at Ottawa, enclosing a form of prayer on casion of the Queen's jubilee.

S. Jones read a memorial from the sof Toronto and Township of York, ing that it was their desire that the sed dealt with in a fair and equitable and suggesting that the question at submitted to arbitration.

The Bishop briefly stated the position of the uestion in relation to that morning's meeting f the Synod. There were two motions before one by Mr. A. R. Boswell, for the newal of the leases, and an amendment by r. A. H. Campbell, postponing any further tion until legislation had been obtained exthe powers of the Synod as trustees of ese lands.

Provost Body then rose to move an amendent to the amendment of Mr. Campbell. In well argued, temperate speech he showed that either the Rectory Lands Committee nor the mants had presented the facts of their case fore the Synod, which course would have dieved the house of much difficulty. In this cost painful position they were asked by Mr. cowell's motion to make a certain adjustment if the matter. The provost pointed out that try, serious interests were concerned, not serely pecuniary, but also morally as affecting the reputation of the church. [Applause,] te maintained that it was unfair to ask the synod to give judgment when they had copportunity of knowing from the tenants wan lips how they were aggrieved. The Synod has asked to instruct the committee to take one other course than that of trustees, thereby afterning that there was something wrong in he position of the rectors. The Synod land oright to give a definite decision in these irrumstances. It would be doing a positive group to adopt Mr. Boswell's resolution, again, the amendment of Mr. Campbell would stay all action until further legislation and been obtained in reference to the trust. His (the provost's) objection to this was that they had nothing to show that fresh legislation was necessary, or to warrant the Synod in stopping any action for an indefinite period, in the point of the second these mandal these. was necessary, or to warrant the Synod opping any action for an indefinite period. solution of the difficulty, he would there-

The provost added, amidst applause:

The adoption of this amendment will get rid of this troubleaome question. It prevents an injustice to either party. It commits the Synod to nothing except refering the matter to arbitration. It can involve no possible injury to any interest concerned. If carried, it will clear the honor of this Synod and the reputation of the rectors of this city. They are at present laid open to the accusation of waiting to press their legal rights to the last farthing without any moral consideration.

Mr. T. Hodgins seconded the provost's amendment. He said that he could not affirm Mr. Boswell's resolution, which, he feared, was a defiance of the law. He added: "If I am to elect between fidelity to the Synod and

Mr. Boswell's resolution, which, he feared, was a defiance of the law. He added: "If I am to elect between fidelity to the Synod and Loyalty to the law, I shall choose the latter." If they went to the Legislature with the bold resolution of Mr. Campbell, the Legislature would not hear the Synod. These leases, which were the subject of contention, contained provisions which the law had declared invalid—what were known to the legal profession as "breaches of trust." If a fair compromise could not be arrived at, then let hem submit the matter to arbitration. In liew of the want of information, the doubtful nonts of any and the interests at stake, this could be an honest way to settle the difficult nection.

Mr. Campbell said he would be delighted to ee the question settled. It was doing an en-emous amount of injury to the church. Hon. J. Patton, Rev. S. Jones, Mr. Boswell ad others continued the debate.

Mr. F. Arnoldi said the Synod would be thing in a most dishonorable way if it.

gument. What had been stated was not the correct law—

The Bishop, again interposing: "Precisely so. Each lawyer who addresses us declares that his law is sound, and the otter man's law is unsound. [Laughter and applause.] I must appeal to the house whether we cannot be governed by a little common sense. We have got into a difficulty, and common sense says 'Go to arbitration.' We do not want to sit for hours to hear all kinds of predictions. I appeal to Mr. Arnoldi to give us no more law, but a common sense view of the matter. Are we to continue this wrangle without any possible chance of agreeing or take the wiser course of a resort to arbitration."

Mr. Arnoldi: "My Lord, the Synod is not above the law. [Cries of 'Chair.'] There could be no more unjust settlement than by arbitration. [Question.] The leases ought not to be interfered with. It is a dishonor to the Synod and te all who have brought the question torward."

The Bishop, warmly: "I must again call

Synod and to all who have brought the question torward."

The Bishop, warmly: "I must again call Mr. Arnoldi to order. I am surprised that a legal goatleman should, in opposition to the chair, persist in speaking."

Mr. Arnoldi bowed to the chair and resumed his seat, and Mr. Worrell took up the debate. He said the proposal to constitute a board of arbitrators was not the way to effect a settlement. He would prefer a committee to collect the facts on both sides and report to the Synod. It would be far better to appeal to the courts of law than have a tribunal of arbitration.

arbitration.

Dr. Suelling pointed out that the arbitrators would be fettered by the canon, under which the Rectory Lands Committee is bound to act. The committee itself had no power to do what it was propeed the arbitrators should do. They should have legislation first, and then they could give effect to it. He should vote for Mr. Campbell's amendment, for he thought they would get into greater difficulty by arbitration than now.

Mr. Campbell: "Let us get power first,
and then act."

Mr. Mason: "The tenants claim that they put up the buildings in good faith, and they will not agree to arbitrate on that point."

The vote was then taken, when there were against. The other proposals therefore fell to the ground.

The remaining portion of the business was got through with commendable speed. It was not of general interest. Numerous votes of thanks were passed, and shortly after 1 o'clook the Bishop gave his parting address. He said it was a matter of regret that the attendance of members should swindle down to such a small number before the end of the business had been reached. The session had been prolonged, and had been in some senses a harassing one. He was thankful they had been safely brought out of the difficulties which threatened them, and saved from a disruption of brotherly peace and concord.
