Inspector Dearnest reported a good attendance at the time of his last visit to the school. Work was also progressing satisfactorily. He recommended that a kindergarten be opened.

His many friends in the city will regret the removal, though it is a deserved promotion, of Mr. A. H. Spencer, of the M. C. R. freight shed here, who has been appointed freight clerk for the company in Ridgeway, vice R. W. Young, resigned. Mr. Spencer was an active member of the Young Liberal Club and popular with all who knew him.

Carson, secretary's report; Mr. W. A. Mackay, the pledge; Mr. T. W. Birks, the prayer meeting; and Miss Gower, Mr. W. C. Ferguson, and Mr. W. J. Doherty, on the officers.

The Gondoliers.
The Woodstock Amateur Opera Company will appear at the Grand to-morrow evening in "The Gondoliers." A large audience is assured this prominent amateur organization. The cast is an exceedingly large one, and the principals include some very clever people. Londoners should reciprocate and give them a large audience in return for the patronage bestowed on the Young Liberal Minstrels some few weeks ago.

Sunday On Carlings Heights.
A disgraceful occurrence was reported to the police yesterday afternoon. In response to a telephone call the patrol wagon was dispatched to a short distance east of the Military Barracks, where P. C. Smith had arrested Pte. Wm. Watson, of No. 1 School of Infantry, and a woman named Harriet Crister for acting in a disorderly manner. Several other soldiers made off on the policeman's arrival. The man is charged with assault and the woman with vagrancy.

"Robin Hood."
The cast that is to appear here on next Friday evening in "Robin Hood" is very strong, and includes Miss Caroline Hamilton, prima donna, the original Maid Marian, of course. Mr. John Peachey, as Robin Hood (from the Lyric Theater, London), who sang in "Dorothy" for 400 nights with Marie Tempest abroad. Miss Jenny Dickerson, late of the Carl Road Opera Company of London, as Allensdale. Ethel Baird, as Annabel; Mr. Hallen Hooton, late with Agnes Huntington's Opera Company, who will play the Sheriff of Nottingham. None of these principals appeared when the opera was sung here last November, except Mr. Frank Morry, the comedian, and Miss Balch, who will on this occasion resume the soubrette roll.

A Traveler's Narrow Escape.
Asphyxiation from gas is liable to occur in more ways than one, as a traveling man in this city found out to his sorrow on a Saturday night. Mr. Frank Perry is a traveler from the London Shoe Company, and when in town he puts up at the Richmond. On Saturday night he got in about 10:30 and went to bed. Before doing so he carelessly hung his trousers on a gas bracket, and unknown to him the gas became turned on. It was not until between 8 and 9 o'clock yesterday morning that the escape of gas was noticed by Mrs. Lloyd, as she was passing along the corridor. The odor was traced to Mr. Perry's room, but repeated poundings on the door failed to bring any response from within. The door was then burst open, and Mr. Perry was found with his head and shoulders on the floor, as if he had made an attempt to get up but was overcome with the gas. He was unconscious, frothing at the mouth, and breathing stertorously. He was placed back in bed, the doors and windows were thrown open and Drs. Moore and Drake telephoned for. They were on hand immediately and after working on the man for an hour or so, he showed signs of returning consciousness. The doctors state that he will be around in a few days. Mr. Perry resides near Eastwood, Oxford county.

Mr. Perry is reported as resting easily to-day. He suffers considerably from soreness caused by the blistering he received, and the gas in his blood still affects his head. Otherwise he is out of danger, but it will be a week before he is himself again. His brother and mother have arrived in the city.

"PHYSICAL CULTURE."
Miss Giddings Gives a Large Audience Valuable Pointers.

The Vamp-Like Waist and the Corset Condemned—Necessity of Proper Physical Exercise—Classes To Be Formed.

A large and appreciative audience greeted Miss Giddings upon her first appearance in this city on Saturday afternoon, in Victoria Hall. Although a stranger here her writings on "Physical Culture," "Dress Reform," etc., are not unknown to many. Her subject was "Physical culture and its need at the present day."

The lecturer dwelt largely on the necessity of developing the different muscles, in order to make perfect forms and produce perfect health. "There is no medicine," she said, "equal to exercise properly used. Physicians have begun to recognize this fact, and now prescribe for their patients out of door exercise, wherever possible. But these exercises can be abused, and can prove a bane instead of a blessing. Too much exercise is as bad as too little. Some people get discouraged when after taking a course in a gymnasium they feel no good results, but rather feel exhausted. But why is it? They have over-exercised their strength by indulging in exercises which were not suited to their particular needs. Just as one kind of medicine will not meet the requirements of all classes of invalids, neither is one particular course of physical training adapted to all sorts of people. Then, again, the training of the muscles must be gradual. We cannot expect to undo in one week that which has taken years to develop. The body must be free to expand at will. Nature never intended our bodies to be encased in anything that would prevent their development.

Comparison was made between the Grecian ideal of beautiful forms and our ideal of the present day. "Our eyes have been educated to think that small waists are beautiful," continued Miss Giddings, "and some women are so conservative as to weave their hands in horror at the thought of a time ever coming when the waist should be the proportion that God intended it. That which is injurious to the health and produces deformity for a wisp-like waist is a deformity. It is far distant when all intelligent women will renounce the corset as one of the worst enemies of good health."

Then attention was turned to the fact of how very few people sit correctly. The lecturer demonstrated several of the general modes of sitting, which were quite ludicrous. "Always sit upright. Never imagine you are resting your body by letting the head sink upon the chest and the shoulders fall forward. You are not resting your body, but rather straining it, and thereby doing yourself a great wrong. We do not rest the back by placing the shoulders against the chair, but rather by holding the shoulders in the same position as when standing. The head should be held erect, poising equally upon the shoulders. Upon the art of standing correctly depends, after all, the posture of the body. The chest must be lifted into proper position, the arms must be brought into proper position, and in doing this the muscles are developed, the chest expanded, and physical strength is gained. Turn learn how to walk correctly. When walking the ball and heel of the foot should touch the floor at the same time. This gives an elasticity to the step, which cannot otherwise be obtained. Then in the matter of dress, we should clothe ourselves to suit our own personality. Select clothing and style of garments that will be most conducive to good health and most becoming to your own individuality. The study of physical culture makes people more intelligent. It makes them better acquainted with the mechanism of the human body, and enables them to reason for themselves how to properly develop the body God has given them. But some people have a deep knowledge of the human body, but when being told that the human body contained 280 bones, exclaimed: "I wish I'd never heard of it, for I'd be frightened all the time now that I'll break some of them."

The lecturer closed her interesting address, thanking the audience for their presence and attention. Miss Giddings is a very fluent speaker, and delighted her audience with her gracefulness of manner. It is her intention to organize classes for physical culture training in the city. This is an opportunity that many will be glad to avail themselves of, as London has never before had a class of this kind. Miss Giddings has very large classes in Toronto, and has met with excellent success there, as in all places where she has been. The classes will be held Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays in Somerset Hall, Dundas street. Already a large number have handed in their names for membership, and doubtless many more will avail themselves of the privilege. There will be classes for children, young ladies and adults. Full particulars as to terms, hours, etc., can be secured from Prof. Barron, Conservatory of Music, Dundas street, city. The first class meets this morning at 10 o'clock in Somerset Hall.

A FEW TESTIMONIALS

—FOR—
Barkwell's Sure Corn Cure

Miss Maria Brown, of Chatham, formerly of Glencoe, says she has much pleasure in testifying to the merits of Barkwell's Sure Corn Cure, that of nine corns which gave her great pain not one of them remains. It is surprising the testimonials that come in from all parts of the country for this celebrated corn cure.

Letter from Springfield.
W. S. Barkwell, chemist: Dear Sir,—When in London I got a bottle of your celebrated Sure Corn Cure for a corn which I could get nothing to help. I have suffered from it for the past fifteen years and thought I would never get it cured, but yours acted like a charm and completely removed it. I am gratefully yours, Alvin Purdy, Springfield, March 1, 1893.
