CONSTITUTIONAL GOVERNMENT tons. IN THE EAST.

The apparent success of the Liberal or "Young Turk" movement for the establishment of constitutional government in Turkey, has greatly encouraged those who hope for political changes in those countries both in are unknown. But one would be altogether too hasty in assuming that political liberty for the oppressed is at hand in these countries.

The growth of modern cities is not confined to so-called civilized people. Travel and intercourse in these days tries; and not only Russians and Turks, but Persians, Hindoos, Chinese and other Asiatics, become imbued with what their rulers consider treasonable doctrines. Agitation begins, dred and fifty millions in opening up (Williams), 1 to 10 and is carried on more or less intellikey; sometimes a nominal success, as igation through the Welland Canal to is that the agitator loses his head.

CANADIAN CANAL TRAFFIC

Canadian canal statistics for the Rochester16 season of 1908, though they show slight falling off in traffic as compa ed with the preceding year, are, the whole, satisfactory. The growth this traffic has been most marked du ing the past decade, the tonnage last year being nearly three times that of 1899, when the enlargement works became effective. The following table shows the tonnage for each of the
