in today to help you out, as I saw that you were in a bad box. I'd like to catch tomorrow's game for you, but, unfortunately, I have already accepted an invitation to attend a lawn
