Ail the measures meationed, except the Local Veto Bill, have passed their first reading, but it is doubtful that a single one of them will emerge from the committee stage. When the Registration Bill comes up for its second reading Sir Edward Clarke will meet the measure with an amendment that the House declines to proceed with a bill altering the entire elective system of the redress existing unequal distribution of the electoral power. The aim of this amendment is to reduce the Parliamentary membership of Ireland, the ou lying parts of Scotland, the West of England, and increase that of London, the Midlands and Lancashire, which sections are mainly opposed to the Government. The amend-ment is certain to be rejected, but its intro-duction and debate will furnish the basis for an endless number of proposals, an of which will probably have as little chance of acceptance as the one mentioned.

> THE BISHOPS' BATTLE CRY. The committee of bishops sitting in conrocation at Canterbury have raised a battle cry against the disestablishment of he church in Wales, and passed resoluions declaring that the English Churches will support their Welsh brethren in this crisis. The Rt. Rev. Alfred G. Edwards, Bishop of St. Asaph, and the leader of the Established Church in Wales, has made a most vehement and indignant denial of the declaration of Home Secretary Asquith that the supporters of the Velsh Church are in a hopeless minority. The Church party in the House of Commons, headed by Sir John Mowbray and Viscount Cranborne, are not numerous, but they make up for their lack of members by being noisy and persistent and are sure to give the Government a vas deal of trouble. The Welsh Radical favor the bill in general, but they are almost unanimous in their objection to the proposal that the church funds be given to the parishes. The ground of this objection of the parishes. The ground of this objection to the parishes of the race no one but to accomplish this president Cleveland and Secretary Carlisle are now employing every means in their objection to the constituency. brilliant success.

Dynamite in a New York Court. New York, April 28.—Great excitement was caus d in the Jefferson Market court room by the discovery of a box of dynamite in the prisoners' pen. In the pen all the morring were nine Anarchist-looking vagrants, who were avoided by the ordinary prisoners. If it is a veritable dynamical ordinary prisoners. mite machine there is enough of the explosive material to blow up the building.

Bound for the Sealing Zone. Victoria, B. C., April 28.-It is undertood that the local sealers intend to ask permission for vessels to leave Sand Point early in July, in order to reach Behring Sea as soon as possible after June 1st, thus losing no time in getting into the scaling
