

honourable old age at Montreal, had reached the highest position of all—to wit, that of the Chief Factor at Red River. But it would take another volume to relate how all this came about, and it cannot therefore be set down here.

