Poplar Creek Agency, Montana, Feb. 15.—The agent among the Yanktonnais Indians is charged with neglecting to remove the Indians from the river flat when the news was received that the Missouri was breaking up above on the night of February the 10th. The water rose so rapidly that panic was caused. The thermometer was twenty-two below zero. The troops tried to assist the Indians, but the flood came very suddenly. Five hundred ponies, which were swept away, struggled to escape for hours, but in the morning were found dead, some standing in only knee-deep water and many were frozen into the ice. The number of Indians who actually perished cannot be stated with certainty. The whole tribe are in mourning. The fruit of the winter's hunt and buffalo robes have all been swept away in one night. High up in trees where evidently they had fled to escape the pursuing flood were to be seen the bodies of eight Indian men frozen stiff and stark.

Hardly a day passes but some juvenile offender is brought into court. It is often remarked that Toronto has more than her just share of bad little boys. Petty thefts, house-breaking, abusive language, etc., is in what they excel. They are hardened-looking and old before their time. It is not that there are a few who make things lively, but they turn up everywhere. On Saturday six mere boys were in court charged with petty offences, all of them felonies, and to-day six more were convicted of petty thieving. The little girls do their share of it and often can be seen weeping behind the dock rail. Tommy Kitts and George Cobb are out of the way, but their mantles have fallen on worthy successors, who can steal and weep with with great ability. They enter in where old cracksmen fear to tread, and can get through a door as noiselessly and with as little work as mice. YOUNG OFFENDERS.

Two Amendments Rejected—The Plans of the Land Leaguers

London, Feb. 15.—The bill for the protection of life and property in Ireland makes slow progress. Last night the amendment to strike out the words "wherever committed!" was defeated. Its promoters pointed out that as the bill stands a man will be liable to arrest on suspicion of having committed or incife. to an offence even in England or the United States. The amendment providing that a person to be arrested must be in Ireland of his own free will and not to have been brought there on some other charge was also defeated. Mr. Forster stated that the mere advice to tenants not to pay rent would not be deemed a ground for arrest but incitements to acts of violence and intimidation will be so regarded.
