EUROPEAN EVENTS.

Paris, Dec. 26.—The correspondent of the Liverpool Catholic Times writes:—

THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT AND THE HOLY SEE

M. Lefebyre de Behaine, the French Ambassador to the Holy See, has just left Paris for Rome, after having had several interviews with the President of the Republic and with countrymen, and his policy of increasing the power of the natives, whatever may be its ultimate results, has certainly left innumer; tions between the impious rulers of Catholic able difficulties for his successor, Earl Duf. France and the Vatican were never so strained as they are at present. The constant tamnals-notably the organ of the caucus in pering with the spirit and letter of the Con-Birmingham-have appealed to the present cordat has at length aroused the Unief Pastor, Viceroy not "to refuse to respect the rights and it is just possible that we are about to witness one of those struggles between right and might which has always ended in the victory of the first. The great contract which Napoleon I. signed during the Pontificate of Pius VII. was intended primarily to signify the restoration and preservation of Retigion. The great symbolical picture shove the high alter of the Madeleine may be taken as the popular expression of this idea. The contract in question was bilateral. is pledged the Vatican to certain concessions, but it simultaneously imposed grave obligations upon the French Government, which are binding to the end of time. Elves from a utilitarian or socialist point of view, this Magna Charta of God's Charch to grance is mored and inviolable. The rection has not been cheated as in England out or its faith by a violent so-called Reformation. The increasing tervor of the fulfill proves that itsu National Large leading that body is a score of millions of people look upon controlled by a score of the bound organization with the Holy See as the highest prerogative of the nation. There is no Gallicanism nowadays in France except that of M. Loyson, whose primate is Dr. Jenner, and whose funds come from England. M. Jules Ferry, therefore, loss chosen as inopportune moment to quarrel with the Holy See and to endeavor to starve out the French Church. To take away burses from seminaries is to strike at vocations to the priesthood. To suppress the paltry indemnities to Cathedral Chapters, and above all that given to the C apter of St. Denis, is sheer iniquity. But it is also a silly blunder, for these posts have been mostly given to learned and realons priests who have spent their lives as army and navy chaplains, or who have rendered names Edward flacke was shot last night at great services to the state. Dean Creep, who Little Farm, about twenty miles from here, of the venerable basilies, would have been en-titled to a provision, which was evoided by his nomination to a cathedral stell. In nearly every case this may be said. It is hard, therefore, to understand how the new legislaand asked permission to come in. He was tion can act. But one thing is certain, rold by Dusset, who accept the place, that he The Holy Father must make a strong protest against this constant aggression. Cardinal Jacobini has written to the Papal Nuncio this week, asking him to make strong representations on this subject; and it is even added that Mgr. di Remie has received Decrased was brought to the village this instructions to proceed to Rome and give an account of the result of his mission to the Pope. M. Jules Ferry will find before long adjourned tile 9 a 1 % to morrow to allow a that even an infidel government has to count with the induence of Catholicism. His present policy is a slow preparation for reaction. A true Republic need not be ceclesiastical, but it must not be committed to dogmatic atheism. Liler: y of conscience and respect for the convictions of all religious denominations are its chief characteristics. Without these it must end, as M. Thiers said it would, in imbecility

BLASPHEMOUS PARODIES.

The custom of baptising "civilly" is growing in France; and even the country mayors are beginning to officiate at the ceremony. M. Louis Fromet, the mayor of Vincuil, near has gone so far as to deliver Bap certificates. Other mayors have actually erected little altars in their houses. On these are placed a statue of the Republic, with tapers and a tricolor flag. The child is wrapped round symbolically with the flag, and the party drink the health of the baby citizen. This is the moustrous parody which infidels seek to perform to keep parents away from the Baptismal font. There is, of course, little chance of its success, and the imposture will be one of those which in the future will raise a pitying Lugh. Even Robespierre celebrated his grotesque function in honor of a Supreme Being. But M. Louis Fromet has nothing but bald citizenship to tues being probably liberty, equality fraternity, instead of Faith, Hope, and Charity.

If the "Black Band," as they are called in France, are able to procure dynamite for their own purposes, they are also able to give it to others. At the French Prefecture of Police it is thoroughly recognised that dynamite has been obtained death of Captain James Ball, at the ripe old from French Anarchists. But the fear of disturbing the relations between France and England has caused no further step to be taken beyond a rigorous search at Dover vis, Glengarry, of Donald McDonald, son of and other ports. Lord Lyons has ordered the late Captain Neil Ban McDonald. The English detectives to keep away from the English detectives to keep away from the deceased was greatly respected in the locality Embassy on the ground that their presence and was followed to his burial on Christmas combarrasses him, and that he has no mission embarrasses him, and that he has no mission to help the police in their work. After this it is not surprising to find that Inspector Moser and his colleagues are the joke of the Irish colony in Paris, and that his chief mission is being interviewed by newspaper correspondents to whom he shows the pin presented to him by the Prince of Wales and the waltz of which he is the composer, and which he dedicates to Mrs. Howard Vincent. Hoche has been carefully watched because two of the Fathers are Irish and might possibly be harboring Invincibles. The Irish College has had a similar compliment paid to it. As for Irish Nationalists, their footsteps are dogged from morning till night by the auxiliaries lent by M. Camescasse to Inspector Moser, who pays them out of his own
