EBIN'TO HER CHILDREN.

"The fate that could not conquer doth bereave

"The fate that town and the me, and adverse stars prevail;
My children," Erin cries, "my children leave me.

No help can more avail to loved them well; and, strong in full reliance On tender hearts and true.
To Fortune's utmost race would bid defiance Till this worst grief I knew."

Now see, as men forsake a land plague stricken.
When panic guides their hosts,
In streams that, rolling onward, swell and quicken, They leave their native coasts;

Dispeopled wastes and ruins are behind them,—
Homes where life's voice is stilled—
Whose walls know but the gadding briars that bind them,
Cold hearths, and fields untilled

"Not by our will," they say "our country loses
The help her sons should give;
By aliens ruled, the land we love refuses
Her own the leave to live;
We vanish, swift as morning exhalations,
For, oh! the power is strong
That builds secure 'a city with foundations
Laid deep in chartered wrong.'

"Within his stately mansion, Wealth presiding O'er pomp and sumptuous fare, Disdains the hut where famine is abiding,
With cold and gaunt Despair;
For work the young and strong are vainly sigh-

Vainly the old ask bread,
Our lords may rear—for all who live are flying—
Their thrones among the dead."

And Erin knows how idle 'tis complaining; Yet with despairing moan She marks their flight, her tear-dimmed vision straining,
Who leave her thus alone;

Her aching heart throbs back each word of parting;—
In every wild farewell,
She hears too sure, with dreadful forecast start-of all their hopes the Eneil.

She wept-then, for the heart was hot within her. She spoke and raised her band; "Shall sacrifice be vain, and wrong a winner
Triumphant in the land?
The steadast soul that made the sires so glorious,

The faith wherein they met
Power's onset fleres, and rose o'er death victorlous— Say, can the sons forget?

"What are the fleeting troubles of the present
To storms that wrecked the past,
That we should see to day the humblest peasant
His birthright from him cast?
See! through misfortune's sullen cloud appear-

A ray of hope's fair sun—
! courage! Stand but firm, each other cheering.
And soon the field is won.

"The past—that old, old story of endurance No pain, nor fear, could shake— Each word that cheers the present with assur-

of morn about to break— The future, which its harvest shall be reaping.

In freedom's happier lot—

By these, "I charge you, leave me not!"

A member of a school-board not a thousand miles away visited a school under his jurisdiction. When a sed to make some remarks, he said:—" Well, bhildren, you spells well and reads well, but you hain't sot still."

YOUTHFUL OBJECTION TO SOAP AND WATER. Master Jack: How often are the clothes washed, Emma? Laundry maid: Once a week; Master Jack; Only once a week!--then the clothes are much luckier than sis and me, if that's all the washing they get.

THE GOLDEN RULE .- " Would you like me to give you a shilling?" asked a little boy of a gentleman he met in the street. "To be sure I would," was the reply. "Very well then," said the boy, "do unto others as you would others should do unto you."

SAFE.-A Dutchman was relating his marvellous escape from drowning when thirteen of his companions were lost by the upsetting of a boat, and he alone was saved. "And how did you escape their fate?" asked one of his hearers. "I tid not co in te tam pote!" was the Dutchman's placid answer.

Going for the "Brush .- People are going into ecstacies now about the excellence of others. In one of his battles a battalion of veterans having taken to their beels, he galloped after them, bawling out, "Why do you run away, yeu old blackguards? Do you want to live for ever?"

THE PLACE FOR MEDDLESOME ONES .- A MAD having announced that he was once in a community where they all minded their own business, his statement was doubted, and he was called upon to tell where it was. "It was on board a ship at sea," he said; "and the passengers were all too sick to meddle with one another's affairs."

A CLEVER BOY.—A farmer's wife, in speaking of the smartness, aptness, and intelligence of her son, a lad six years old, to a lady acquaintance, said—"He can read fluently in any part of the Bible, repeat the whole catechism, and weed onions as well as his father." There are persons who, having made use of various preparations without obtaining any satissectory results, will be inclined to condemn theuse of Luby's Parsian Hair Renewer. To them we can, in all confidence, state that "not a single" instance do we know of where LUST's preparation has been employed but that It has been a perfect success, and no further testimony of its merits need be offered them than the approval it has met with from hundreds of our citizens who are now daily using it.

Used as an ordinary dressing for the hair, its valuable properties are to restore gray bair to its natural color, which it certainly does, and without any lujurious eff of whatever; cures irritation and itching of the scalp, and leaves the head clean, cool and free from dandruff. One thing is certain, that its balsamic properties are such that it strengthens weak hair and checks its falling out.

LUBY's does not soil the pillow-slips. Those who have used LUBY's speak well of it; those who condemn it know nothing of it. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers, in large
