"On Parliament Hill"

THE WATFORD GUIDE .ADVOCATE

(By a Member of The Parliamentary Press Gallery) Ottawa, April 19th, 1924 — Par-hament adjourned dor the Easter re-cess on April 16 after completion of the first heat of the Budget debate. The debate will uncheble, sections The debate will probably continue for a week or so when Parliament meets again on the 24 th, but the first two days of the debate have hardly been up to expectations, from the Conservative opposition stand-point, at least. It has been much more lackadaisacal than might have been expected from advance notices as to the opposition attack on the Robb-

King tariff reduction proposals. From the outset, all members of Parliament recognized that the Budget proposals were of vital significnce; that they definitely marked the advent of a new era in fiscal policy; that they brought the tariff into the lists as the supreme issue 'between the "manufacturers" and the "coners-tariff party" at the next general election two years hence. Under these circumstances, therefore, a slashing fight from the outset might have been expected in the Commons from the Conservative benches.

A Mild Onslaught But no. There was no real fight. Sir Henry Drayton, former Finance Minister, led off for the Conservat-ive protectionists. But is was a mild ught. He covered much ground, dealing both with the financial re cord and the tariff proposals of the government. He questioned Mr. Robb's reduction of the national debt by thirty millions, claiming that the bond issue of fifty milions for the National Railways (of which about one-third still remains unexpended) should be regarded as a debt increase, although in regard to this the minister of Railways noted that at least a very considerable part of the bond issue was devoted to capital expenditures on permanent betterments. Sir Henry dealt rather gingerly with the real issue, namely, that of tariff deductions and their significance. His main thesis was that a high tariff was necessary to preserve Canadian industry the face

American and European competition and that the farmers themselves deserved a higher protection against competition from United States foodsbuffs. His address evoked no mark ed enthusiasm among his own supporters, and there were many vacan chairs on the Conservative side. For the first big gun opening the attack on the Liberal budget it was decidely unimpressive, a fact admitted privately by many of those seated hind Mr. Meighen's first lieutenant.

Another Record Majority Where Sir Henry fell short of exectations others of his party who followed in the debate also failed to put across any real live bombs, and unless more concentrated and effective attack is forthcoming after the Easter adjournment, the country will take a compartatively mild in terest in the subsequent debate tion of a long fighting debate.

these commodities we don't benefit our farmers, we simply make our artisans and labourers pay more for articles of food which they must buy during the season of low domestic production, and we therefore increase their cost of living." Progressive Support Government From the Progressive side of the House, J. Fred Johnson, chief whip, heartily congratulated the Govern-ment on its move in the right direction towards the re-establishment on a sound footing of the basic industries of the Dominion.

In brief, the first round in the debate has amply confirmed first day impressions of the Budget, namely, that it struck a responsive chord in the hearts of the mass of the Can-adian people looking for taxation reduction and a lowering of the tariff impositions on the basic imple-ments of production. Probably no one realizes this more keenly than Mr. Meighen, who is shrewd enough to read public opinion, and will probably abandon the pre-budget inten-

This further cut in taxation for the present fiscall year will add very considerable amount to the cut of twenty-four millions already ann-ounced by Mr. Robb. The total taxation cut will average about three dollars per head or about fifteen dollars for each family of five.

Right Honourable W. S. Fielding has returned to Ottawa after a month at Atlantic City. The veteran minister is feeling much improved in health, but it is hardly proable that he will be able to take any act-ive part in the Commons this season.

knowing that the vote in any case is a foregone conclusion with a govern nent majority, backed by the whole Progressive vote, equal probably to the record majority of 121 secured in the division on the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the Throne.

The Ministerial Reply

From the government side, the wo main contributions came from Honourable Charles Stewart, Minis ter without portfolio, the former speaking for Western Canada and the latter for the Maritime Provinces. Mr. Stewart emphasized the fact that the tariff reductions were designed to help the basic industries of the country agriculture, dairying, mining, lumbering, and fishing thereby stimulating the purchasing power of the whole people, and in consequence benefitting the manufastur ers themselves. "Despite the lament attions of the Conservative Party,' he declared, "telegrams are pouring in from all over Canada congratulating the Government. There is now a feeling that the government is being conducted for the many and not for the select few." Honourable Mr. Sinclair devoted a considerable part of his argument to refuting the the ory advanced by Sir Henry Drayton that what the farmers of Canada He quoted wanted was protection. comprehensive statistics showing that of the total ninety-seven million dollars worth of food products imported into Canada last year seventy-five million dollars worth were of a kind not produced in Canada at all; while twenty-three mill-ion dollars worth were composed largely of seasonable imports such as fruits, fresh vegetables, etc., imported at a time when Canadian farmers themselves had none of these imports, he maintained, would simply result in increasing the price to the consumers without helping the Canadian grower at all. "If we impose", he said, "further duties on
